Tories probing Air Canada

Airline's ex-boss Pratte quits Supreme Court

PRATTE

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Mr. Justice Yves Pratte today announced his resignation from the Supreme Court of Canada, effective at the end of June. He gave ill health as the reason.

The resignation of the 54-year-old judge who headed Air Canada for a stormy seven years comes on the heels of a request by Transport Minister Don Mazankowski for a report from Air Canada on the pension given Pratte when he resigned as chairman of the publicly-owned corporation in 1975.

Published reports have said Pratte received an Air Canada pension based on 20 years of service when he served only seven. The reports also said Pratte received $200,000 when he left the airline.

Manzanowski Wednesday also said the position of chairman of Air Canada, held by former Liberal cabinet minister Bryce Mackasey, should be done away with.

This brought a rejoinder from Mackasey that he considers his job important to the airline and any move to scrap it or make it a part-time position runs counter to the findings of two federal inquiries.

The appointment of Mackasey to a seven-year term last year drew harsh criticism from the Tories. He is reportedly being paid $90,000 a year.

Pratte resigned as chairman of Air Canada in the wake of an inquiry into an unusual $100,000 payment by Air Canada to Montreal travel agent R.Y. McGregor.

He said in his resignation letter that the government seemed to have lost confidence in him.

The inquiry headed by Chief Justice Willard Estey of the Ontario Supreme Court found there was incompetency but not dishonesty in top management of the 21,000 employee government-owned airline. He named no names.

Pratte was a prominent Quebec lawyer with the prestigious law firm of St. Laurent, Taschereau, Noel and Pratte when he first came to national attention in 1965 as special legal counsel for Quebec premiers Jean Lesage and Daniel Johnson and was then appointed to the Royal Commission on Security created by the federal government to look into the Munsinger affair — the relationship between Gerda Munsinger and members of the Diefenbaker cabinet in 1966.

Pratte had no experience with airline management when he was appointed by the Liberal government in 1968 and he complained publicly many times in his seven turbulent years as chairman that he received no support or direction from a succession of transport ministers, including Don Jamieson, Jean Marchand and Otto Lang.

At Air Canada headquarters in Montreal Wednesday, Mackasey said it was "hard to comment" on Mazankowski's statement on such short notice.

But he noted that the Estey Report indicated that combining the positions of chairman and chief executive officer "must contribute to executive congestion and lack of communications

OPEC oil prices raised 24%, plus surcharge

GENEVA (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries announced its biggest price increase in five years today, raising crude oil prices to between $18 and $23.50 U.S. a barrel.

The 13 OPEC countries agreed on a multi-level pricing system, raising the base price to $18 from $14.55 a barrel — an increase of 24 per cent. Members of the cartel also can add surcharges of as much as $2 a barrel as market conditions permit.

The maximum price was set at $23.50 a barrel, allowing for the usual differentials for higher-quality oil. The highest price currently is $21.31 for high-grade Libyan oil.

The benchmark price of $18 is for the type of oil known as Arabian light crude. The new prices take effect July 1 and are to last until the end of the year.

Saudi Arabia, which had held out for a low price, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates will be the only countries actually charging $18 a barrel, Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told a news conference.

Yamani, who described it as a "a slightly confusing system," said most other OPEC countries will charge between $21 and $22 a barrel. Observers said countries such as Nigeria, Algeria and Libya, which produce OPEC's best oil, will probably set their price at the $23.50 ceiling.

How long the $23.50 ceiling lasts will depend on whether the industrialized countries cut consumption, Yamani said.

Saudi Arabia is OPEC's biggest producer, accounting for 28 per cent of the cartel's oil last year.

The United States imports about half the oil it uses with 70 per cent of that coming from OPEC countries.

U.S. economists say the higher OPEC prices will worsen U.S. inflation, heighten the possibility of a serious recession and, in the words of one, make recent increases in fuel oil, utility and gasoline prices "seem quite modest" in comparison.

Curbing oil use splits summit

By JIM ROBB
FP News Service

TOKYO — Leaders of the seven industrial nations at the Economic summit ended their first day of discussions divided on how to conserve oil and restrain imports.

In a statement to the press following the meetings Wednesday (Thursday Tokyo time), Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira of Japan said officials from the seven nations were trying to work out a satisfactory compromise.

On one side of the energy conflict are the Europeans — France, West Germany, Great Britain and Italy — who would like a group target set to restrain oil imports from OPEC nations.

On the other side, with varying positions, are Canada, Japan and the United States, who lean to country-by-country restraint.

Canada is going to have to import more oil for the next five years than it has up to now, because conventional sources of domestic oil will not be producing as much as they have.

Japan is totally dependent on oil and fears that if it is forced to restrain imports too much its growth rate will decline unacceptably.

The United States is faced with gasoline shortages which have become a major political problem for president Jimmy Carter.

Ohira termed the new energy crisis "even more serious" than the first in 1973, used by the Arab oil embargo.

The new crisis has been caused by constant oil price increases now being discussed by the OPEC countries.

Bottle blast brings suit

TORONTO (CP) — The parents of a three-year-old boy who lost his left eye when a soft-drink bottle exploded are suing Pepsi-Cola Canada Ltd. and Domglas Inc., a Canadian bottle manufacturer, their lawyer said today.

John McNair and his wife, Ellen, are bitter about the accident six months ago that took one of son Matthew's eyes when the eye was cut out by a chunk of flying glass from an exploding 1.5-litre bottle.

Major supermarkets in some Canadian cities have taken 1.5-litre, soft-drink bottles from the shelves.

"There is no gratification in seeing the bottles come off the shelves now," McNair said.

The McNairs have spent more than $2,000 in expenses not covered by the Ontario Health Insurance Plan.

Their lawyer, Joseph O'Brien, said writs have been served on both companies involved.

In Ottawa today Consumer Affairs Minister Allan Lawrence announced that regulations forcing soft drink manufacturers to comply with new design standards for 1.5-litre bottles under the Hazardous Products Act will be enacted by the end of the summer

At a Parliament Hill news conference Lawrence said the standards will eliminate the explosions that have plagued torpedo-shaped, narrow-necked 1.5-litre soft drink bottles and injured dozens of consumers.

Lawrence appealed to manufacturers, who stand to lose more than $20 million in lost sales and re-design of the bottles, to re-call the containers and he urged retailers to take them off store shelves.

Ferries profit with loss

B.C. Ferries had a loss of $30.6 million on operations last year, collecting $69.6 million in revenues and spending $100.2 million.

However, thanks to a taxpayer subsidy of $46.6 million, the Crown corporation ended up its fiscal year March 31 with a book profit of $9.3 million.

The corporation's annual report was tabled in the legislature Wednesday.

General Manager Charles Gallagher said in the report he is concerned about rising fuel costs but said projected operating results indicate a general fare increase will not be needed in 1979.

He said, however, that increased demand for capacity and services will require heavy capital expenditures and increased operating costs.

The corporation also has committed itself to spending $75 million for two large ships, lengthening of three small vessels and upgrading of the Queen of Surrey for the Prince Rupert run.

Offer to IWA 'richest ever'

A contract described as the richest ever offered the International Woodworkers of America could be put to the union's 28,000 coastal and southern Interior members by the weekend.

Jack Munro, the union's western region president, said Wednesday following a meeting with negotiators representing 128 forest companies that that the offer meets most of the union's demands.

Munro said the two-year package proposed by the Forest Industrial Relations Association provides an increase in wages and benefits of about $3 an hour, as well as revisions in job categories.

Base rate was $8.16 in the contract which expired June 15. The union originally asked for a $1.50-an-hour increase in a one-year agreement.

Munro said the forest industry also removed all restrictions from the pension plan in its contract offer. The offer represents a 90-cent-an-hour wage increase in the first year and a 9.5-per-cent increase in the second year.

Approval would mean a memorandum of agreement which Munro says could be voted on by the membership within 10 days of signing.

Earlier Wednesday, about 1,800 woodworkers in the Lake Cowichan area decided to remove their picket lines and go back to work.

However, about 1,300 IWA members walked off the job in the Port Alberni area at four MacMillan Bloedel logging divisions to protest what they said was the slow pace of negotiations.

The union member had intended to picket a nearby mill.

Forty longshoremen walked off the job to support the picket, leaving three ships which they had been loading with lumber.

Wharf spokesman Cliff Mayhew said one Japanese-bound ship has a charter rate of $5,000 a day, while the others cost $15,000 a day.

Bennett 'coward' over Viet pledge

A spokesman for organizations trying to spring $2 million from the provincial government to aid children in Vietnam called Premier Bill Bennett a coward Wednesday.

Rhoda Kaellis of the Canada-Vietnam Friendship Society said Bennett's refusal to act on a long-standing promise to staff and equip a clinic for children in the war-ravaged country "is a cowardly way to behave."

She said it is a dishonest attitude to say and do nothing, hoping the problem will go away.

Kaelis, along with representatives from the Council of Churches, Voice of Women, Victoria International Year of the Child and Phil Esmonde, a Vietnam veteran, tried to present a 1,000-name petition to Bennett, but were only able to meet with his executive director Tony Tozer.

They told Tozer they won't allow the campaign to die.

Later they told reporters they will keep knocking at Bennett's door until he lives up to his commitment.

Vietnam has been waiting for six years for B.C. to live up to its promise.

In 1973, a Liberal-sponsored motion to spend $2.25 million to build, staff and maintain a medical clinic for children in Vietnam was passed unanimously by the house.

A committee was formed to ensure any monies spent would go to children and not to war materials or to political ends.

That committee found several responsible groups to handle the funds including the Red Cross, UNICEF and the Unitarian Services Committee.

But time passed, the money was never budgeted and the government changed.

The issue was raised from time to time in the house and in February, 1977, Bennett said the "obligation remains with all of us. Nobody denies that."

He added that the people of B.C. have made a commitment.

Later a second committee was formed but it faded out.

Bennett then changed his tune and said: "To date I have not received a report from that committee with any recommendations to the government to provide a vote in the budget for these funds."

Asked about it again Wednesday, he said: "What money? The committee never reported. What do you want me to do?"

Labor Minister Allan Williams shed a little more light on the current issue.

He was the Liberal who first proposed the spending in 1973.

Asked Wednesday if he stands by his original motion, Williams said he doesn't think it is still possible to achieve it.

There is no longer any way to guarantee the funds will go to a children's hospital, he said.

Hang vandals, not plants Chamber's Siddall urges

Instead of hanging flower baskets, they should hang the vandals who destroy the city's plants and shrubs, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce vice-president Bob Siddall said Wednesday.

Siddall's angry comment came at a chamber directors' meeting during discussion on a public ceremony next spring when the city's flower baskets are put up.

"Instead of hanging the baskets they should hang the culprits who have been vandalizing flower beds during the past year," he snapped.

Later in an interview Siddall said he is fed up with the wave of vandalism that has swept the region, especially the downtown core.

"Merchants want to plant flowers and shrubs but vandals tear them up as fast as you can plant them. The hanging baskets would be vandalized too except they are too high — or the vandals are too low."

Siddall said businessmen fully support the chamber's new campaign to bring more flowers and greenery into the heart of the city but the program can not hope to succeed unless the something is done about the wave of destruction.

"It is disheartening. You plant and it's torn up so you plant and it's torn up again. After the third or fourth time you just give up and pave over the whole area."

For example, businessmen in Trounce Alley have tried several times to put in plants but each time they have been broken or torn up.

Similar reports are received from all parts of the city, he said.

Chamber president Mel Cooper agreed that vandalism is a major problem and a serious obstacle to the green-up campaign.

"Unfortunately there are no easy solutions. Most of the offenders are young and it is difficult to prosecute them."

Cooper said the chamber is looking at a vandal alert program, similar to Arson Alert, which provides financial rewards for information on deliberately set fires.

Cooper said the chamber will press ahead with its campaign, urging merchants to plant as many flowers and shrubs as possible, hoping that the vandalism problem can be solved.

The chamber will also ask the city to spend more on the flower basket program.

McNeely decision 'regrettable'

The Victoria Police Board expressed deep regret Wednesday that policewoman Martha McNeely has quit to join a local law firm.

McNeely — one of only four female constables on the force — starts work with Jones, Emery and Carfra on July 1.

"I hate to see her go. I think it's a great pity," said Alf Hood.

"It's really very upsetting," agreed Janet Baird.

McNeely's resignation came earlier this month, shortly after she returned from a year's leave of absence. The leave was taken to allow her to complete 12 months of articling. She had completed law school before joining the force.

Chief Jack Gregory told the board that McNeely had not quit in protest over anything, but rather had been called back by the law firm she articled with.

But police force sources say that the real reason McNeely left was because of the treatment she got when she returned from her leave.

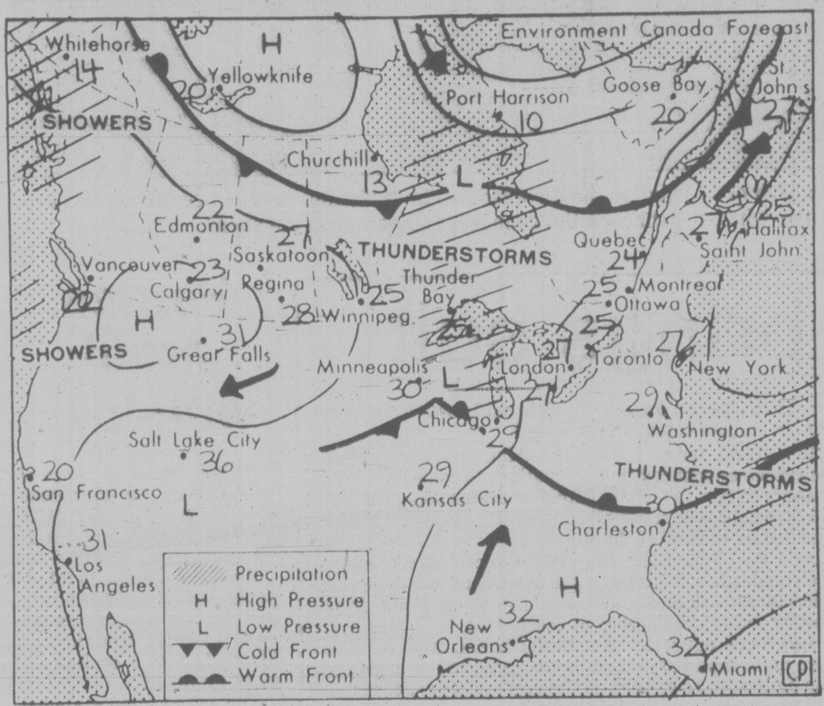
Victoria Police Union president Sgt. Bryan Bailey said McNeely ran into difficulties when she informed the department prior to May 1 she'd be returning for work May 9, nine days later than originally planned.

Bailey said the department reacted by refusing to allow her to return until June 1 — a move the union interpreted as a one-month suspension.

Bailey said the difficulty arose because of a misunderstanding the department had over the nature of McNeely's leave.

McNeely couldn't be reached for comment but police sources say they feel she would have remained with the force had it not been for the problems she encountered when returning to the department.

The Weather



Map valid until noon Friday

A ridge of high pressure which covered B.C. the last several days is slowly breaking down. However, sunny weather is expected to continue in most regions for the next two days with warm temperatures in the southern interior. Meanwhile, a disturbance in the Gulf of Alaska will bring showers to the north coast tonight and Friday and increasing cloud to the northern interior.

Discovery of finger put family off feed

TORONTO (CP) — After finding the end of a human finger in a veal steakette, a Barrie, Ont., man and his family could not eat processed or ground meat for six months, their lawyer says.

Last summer, the man was cutting into the meat when he saw a finger, from the knuckle up including the fingernail.

"For six months, the family couldn't eat any ground or prepared meat," said Marshall Green, the family's lawyer. "It was very upsetting to them. All they ate was steak for a while."

The man and woman asked that their names not be used.

"If everyone started talking about it, I would find it very hard to eat meat," the man said.

The family is suing Loblaws Ltd., where the meat was purchased, and the company which processed the meat. It was a processing plant employee who lost part of his finger. The court case has not started.

The general manager of the plant confirmed there was an accident at the plant but refused to comment further.

Ross Howie, lawyer for the firm, and Loblaws called it one of those unfortunate things. He said Loblaws was only nominally involved because the meat was purchased there.

Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, opens the International Gathering of the Clans tonight, her last official function before leaving Nova Scotia for Toronto on Friday. After the opening, the Queen Mother will watch more than 500 performers in the Nova Scotia Tattoo, a display of traditional Scottish and Nova Scotia entertainment. The gathering of people of Scottish descent is expected to draw more than 40,000 visitors to Nova Scotia this summer. At an official federal-provincial function Wednesday night, the Queen Mother was presented with a handcrafted quilt and a figurine depicting a scene from Nova Scotia.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker entered Victoria Union Hospital in Prince Albert, Sask., Wednesday evening to rest for a few days and have a minor respiratory ailment attended to. When 3 a.m. rolls around and the barmaid at Montreal's La Fraisson Bar-Salon hollers "last call' she means business. Three customers, police described as local troublemakers, found out early Wednesday that "last call" was also a call to arms — a 12-gauge shotgun — when they refused to head home at closing time. Police said the 29-year-old barmaid left the club, returned with the gun, shot one of the dawdling drinkers in the leg, then held his companions at bay until officers arrived. The three men were to be charged with intimidation and public mischief and the barmaid with possession of a firearm and wounding with intent.

Millionaire held for $1.4M ransom

LE MANS, France (AP) — Henri Lelievre, an 82-year-old real estate developer described as one of the 40 richest men in France, has been kidnapped and sources said today that the abductors have demanded a ransom of $1.4 million.

Lelievre, his wife Madeleine, 72, and one of his sons, were having lunch June 21 in the family villa at Colombage, near Le Mans, when two men who pretended to be policemen knocked at the door, the sources said.

After spending 10 minutes with the two men in Lelievre's study, the millionaire followed them to a car and left. Nothing was heard about him until a letter arrived Monday demanding the ransom.

Sources said the letter was written in Lelievre's own hand and sent to his offices in Paris. Lelievre said in the letter he was in good health and had not been mistreated. He said the ransom money should be gathered as quickly as possible in old 500-franc notes.

Lelievre is the 10th wealthy businessman to be kidnapped in France since 1975.

The last major kidnapping occurred in January, 1978, when Baron Eduard-Jean Empain was abducted from his home and held until March 26 of the same year. The gang that kidnapped him and cut off the tip of one of his fingers, had demanded a $10-million ransom. It was never paid.

Somoza in council, resignation hinted

MANAGUA (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza called a special session of the Nicaraguan Congress today amid widespread rumors that it will seek a formula for his departure from office.

Meanwhile, the national guard announced it has launched a counter-offensive against Sandinista rebels occupying territory north of the Costa Rican border.

The government was making a major effort to round up members of Congress from across the strife-torn country. It chartered private planes and used national guard helicopters to bring the congressmen and their alternates to the Intercontinental Hotel, where the session was to be held because it could be protected better than the government palace.

Despite the expectations of action on the president's future, Somoza's private secretary, Max Kelly, said the session would be a routine meeting only. "You guys are going to be surprised when nothing unusual happens," he told reporters.

The new U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua, Lawrence Pezzullo, arrived in Managua on Wednesday. However, officials at the U.S. state department said Pezzullo had been instructed not to present his credentials to Somoza to demonstrate the Carter administration's opposition to his continuing in office.

On the southern battlefront, where at least 1,000 guerrillas have pushed several kilometres into Nicaragua from Costa Rica, radio reports from Costa Rica said the border town of Penas Blancas on the Pan American Highway came under mortar fire Wednesday from national guard positions.

National guard planes and helicopters continued to bomb and strafe rebel-held slums in Managua, and the guerrillas fought back with rockets and automatic weapons from trenches and from behind barricades.

Meanwhile, Washington sources said the U.S. secretly has proposed to Somoza a plan for ending the bloody civil war. The plan calls for replacing Somoza by an appointed council that would try to form a government of national reconciliation.

The sources stressed Washington does not yet know whether Somoza will accept the plan, which was relayed to him this week through Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Julio Quintana.

U.S. officials outlined the plan to Quintana following a meeting here of the Organization of American States last weekend.

As described by the sources, the U.S. plan involves a four-stage process that would begin with Somoza resigning in favor of a constitutional successor and leaving the country.

His successor immediately would appoint a council or junta chosen from prominent Nicaraguans who have no ties with the Somoza government. As soon as that is done, the successor also would resign and turn the functions of government over to the council.

Then the council would attempt to mediate between Nicaragua's various anti-Somoza factions in an effort to bring about a ceasefire and agreement on creation of a broadly based interim government. That government, in turn, would prepare the country for free elections and constitutional processes.

Shah's guards shoot at copter

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Mexican police said Wednesday security guards of the exiled shah of Iran had fired at a helicopter and two men were arrested near his residence but denied that an assassination attempt had been made against him.

Police Captain Julio Cambrano in the exclusive resort of Cuernavaca, where the shah took up residence 17 days ago, said the arrests were made Monday. One man who was arrested was disguised as a woman.

Rower fails to beat Atlantic

HALIFAX (UPC) — Rower Kenneth Kerr was plucked from the North Atlantic by a West German ship Wednesday after his 13-foot boat capsized and a Canadian Armed Forces aircraft picked up a radio distress signal.

A spokesman for the Canadian Coast Guard said Kerr, who set out May 11 from St. John's to try to row to Europe, will arrive here at 7 a.m. local time Saturday aboard the container vessel Stuttgart Express.

There was no information on Kerr's condition.

The spokesman said the distress signal was picked up by an Argus aircraft on patrol from Canadian Forces Base Greenwood in Nova Scotia. "The boat had capsized and they heard the emergency signal," he said.

The aircraft directed the 32,000-ton West German vessel to the scene about 700 miles east of Newfoundland.

The spokesman did not know why the rowboat had overturned. "With the boat capsized, it must have been rough seas," he said. "We have had a lot of storms in the area lately, more than usual."

Kerr, a 27-year-old Scot, was attempting to reach Europe by oar power in the smallest boat yet to try the 2,100-mile ocean crossing to Ireland's west coast.

He was sponsored by Tennent Caledonian Breweries of Edinburgh.

The Asian refugee problem

The Malaysian navy on Wednesday towed out to sea eight boats with more than 800 newly-arrived Vietnamese refugees aboard, as part of its plan to relieve the refugee crisis in Southeast Asia.

In news agency jargon, this was only a "newish" development. Since Monday a week ago, when Malaysia announced it would refuse to accept any more boat people, a total of 14,457 refugees from the Socialist Republic of Vietnam have been towed back out into the South China Sea to continue their odyssey as people without a country.

At least they aren't being shot on sight, as Malaysia first threatened to do. However, it is simply a question of time. Many of them are being condemned to death just as surely. The government of Malaysia is reprovisioning them and replacing some of the rickety, foundering vessels in which they arrived. The lucky Vietnamese who didn't die on the difficult trip from Vietnam have had a brief rest on dry land. It's scant comfort.

The Vietnamese refugees have little choice. Many of them ethnic Chinese, they are being pushed out of Vietnam by official policy. Their savings and any property of value are confiscated before they leave the country.

God knows what numbers of them die at sea of sickness and the heat, or whose boats swamp. Now those who successfully manage to reach the nearest "friendly" country are repelled again, and they must endure another long and hazardous voyage to Hong Kong, the only place in the region which — so far — has not refused them.

It is easy to criticize Malaysia, easy from a vantage point 10,000 miles away on the safe and comfortable side of the Pacific Ocean. Such cruel and desperate measures seem unspeakable to western nations with their well-oiled social welfare machinery which sees that not even a cat need suffer for food and a place to sleep.

But already there are 76,000 Vietnamese in Malaysian settlement camps, more than 50,000 similarly situated in Thailand, which also cares for about a quarter of a million Cambodians and forgotten Laotians — victims of lesser struggles during the years Vietnam was the main theatre of war. It is assumed that eventually they will return home.

None of the countries where the bulk of the refugees have fled is particularly wealthy or so sparsely populated that it can easily assimilate a sudden influx of tens of thousands of people.

It is a human problem of enormous dimensions which demands emergency measures, like the massive program of assistance and relocation organized at the end of the Second World War to help displaced European refugees.

Clearly, the first priority is simply food, clothing, medical supplies and a corps of relief workers, doctors and administrators. Only the industrialized western nations have the capacity to organize the necessary logistics for the required aid program.

But the implications for the long term must not be obscured, either. British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher seems to overlook the immediate problem when she states the necessity for international condemnation of Vietnam for callously forcing out hundreds of thousands of its citizens, but the Socialist Republic of Vietnam is the source of the problem.

Certain western countries, the United States and France, bear a considerable responsibility for the three decades of war which created the refugees, and they have done the most to help. Since the Vietnam war ended in 1975, France and the United States, have accepted 70,000 refugees. Canada has taken 12,500 and Great Britain less than that. Neighboring Asian nations have done poorly. Taiwan has shut and barred the door to all refugees.

Canada, certainly can afford to do better. But immigration ought to be the last solution to be applied to the crisis. Obviously, the best thing would be for Vietnam to take back its citizens, with western aid if necessary to rebuild its economy.

France reduces oil imports

PARIS — President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France does not merely talk about the world energy crisis, but acts upon it and wishes the United States would do the same. He limits the import of oil to what he thinks this nation can afford, and tells the people in his bimonthly fireside talks why they have to pay about $1.50 for a gallon of gas and why they have to change their ways of living in the future.

"It is a problem of education," he said here in a private talk at the Elysee Palace. "It is not merely an economic or an immediate political problem, but a long-range philosophic problem. It depends for solution on political will and the support of the people."

Comfortable in job

Before he went to Strasbourg for a meeting of the European Common Market countries, he went on television and told the French people, "We will never return to the era of even growth . . . and no country can win on its own and all can lose . . . "

It was essential, he said, to consume less imported oil and develop alternative sources of energy, and also imperative for Europe to unite behind a global energy policy. He hopes that the United States and Japan will agree to support such a common policy at the meeting of the leaders of the industrial nations in Tokyo later this month.

There is a different attitude in the president's palace toward the United States these days, and also at the Quai d'Orsay under its new highly intelligent and energetic foreign minister, Francois Poncet. They are not fussing at America these days. They seem to have retained the best of de Gaulle's pride and independence and disregarded the worst.

Giscard now seems to fit comfortably into his elegant palace and also seems confident and serene. He says it is not for him to offer advice to the United States, but he obviously hopes President Carter and the congress will agree to a common policy of limited oil imports and the production of synethetic oil fuel at the Tokyo meeting.

"We need to have a goal for limiting the importation of oil," he said, "if we cannot agree in Tokyo on a specific set of goals, we will have nothing but a conversation."

He also favors a joint declaration in favor of the development of electricity through atomic energy. The present French plan calls for producing half of its electricity with atomic energy by 1985.

Before leaving for Tokyo, Giscard d'Estaing announced a new program for saving fuel that would involve new restrictions on the consumption of oil by industry, public utilities, the government and private motorists.

He wants the other leaders of the industrial nations to agree at Tokyo on a four-point program, not only to define goals for limited oil imports, but to prohibit imports on the "spot market" at high speculative prices, to approve a program for the development of alternative fuels, and if these things can be done, then to invite the oil-producing nations to discuss ways to keep oil supplies and prices on a more stable basis.

"I am convinced," he said in the interview, "that on the day the United States will really start to move in the production of synthetic fuels, there will be a major change in the world situation."

He is already hoping for bolder action from the United States in the future than he has seen in the past, though he makes no point of this and merely responds to questions. "We will, in France, import substantially less oil this year than we did in 1973," he said, "and we'll import even less in 1985 against the present level. And if there were such an attitude in the United States, there would be no oil problem today."

Looks to the future

The French president recognizes that reducing the supply of fuel limits the growth of the nation's economy. France now has well over a million people unemployed and his new austerity program will probably add to this burden. But he is looking beyond the present difficulties to a future with even less energy resources and is even trying to adjust the French education system to that prospect.

It cannot be assumed, he says, that we won't have "another Iran." The problem now is to deal with the immediate problem of price and supply stability, but at the same time to prepare for a wholly different way of living and producing new sources of energy in the last two decades of the century.

His hope is first to get the approval of West Germany and the other Common Market countries for his proposals and then to get the agreement of the U.S. and Japan at Tokyo.

But he is not counting on this or waiting for it. He is putting his own austerity program into effect at once, and he seems to have convinced this country that there is no other rational alternative.

SALT: a realistic and sober summit

VIENNA — Whether the Vienna summit meeting has reversed the deterioration in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union or simply braked it is not clear yet. U.S. President Jimmy Carter himself warned in a dinner toast that "co-operation or confrontation" remained possible alternatives.

But the prospects looked good on a number of points, even though they were generalities, and if none of the specific problems outside the atomic issues were eased, neither were they worsened. Both Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev showed a cautious appreciation of the need for living side by side "in the world we share," as Carter put it. And if each made a point of showing firmness, neither was abrasive.

Internal affairs

Showing a much more sophisticated awareness of American political debate than they have previously, the Russians pledged that they would not seek nuclear superiority. In return, the United States reaffirmed acceptance of the long-standing Soviet goal of "complete equality, equal security, respect for sovereignty, non-intervention" in internal affairs.

Brezhnev agreed with Carter that detente "should become increasingly specific in nature and spread to all areas of the globe."

What this means remains to be seen. Before the meeting, White House officials took pains to dampen expectations of any breakthroughs on crisis spots around the world or on other stalled issues. And there were none. "Realistic and sober, just what we sought," was the way a senior United States official characterized the talks.

But behind that careful effort to preclude disappointment lay the hope of persuading the Russians that it was also in their long term interest not to nourish troublemakers. The hope was based on Carter's sense that clear but non-belligerent expression of just what worries the United States about Soviet behavior may bring a more judicious approach to future decisions in Moscow.

The words of the Russians here were unyielding. The Soviet spokesman chided the United States for finding "spheres of vital interest" far distant from its territory. But the White House view was that it was future actions, not words, that mattered.

The balance between the two superpowers, which seemed to have been tilted with America's opening to China, has been redressed. Antagonism, hostility even, are still visible, but the tone has matured. No longer is it the peevish and shrill exchange of youths intent on displaying their muscle and ignoring their limitations. Rather, it is the graver sense of defending crucial interests amid many dangers beyond either country's control.

Brezhnev pulled no punches in his warning that he expected the United States to deliver its agreement, that is, that he holds Carter responsible for Senate approval of the strategic arms limitation treaty without change. Again and again, the Russians stressed the importance of "continuity" in United States policy. It sounded harsh, but also implied that they have come to count on a certain level of accord with the United States and want it to continue.

The treaty is of domestic importance to the Russians as well as to the Americans. There was laughter when a Russian newsman at a Soviet-American news conference followed a westerner's question about Brezhnev's health with a question about Carter's political health.

But there have been signs that Brezhnev is eager to have the treaty signed, ratified and put into force as an enduring impulse for Soviet policy when he is gone from power as well as for its own sake. If he has stressed Moscow's wish or continuity in its relations with Washington, he has also managed to impose a degree of continuity in Soviet foreign policy on his successors by the formality of the accords.

The agreement to hold regular summit meetings, perhaps once a year, without waiting for some crisis or grand, tediously negotiated pact also gave a new texture and sense of growing normality to the relationship. The United States, looking to the post-Brezhnev period, was pleased that the composition of the Russian delegation in Vienna and the promise of wider official contacts expanded the prospects of access to the Soviet leadership beyond the occasional meeting with the man at the top.

Accepted each other

That does not guarantee any greater agreement, or institutionalize what is still an essentially round-by-round struggle. But it is reassuring to have relations move beyond the encounters of individuals, with their vagaries, to larger circles.

As for Carter and Brezhnev, they seemed to accept each other as comfortably as the vast differences in their circumstances warranted, without awe, friction or particular warmth. The notion that tense conflict can be dissolved if only leaders look into each other's eyes, which underlay the disastrous Vienna meeting between Nikita S. Khrushchev and John F. Kennedy in 1961, has been outgrown in a much more complex age.

The two leaders did not appear to be trying to impress, or woo or frighten each other. But both did look immensely pleased that, after so many hazards, they had gotten this far in dealing with the nuclear age.

The healthy egg

I refer to a reply that was made recently regarding cholesterol and eggs in the Your Health column on May 11.

In order to answer your reader's question, it is often wise to know something of the subject, before replying. May I point out, that while egg yolk contains the largest amount of cholesterol in the food line, to suggest that eggs have "an enormously high level of cholesterol and should be avoided by those who are concerned about this problem" is rather misleading.

In most healthy human beings, there is a bodily function called "feedback mechanism." This refers to the fact that when the input of foods containing cholesterol is decreased, the level of cholesterol is not automatically reduced in the body. Two-thirds of the daily cholesterol input is manufactured by the body to make up the necessary balance in order for the body to function normally. — Hal Walter, Canadian Egg Marketing Agency.

What's socialism?

The word socialism can be a term of reproach or a beacon of hope, depending upon the attitude of the one using it. Think of the contrast between Hitler's Germany and Brezhnev's Russia and yet that term has been used by each to describe their economies.

So it is with the Scandinavian countries although free enterprise has by no means been abolished in any of them. In Canada the original CCF started out as a party dedicated to the eradication of capitalism and at that time even in Rome, Pius XI, in a famous encyclical wrote that "free competition is dead" and further on added "certain forms of property must be reserved to the state, since they carry with them an opportunity of domination too great to be left to private individuals without injury to the community at large."

The NDP, on the other hand, appears to have retreated somewhat and favors a mixed economy.

All very confusing, isn't it? Even more so is the tendency of many to equate socialism with the welfare state. They are not the same thing at all. To the contrary, the welfare state was brought into being in an effort to offset the evils of the free enterprise system rather than with the idea of introducing a new one. The same with unemployment insurance, which under a sane economic system would almost totally disappear. Even medicare might also be altered because undoubtedly it now encourages unnecessary visits to doctors and too many superfluous tests ordered by the latter. Operations and extraordinary expenses, yes, but normal visits should be paid for by the patient, who, under a new order, would have sufficient income to look after such matters himself. Likewise as to pharmacare.

What is needed these days is a serious and careful study of the many difficulties which face us. Nothing like it was done in the recent election, all parties being content to play up what they thought the people wanted to hear rather than offer a comprehensive analysis of some very difficult problems. To me socialism is simply mutual co-operation as against individual greed, with intelligent planning its first necessity. — F. L. P. Anderson, 409—2174 Cadboro Bay Road.

Light area above indicates path on which Skylab debris might fall.

By RICHARD D. LYONS
New York Times

WASHINGTON — The Skylab space station, a one-time symbol of man's ability to habitate space that now seems emblematic of man's inability to plan ahead, is slowly dropping back to earth, coming 100 yards closer to destruction with every revolution of the globe.

If the observations of the precision radars of the North American Aerospace Defense Command and the calculations of the mammoth computers of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) are correct, the huge spacecraft will splatter through the atmosphere in about two weeks.

And this re-entry promises to be the most spectacular and the most dangerous in the 22 years since the first space satellite was placed in orbit.

Consider that Skylab weighs 77 tons, is the size and shape of a Dutch windmill 12 stories high, and probably will disintegrate into as many as 500 pieces that will be strewn across a global track or "footprint" 100 miles wide and 4,000 miles long.

"What worries us the most are the big pieces," said Richard Smith, the director of the $2.6 billion Skylab project. "About 10 will come in weighing at least 1,000 pounds each."

Two chunks, a steel airlock and a lead film vault, weigh two tons each and if they crash on land, at speeds of almost 300 miles an hour, they very well might dig craters 100 feet deep. Possible injury to people is of primary concern, and teams of medical, technical and legal specialists are being assembled by NASA, the Pentagon and the State Department.

If a disaster does occur, the fault lies in a federal budget dispute of the early 1970's, which delayed development of the space shuttle that was to have boosted Skylab to a higher orbit, perhaps as far away as the sun.

Six years ago, when Skylab was placed in its relatively low orbit, 200 miles up, it was believed that the vehicle would not be in danger of re-entry until 1983. But NASA's planners made one basic miscalculation — that of sunspot activity.

The lifetime of a satellite in low earth orbit depends mainly on the amount of friction that it generates as it bumps into gas molecules in the upper atmosphere. The more molecules, the more drag, the slower the speed, and the closer it drops to the earth.

Sunspot activity is crucial to satellite drag. When sun emits more heat than expected, as has happened, the gasses expand so that the atmosphere extends farther upwards. Thus, more molecules strike the satellite and the orbit decays more quickly.

But these warming trends, called solar cycles, usually can be predicted with ease, and the first such forecast made by Rudolph Wolff, a Swiss astronomer, in 1851.

During the original planning, NASA's experts believed that the current solar cycle would be mild, achieving an intensity of 66 on the index developed by Professor Wolff. But astronomers at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration calculated that the solar activity would be much higher, about 119. Soviet scientists, too, predicted much higher sunspot activity, perhaps reaching 153 on the Wolff index.

NASA stuck to its original calculations. After it was apparent that they were wrong, the fail-safe position was the development of the space shuttle, but that, too, came a cropper.

A potentially disastrous situation now looms, although NASA officials say that there is only about one chance in 150 that anyone will be injured by Skylab's re-entry.

Smith said attempts will be made in the next few weeks to reorient the spacecraft toward what has been termed a "torque equilibrium attitude" that aims at balancing the increasing aerodynamic forces and, the experts hope, will permit the guidance system to maintain stability.

Technically, the manoeuvre should position the vehicle so that, at about eight hours before re-entry, the spacecraft could be rotated to reduce its drag sufficiently to keep it aloft another four hours.

"The point is, if we see that Skylab is going to fall along a track that would take it over heavily populated areas, we would try to delay re-entry for two or three revolutions so that the re-entry track would be over less populous areas," Smith said.

He added, however, if such a manoeuvre were unsuccessful, the spacecraft might start to tumble uncontrollably and "put us in worse condition."

Even in the last few hours before re-entry, it will be impossible to accurately predict the locations where debris might fall, a situation that has led to concern by members of Congress and by Sam Greenlaw, co-founder of Chicken Little Associates, a group seeking to alert people to the potential dangers.

"We think the dangers are far worse than NASA has let on," Greenlaw said. "Some of the larger pieces may come in at 1,500 miles per hour and leave a crater three-quarters of a mile across."

Greenlaw said he and his colleagues are seeking to force the government to make public safety precautions that people should take before re-entry, such as asking them to take shelter.

"But NASA doesn't want to do this because their people think it will cause a public panic," he added.

Smith concedes the dangers and says that giving any advice is risky. Staying indoors, he said, would protect people from small pieces but could be much more hazardous if a large piece were to hit a structure.

Denticare could mean tax cavities

By LEONARD SHIFRIN

OTTAWA — According to a recent Weekend magazine poll, nine out of ten Canadians favor the introduction of medicare-style denticare programs.

That's an interesting statistic.

What could have been equally interesting was the answers to the follow-up question as to how such programs should be financed. But, unfortunately, the results read like a bad translation whose meaning got lost along the way.

According to the poll, only 18 per cent proposed "higher taxes." Another 26 per cent said "deductions from pay."

As deductions from pay happens to be how most people pay their taxes, it isn't at all clear if the second group was saying anything different from the first.

That programs have to be financed out of taxes should be obvious to all. The question is what sort of taxes.

Medicare, for example, is financed entirely out of general revenues — which essentially means the income tax — in six provinces.

Of those questioned in the Weekend poll, 39 per cent foresaw denticare being financed by some sort of payroll tax, either shared by workers and employers or paid by employers alone. The 44 per cent (18 plus 26) referred to earlier may or may not have had the income tax in mind, while the remaining 17 per cent, unambiguously, had "no opinion."

Social impacts

Awareness of the social impacts of alternate forms of taxation has been greatly encouraged in recent years by a number of studies carried out by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). The effect of those studies was evident in the papers presented at the International Social Security Association's recent research conference in Ottawa.

When Germany's 19th century "Iron Chancellor," the conservative pragmatist Otto von Bismarck, initiated the modern welfare state, he also established the method by which it has largely been financed — regressively, with "contributions" of a fixed percentage of earnings, up to a ceiling.

Ceiling legacy

Neither Francis Pavard of France nor Jorn Petersen of Denmark, who authored the conference papers on social programs financing, could find much good to say about that legacy.

What they both objected to most strongly was the ceiling which results, for example, in a person earning $12,000 and a person earning $24,000 contributing the same amount to the Canada Penson Plan this year — a tax rate for the former that is twice that for the latter.

Perhaps in deference to their hosts, what neither mentioned was that an OECD survey of its two dozen member countries found Canada and Ireland the only ones to have established their ceilings — their regressivity thresholds — below even the average industrial wage.

Because payroll taxes require contributions from employers as well as employees, they make workers that much more expensive than machines, said Pavard. And ceilings, he said, compound this anti-employment bias by encouraging managers to opt for overtime by workers whose salaries are already over the contribution limits rather than hiring additional employees.

Sometimes the income redistributive consequences of opting for one tax rather than another to finance a program can be more substantial than the effects of the program itself.

Old pro at helm in Uganda

By COLIN LEGUM

Uganda's grave political crisis, which has occurred just two months after the overthrow of its notorious tyrant, General Idi Amin, has not been solved by the appointment of Godfrey Binaisa as the country's new president to replace Yusufu Lule, who resigned June 20.

The 59-year-old new president, who has been practising as a lawyer in New York, is a totally different political animal from Lule, although both are members of the dominant Baganda community.

Whereas Lule had virtually no political experience, Godfrey Binaisa is a veteran politician who played an outstanding role in the formative years of Uganda's independence.

The important question is whether, with his far greater experience, Binaisa can avoid the mistakes that brought Lule down.

Apart from Lule's lack of confidence, which led him to behave like a schoolmaster over his cabinet colleagues, he made two major mistakes.

The first was his deliberate attempt to undermine the still considerable influence of ex-President Milton Obote, who had been ousted by Amin in 1971.

Lule's second mistake was to invite an open confrontation with the Uganda Consultative Council (virtually a parliament).

Binaisa has emerged as the choice of the council over two rivals. One of these was Paulo Muwanga, known to be a strong Obote supporter.

Binaisa has promised to work in close co-operation with the council, thus eliminating the friction that developed between that body and Lule. But Binaisa is also a strong opponent of Obote, so that this element of conflict remains.

BINAISA
. . . New York lawyer

Binaisa and Obote were at one time close political colleagues, Binaisa having been attorney-general in Obote's government in 1962.

This was a brave decision on his part, since he was one of the very few Baganda to openly side with Obote in the difficult days when the Kabaka (king) of Buganda was mobilizing the Baganda in a bitter political struggle to oust Obote — a conflict that ended in the Kabaka's downfall in 1966.

In the following year, Binaisa broke with Obote because he was opposed to the way in which his leader proposed to change the country's constitution. But, unlike other former Obote supporters, Binaisa did not welcome Amin's coup in 1970 and chose to go into exile. He established a successful small law practice in New York.

The truth is that nobody can tell where the political allegiance of the majority of Ugandans now lies. This can be decided only through elections, which must be preceded by a new constitution for the country.

Binaisa is, above all, a democrat committed to constitutionality, as he demonstrated when he resigned as attorney-general. If he is able to maintain his government's unity for the next two years, the prospects look promising for Uganda's return to the robust democratic republic it was at its independence in 1962.

Meanwhile, the bitter hatred of the deposed dictator, Idi Amin is such that any hope he might have of fighting his way back to power can be ruled out completely.

String of villages?

By DOUGLAS FISHER

Several weeks before the federal election several of us were quizzing Joe Clark about his idea of Canada. His responses brought me up short. Since then I've been pondering why they shocked me.

Clark's assessment is very widely held in Canada among people 40 years of age and younger. I see the attitude most clearly in B.C. and Alberta and among the kids in universities.

Clark is not a proponent of a strong national identity. He isn't just burbling when he says Canada is "a collection of communities." "Patriotism" or other exceptional manifestations of a single powerful bond — say as in 1972 in the last-ditch hockey win in Moscow — even the huge effort in the two great wars — these were to Clark, "extraordinary." He agreed the responses in those wars, even those to the despairs of the great Depression, reflected a single-minded, largely common, national cause. But in the continuum of our federation, these were exceptions, not the regular. We are many communities, not one or even two. These communities are contiguous as provinces and overlapping as regions, particularly in their economies.

Clark's idea of Canada postulates regionalism, and the association of regions in governmental terms through the provinces.

Where I and my ilk looked to Ottawa first, to what we tended to think of as "the central government" or the prime government, the idea which has largely repaced it clearly gives primacy in role and function to the governments closer to hand to the people, the provinces.

This kind of decentralization has its ironies, for example, in the shock it really is to me and my kind. It also is rather odd in the face of Canada as the most inter-knit of all countries by modern communications.

We've put in place the applied technology mooted by philosophers of the global village like McLuhan and Innis but now we're turning back, figuratively-speaking to the merits of a string of villages.

Today's Markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market rose sharply in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Trading in shares of Dundee Palliser Resources Ltd. was halted at about 11 a.m. at the company's request pending an announcement. The stock last traded at 50 cents.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said class A shares of Goldale Investments Ltd. will be posted for trading for the first time July 4 in the industrial category.

Among industrials, Husky Oil gained 2½ to $59½, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas 2¼ to $75¼, Canadian Pacific Investments 1⅜ to $33, Ivaco A 1 to $19¾ and Shell Canada ⅞ to $25⅝.

Aquitaine of Canada lost ¾ to $37¾, Sterisystems Ltd. 10 cents to $2.65, Maislin Industries ¼ to $5¼, Celanese Canada ¼ to $6 and Bell Canada ⅛ to $21⅝.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Energy issues paced a broad stock-market advance Thursday in the first trading since the oil-exporting countries set their new pricing plans.

Analysts said there was some relief among investors that the forces of moderation within OPEC, led by Saudi Arabia, held firm against pressure from more militant members for even larger increases.

But they also noted a bit of disappointment that the Saudis made no decision to increase production. Stepped up production would tend to ease the current tightness in world oil markets.

Energy issues on the active list included Occidental Petroleum, up ⅜ to $24⅛; Exxon, up 1 to $53¼; Gulf Oil, ahead ⅜ to $27⅜; Texaco, up ⅝ to $27¼, and Louisiana Land and Exploration, up 2⅛ to $37.

Montreal

CP Ltd. was up ¼ at $34¼, Carling O'Keefe ¼ at $6⅛, Consumers Gas ⅜ at $24¾, Hudson's Bay Oil 3½ at $75, Imperial Oil A ¼ at $38¾, Inco ¼ at $24⅜, Ivaco A 2⅝ at $20, Noranda Mines A ¼ at $52¾, Norcen Energy Resources ¼ at $25⅛, Rolland Paper A ⅛ at $9⅛, Shell Canada 1 at $25⅝, and Walker-Gooderham A ⅜ at $43.

London

Industrials and oils firmed, banks were unchanged and mines eased.

Canadian shares were mixed.

The daughter of a woman found strangled on Mother's Day last year told a B.C. Supreme Court jury Wednesday she was sure a man she saw nearby and in a photograph shown to her by police was the man accused of the killing.

Kelly Forbes, now 10, was giving evidence in the eighth day of the trial of Tommy Ross Jr., 20, who is accused of first degree murder in the death of Janice Forbes, 26, at her Queens Avenue apartment May 14, 1978.

The girl said she had been playing outside with two companions around mid-day when she saw a dark-skinned man wearing a long, black leather coat, leather gloves, an Afro hair style and cap. He was holding the apartment block entrance door as she walked in.

When she climbed the stairs to her mother's suite, 207, the same man was standing in the corridor next to the elevator, the girl said. She said she went back downstairs because "he didn't look friendly."

She pointed to the accused as that man.

Later she identified in court a photograph of a rough sketch drawn on the back of a door. A previous witness said this was a drawing of a man she and Kelly had seen at the apartment.

She also told the court police had shown her a folder containing a group of pictures identified earlier as containing eight photos of black men, including the accused.

At the preliminary hearing, of which a transcript was produced as an exhibit, Kelly agreed she had pointed to a picture and said, "I think that's him." But she then had pointed to another photo in the group and said, "Oh, that's him."

The photo was identified as No. 7, which in earlier evidence was represented as the accused. Kelly was asked to look at the picture and at the accused.

"I'm sure of No. 7. They're the same person," she told the court.

In cross-examination the girl said it was true she had said at the preliminary hearing she knew she had picked the right photo because she had seen a picture published in a newspaper.

But she told defence counsel Douglas Christie at the behest of Mr. Justice Alan Macfarlane that she had not seen the newspaper picture until after she picked out the photo shown to her by police. That made her absolutely sure she had been right when she pointed to picture No. 7, she said.

"Is there any small possibility that you might be wrong?" Christie asked.

"I don't think so . . . only if he had a twin," the girl replied.

Kelly also agreed that at the preliminary she had said there was a slight possibility of error in the identification, but that she was aware of what might happen to her or the accused if she did not tell the truth.

The trial was adjourned to 2 p.m. today.

SERVING BRITISH COLUMBIA SINCE 1894

Before the judge

A city man was given a suspended sentence and ordered to do 200 hours of community service work after he was found guilty Wednesday in provincial court on a charge of dangerous driving laid after a Jan. 26 traffic accident in which a young woman died.

Judge William Ostler said that it had to be kept in mind that Ronald Cheeke, 17, of 1664 Burton, had not been charged with criminal negligence in the death of a passenger in his van, Janice Campbell, 18.

Ostler said there was a reasonable doubt that Cheeke had entered the Cook and Johnson intersection against the light but it was conclusive that he was travelling at an excessive speed and consequently driving in a dangerous manner.

An 18-year-old city man who had already spent eight days in jail was sentenced to an additional day after he pleaded guilty to two parole violations.

The court was told Randolf Westman of 48 Montreal had failed to report to his parole officer March 6, and hadn't completed the community service work ordered as part of his parole set Feb. 2.

Westman decided not to do the community work because it interfered with a job he'd just obtained.

Judge Harold Alder said he should have worked out some other arrangement with his parole officer.

Two Alberta men who ordered a $35 meal in a downtown restaurant Tuesday but were unable to pay were sentenced to one day in jail after pleading guilty.

Judge Alder asked Robert Giebelhaus, 18, and Danny Tischer, 17, both of Leduc, what they thought he should do about sentencing. They said that once they had hitch-hiked back to Alberta they would repay the $35.46.

When pressed by the judge they both gave their word they would make restitution, avoiding the necessity of placing them on parole to ensure repayment.

Yves Van Der Auwekera of 1429 Denman was fined $500 after he pleaded guilty to a charge under the Unemployment Insurance Act of applying for a second social insurance number (S.I.N.) in 1976.

The court was told he applied for the number under a ficticious name to obtain credit at several stores.

"A new name doesn't change your responsibilities," Alder told him, adding that he ought to really go to jail.

A 21-year-old man pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance and obstructing a police officer.

The court was told Gary Smith of 132 Menzies was shouting in front of Victoria General Hospital April 30 and while being escorted away threatened a police officer, and was abusive. Smith denied threatening the officer.

He was given two sentences of 30 days each to be served concurrently.

Judge Fred Green this week committed two men to stand trial in county court on a charge of arson.

Anthony John Mettes, 21, of 1039 View, and Paul Leonard Joseph Taylor, 25, of Langley, were charged in connection with an October fire at a Broad Street disco.

Nine-month term for bank worker

A 45-year-old woman who stole $18,000 from her employer, the Toronto-Dominion Bank, was sentenced in county court Wednesday to nine months in jail.

Laurel Patricia Way, 284 Beach Drive, pleaded guilty to a series of offences between April 1, 1974, and June 1, 1978.

Judge E.J.C. Stewart refused a Crown application for an order of restitution on behalf of the bank on grounds that although there are appropriate occasions when restitution may be ordered by a criminal court, this was not one of them.

"Leave the parties to their civil remedies," Stewart said.

He said he found it hard in this case to apply proper principles of sentencing. Rehabilitation was not a factor, he said, suggesting the accused would have no difficulty and prison would not assist to that end.

Stewart said he was not concerned about repetition of that offence or any other. The family had endured much agony in the past year, and "there's more to come," he noted.

"In criminal matters much of the punishment often falls on others."

The woman had succumbed to financial pressure, and being a person of apparently good character, found it easy to commit fraud, the judge said.

"Many people find it hard to make ends meet. If everybody adopted a fraudulent solution our society would be a shambles."

The price for her action had to be paid, he said.

"I have to think of all those employers who want to trust their employees . . . and of all those who carry out their duties in an honest manner without resorting to fraud."

Net out for underage drinkers

The provincial government plans to crack down on underage drinking in bars, Consumer Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen said Wednesday.

Neilson said in an interview the problem is getting out of control and the first step will be to increase inspections in bars.

He also said his ministry is considering higher fines for hotels and for any person caught drinking in a bar under 19 years of age.

The ministry has carried out a pilot project in Prince George where the police stroll through bars on a regular basis with the permission of the operators. Nielsen said the program has been so successful in reducing underage drinking and preventing trouble that he intends to implement it throughout the province.

"The ministry will continue to assist land owners when possible, unless a fire is the result of the occupier's negligence," he said.

Most of the protesters are from Salt Spring Island.

The minister said land owners will be billed if the fire results from an infraction of burning permit conditions.

The occupier would also be billed if he failed to employ his own resources fully in supppressng the fire as required by the forest officer.

In the event the owner is absent and there was no physical occupation 24 hours before discovery of the fire, the ministry would take action and the owner would not be billed.

Lone MD says funds insufficient

The sole doctor on Gabriola Island says he needs more money to maintain his clinic against high overhead and rising costs.

Dr. Damian Metten, who has been on the island since November, 1976, said in an interview that funding for rural community doctors is not sufficient.

He said he is meeting with health ministry officials in July to discuss his request for increased funding.

Meanwhile, a delegation for the 1,000 island residents will meet with officials in Victoria next week to discuss communfty concern about insufficent funding.

Clinic for Zeballos

Medical help is on its way to Zeballos and true love is helping speed it along.

A temporary medical clinic will be installed almost immediately in the isolated north Island community of 400.

A permanent one will be built as soon as possible, Health Minister Bob McClelland said today.

Both will have the regular services of a registered nurse, but only because a worker for the Tahsis Company is engaged to be married this summer and he will bring his bride — a registered nurse — home with him.

The health ministry made the moves for the clinics on the advice of public health official Dr. Kenneth Benson who flew into the area to investigate the medical problems after complaints from the village's itinerant husband-and-wife doctor team.

Their complaints about working conditions led to the closure of the building they had been using for their weekly clinics, effectively ending all medical services in the area.

A temporary clinic already set up in a trailer in Campbell River may be moved to Zeballos within a few days, McClelland said.

And the Comox-Strathcona Regional District has been instructed to make plans for the construction and operation of a permanent facility, possibly adjacent to the new firehall also slated for construction in the near future.

The arrival of the RN is an added bonus.

"Don't think for a minute we insist millworkers marry nurses, but . . ." McClelland said with tongue in cheek.

Starting July 1, there will be some changes made to Unemployment Insurance.

Unless you worked at least 20 weeks in the past year, these changes could apply to you.

In December 1978, Parliament changed the Unemployment Insurance program. Changes starting July 1 mean that some people will have to work longer before they can qualify for Unemployment Insurance benefits.

Please remember, these UI changes affect only those claims which start on or after July 1, 1979. And, the changes may or may not apply to you. So please read on to see if you are affected.

(You'll find terms such as "Weeks of Work", "Qualifying Period", "Variable Entrance Requirement" (VER), and "Unemployment Rate" marked by an asterisk (*). For easier understanding, see the box "Explaining UI terms" at the end of this message.)

Here are the details of those changes.

Have you worked 20 weeks or more in your Qualifying Period*?

If so, this message does not apply to you. For you, the number of weeks you need to qualify for regular UI benefits and for UI illness and maternity benefits, or the one-time benefit at age 65 has not changed.

Are you working for the first time?

To get UI benefits, you will usually need 20 Weeks' Work*, no matter where you live.

An exception to this would be if you were on a training course approved by the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission for at least 14 weeks in the year before your Qualifying Period*. Then you would only need 10 to 14 weeks, depending on the Variable Entrance Requirement* where you live.

Are you starting to work again?

If you're coming back to work after being away a year or more, you'll usually need 20 Weeks of Work* in your Qualifying Period* before you can qualify for UI benefits.

This applies wherever you live.

This 20-week rule won't apply, however, if you were in any of the following situations for a total of at least 14 weeks in the year before your Qualifying Period*:

These are the situations that count:

1. You were getting temporary worker's disability compensation from a provincial program;
2. You were receiving sick or maternity leave payments;
3. You were out of work because of a labour dispute at your place of work;
4. You were on a Commission-approved training course;
5. You were on UI claim;
6. You were working in insurable employment.

So, for first-time workers and those coming back to work:

A. If you were in any of these six situations for a total of at least 14 weeks in the year before your Qualifying Period*, then you need only 10 to 14 Weeks' Work* in the Qualifying Period*, depending on the VER* where you live.

B. If none of the six situations fit your case, you will have to have worked at least 20 weeks to qualify for UI benefits.

NOTE: If you are returning to work after being away more than one year, the 20-week rule will normally apply to you.

Did you get UI benefits in the last year?

If you got UI benefits in your Qualifying Period*, there are new rules that may apply to you – unless the Unemployment Rate* in your area is over 11.5 per cent.

1. If a claim you had in the last year has not run out, you may be able to renew it.
2. If yours is classed as a new claim, you will need the usual 10 to 14 Weeks' Work*, depending on your local VER*, plus up to six "extra" Weeks of Work*. The number of "extra" weeks you'll need depends on how many weeks you got on your previous UI claim. You need one "extra" week (up to a maximum of six) for every week you got over the VER* needed in your area.

Here's an example: You need 12 Weeks' Work* in your region (your local VER*) to qualify for benefits the first time. On your last claim, you drew 15 weeks' benefits before going back to work. Now, you would need the usual 12 weeks, plus three "extra" work weeks. (That's the difference between the 12 weeks you needed to work and the 15 weeks of benefits you drew. In total you would need 15 Weeks' Work* to qualify again within one year. The most anyone needs anywhere is 20 weeks of work to qualify.

Again, please remember, when the Unemployment Rate* in your area is over 11.5 per cent, this rule won't apply to you. You'll need only 10 Weeks' Work* to qualify for regular UI benefits.

Other changes have been in effect since January 1979:

- The weekly benefit rate was reduced to 60 per cent of your average insurable earnings (from 66²/₃ per cent).
- Most people employed for less than 20 hours a week are no longer covered by UI.
- Higher-income claimants may have to repay part of UI benefits drawn in the 1979 tax year. This will only affect people whose income, including UI benefits, is over $20,670. This will be explained when you get your 1979 tax return.

These things haven't changed:

Just as a review, these points haven't changed:

- You may still get UI illness and maternity benefits and the special benefit paid at age 65 if you've worked 20 weeks in your Qualifying Period*.
- There's still a two-week waiting period before UI benefits start.
- To get regular benefits, you must still be available for and looking for work each day you are on claim.
- You must report any work and earnings while on claim.
- You can be disqualified from getting benefits for up to six weeks if you quit your job voluntarily, you were fired for misconduct, or if you turned down a suitable job offer.
- You can still appeal a decision by UI to deny you benefits.

Explaining UI terms:

Weeks of Work

This means weeks of work that are insurable for Unemployment Insurance. Most employment of 20 hours or more a week is insurable.

Qualifying Period

What UI calls your Qualifying Period is the 52 weeks before we start your claim. Or if you had a claim in the last year, it's the time since that claim started.

Variable Entrance Requirement (VER)

To qualify for Unemployment Insurance benefits, you must have worked from 10 to 14 weeks in insurable employment during your Qualifying Period*. The exact number of weeks depends on the Unemployment Rate* in the economic region where you live. (See below.) If you don't have enough weeks to qualify when you file your claim, we keep your application in the computer file. If the Unemployment Rate* changes so you then have the weeks you need, we will send you a notice.

Unemployment Rate

For Unemployment Insurance, the Unemployment Rate used for each of the 48 economic regions of Canada is not the current monthly Statistics Canada unemployment rate in each region. It is a three-month average of seasonally adjusted monthly unemployment rates.

Rat-infested freighter sent for fumigation

Federal health officials ordered Wednesday a Colombian-registered freighter apparently plagued with rats sent to Vancouver for fumigation.

The order was issued after 30 local longshoremen unloading lumber from the 5,250-ton Manuel Mejia at Ogden Point Tuesday refused to carry on with the job after seeing rats running around the hold.

Harbormaster George McKay said rat control measures were taken and there was no concern about health.

McKay said the crew of 45 was not ordered to stay aboard.

Hookers change shift to beat rap

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ladies of the night are working mainly afternoon shifts to avoid a recent police cleanup aimed at ending the confusion that has left prostitutes virtually free to ply their trade in Vancouver for more than a year.

The main targets of a 30-man police task force are street hookers, the most visible of the 800 women and 150 men believed to work as prostitutes in Vancouver.

In the last month, at least 20 women have been charged with soliciting. The charges are the first since a Supreme Court of Canada decision in February, 1978, which police and prosecutors said tied their hands in the fight against prostitution.

Bail for the women has included the condition that they stay away from well-known hookers' haunts. Two men, both potential customers, also have been charged.

Police won't talk about their current campaign, but its effects are obvious.

The usual line of ladies has disappeared in front of Air Canada's downtown office, kitty-corner from the old provincial courthouse and within a block of half a dozen major hotels.

Beat cops and unmarked cars prowl the West End's residential side streets, replacing the prostitutes and cruising clients that used to crowd the corners.

Transvestites, teen-age boys and hookers still flaunt themselves in the area most afternoons, but police are planning to put more men on day shift to curb that trade as well.

Local nightclub owners, residents, merchants and even the hookers say they can see the effects. Some Americans, who called this a safe haven, have gone home — many having been deported and some part-timers, out for a lucrative weekend fling, giving up as the risk increased.

Other prostitutes are reported to have moved into clubs.

However Penthouse club owners Joe Philippone says hookers haven't flocked back to his place as he expected they might.

"If they come, I let them in," he says. "We'll take their money as long as they behave themselves."

Police officials won't comment on their plans and probably will remain silent until the current charges go to court in the fall. Officers on the street, however, say the crackdown is a drain on manpower.

"Police are wasting so much time when there are robbers and murderers," says one woman. "They're too busy trying to babysit us. Let's face it, prostitution is the oldest thing going."

Wide-shooting RCMP in clear

COURTENAY (CP) — A police officer who accidentally fired a shotgun blast into the side of a mobile home while trying to kill a pack of dogs will not be disciplined, an RCMP spokesman said Wednesday.

S. Sgt. Roy Wharton said the incident was an "unfortunate accident" but that no action would be taken against the officer, who he declined to identify.

He said the officer was called early Monday to a farm on the outskirts of this community after a farmer reported that dogs were chasing his livestock.

Wharton said the officer found three or four dogs there, one with a chicken in its mouth.

The officer hit the dog with one shotgun blast, but five pellets from two other blasts strayed, striking the mobile home and a parked car belonging to Bruce Babcock.

Babcock said he has decided not to file a formal complaint and was happy with a police offer to pay for damage.

Hospital recount

SURREY (CP) — A second recount of ballots has confirmed the election of two pro-abortion candidates and one pro-life candidate to the 11-member Surrey Memorial Hospital board.

Walter Wiebe and Dr. Douglas Humphreys, who support retention of the hospital's therapeutic abortion committee, received 1,085 and 1,081 votes respectively.

Don Terry, who opposes the hospital's abortion policy and wants to eliminate the committee, received 1,079 votes.

The results mean the hospital will continue to perform abortions. If three pro-life candidates had been elected to the board, it would have been dominated by members who are against abortions.

SFU fees up 8%

BURNABY (CP) — The Simon Fraser University board of governors has approved an 8.3-per-cent tuition fee increase, effective May 1, 1980.

Under the new rate, undergraduate students will pay $292.50 a semester, compared with the current $270.

The University of Victoria recently approved an 8.3-per-cent fee increase, effective in September. The University of British Columbia has proposed a 10-per-cent increase effective April 1, 1980.

Victim of blaze

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chow Shee Yip, 70, was identified by police as the woman killed Wednesday when she jumped from the second-floor window of a burning East End rooming house.

Beverley Billy, 30, and her two-year-old daughter Angela also died. Their bodies were found inside the house after the fire, which quickly engulfed the old, wood frame building.

Fire officials said the blaze apparently was caused by someone smoking in bed.

Armed pickets guilty

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — Two members of a union involved in a bitter eight-month strike-lockout at the Gibraltar mine near here were found guilty in provincial court Wednesday of dangerous use of a firearm.

William Gray and Donald Nolan, members of Local 18 of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers, were charged last August after an incident on the picket line.

Court was told that shots were fired at the tires of a tanker truck delivering a load of diesel fuel to the mine.

Nolan also was convicted of assault causing bodily harm. The charge was laid after a window on the same tanker truck was shattered, cutting one of the truck's occupants.

The two men will be sentenced August 20.

Glimpse of maturity fades, MLAs revert to old form

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Any faint hopes that B.C.'s 57 MLAs would be more reasonable, responsible and mature after the May 10 election returned a more balanced house have turned out to be exactly that — faint hopes.

The deterioration of the goodwill and co-operation that optimists predicted would exist have gradually slipped away.

Wednesday night, 16 days after the legislature opened, Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) was turfed out of the chamber.

The actions that resulted in Macdonald's dismissal reflect the attitude of the legislature not just in this session, but in recent years.

Macdonald refused to withdraw an accusation that Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis was covering up information requested by Macdonald more than a week ago.

Curtis objected to the word cover-up, and through Speaker Harvey Schroeder, asked it be withdrawn.

Macdonald said he believed it to be true and therefore couldn't withdraw.

Standing orders left Schroeder no alternative but to ask Macdonald to leave although by that time, Macdonald had already left, lured by television reporters wanting to give him instant publicity in the corridor outside the chamber.

It was the first time that Macdonald, a 19-year veteran of provincial political wars, had been asked to leave the chamber.

A week ago, Macdonald asked Curtis if it was true that government employees had been whisked over to Vancouver to assist in getting out the last issue of the B.C. Government News the day before the election was called.

The newspaper-style government information sheet was sent out at the taxpayers expense, containing information about the budget which was tabled only the day before the election was called.

The paper had to get out in one day for if it was mailed after the election was called, then the Social Credit party rather than public funds, would have had to pay for it.

Macdonald wanted to know how much taxpayers' money was spent in the hurried effort to get the paper out.

Curtis did not provide Macdonald with the answers and after a lengthy afternoon and night sitting Tuesday, the two tangled in the hallway outside the chambers.

Macdonald asked again when the information would be forthcoming. Curtis said he didn't like his attitude in demanding the answers and said Macdonald began shouting at him.

The next day Macdonald again asked for the information during question period and Curtis refused to answer.

Later he said he intentionally left the information on his desk because of Macdonald's attitude the night before.

Then the game began in earnest. Curtis said Macdonald had made an arrogant demand and insisted he wouldn't be intimidated.

Macdonald retorted with his cover-up allegation.

Curtis asked that the remark be withdrawn and Macdonald said he would withdraw only if Curtis first withdrew the words arrogant and intimidation.

Schroeder suggested both members withdraw and asked Macdonald first.

Rotary names new top man

BCDC profit hits $1 million

The B.C. Development Corp. made an operational profit of $1 million during the year ended March 31 on revenue of $3.8 million.

The Crown corporation's annual report, tabled in the legislature Wednesday, said the firms' progress "paralleled the upsurge in economic activity in the province."

"The major policies and strategies enacted two years previously have successfully turned the development corporation around, indicating future years will give continuously advancing profits."

During the year the business assistance division approved 90 loans and guarantees in the amount of $47.9 million — an increase of 117 per cent over the previous year.

The report said the company is involved in industrial park projects in Delta, Prince Rupert, Chetwynd, Kamloops, Delta, Port Hardy, Ashcroft and Merritt.

The increases could see the basic world price jump from $14.55 U.S. to $18 with a maximum price, when surcharges and premiums are added on by some countries, of more than $23 a barrel.

The huge jump, even if Saudi Arabia increases production, will likely mean shortages because other Arab states, such as Iran, are cutting back production.

They can make more while producing less.

Ohira said the seven summit leaders laid heavy stress on the need to develop nuclear power as an alternative energy resource. He declared a priori safety questions should not be allowed to impede development of nuclear power or coal resources, while stressing the importance of safety measures in the use of such energy sources.

The Japanese leader said that economic matters cannot be discussed without taking energy into consideration because its cost and availability are central to prosperity.

He said all leaders agreed that their economies have improved since the Bonn summit a year ago, but the oil crisis now confronted them, obscuring the "clear view" they had about the economic future.

Ohira declared that "bold and cooperative guidelines" were needed by the seven nations to meet the energy problem.

Ohira said it was important for the Western nations and Japan to develop a dialogue with the 13 OPEC countries.

Also today, Jim Gillies, adviser to Prime Minister Clark said Canadian oil prices will move gradually toward world prices but there will be no quick jump.

Any fears that Canadian business might have about economic disruption resulting from a sudden jump in oil prices are ill-founded.

No B.C. subsidy on gas, oil: Bennett

The provincial government has no intention of subsidizing gas and oil prices to ease increases expected this year, Premier Bill Bennett said Wednesday.

At the last first-ministers' conference all premiers agreed to begin closing the gap between the international prices and subsidized lower Canadian prices.

NDP leader Dave Barrett said the higher prices will put more profits into the coffers of the major oil companies.

Based on that, he asked Bennett why he decided not to interfere with the price hikes since B.C. has the power not to go along with the increases.

But Bennett said this could only be done with subsidies and the government has no intention of subsidizing oil and gas prices.

The price of Canadian oil will go up by $2 a barrel this year but it will still be still well below the international price which is facing another boost following the current meetings of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

OPEC oil price raised 24%

means is a terribly painful additional twist on the inflation screw. Perhaps even worse, it will push all the economies in the direction of recession. The only real solution has got to be curbing our purchases of oil."

At their Tokyo summit, Carter and the leaders of six other major industrialized nations are trying to set specific oil-import ceilings for their countries for the rest of this year and 1980, U.S. officials said.

The OPEC agreement was worked out late Wednesday night, prolonging the meeting into a third day, after moderate and radical members "narrowed the gap gradually until they got where they are," said Cyrus Ebrahimzadeh of the Iranian delegation.

Libya, Iran and Iraq had demanded that the price of OPEC's benchmark crude oil be raised to between $23 and $27 a 42-gallon barrel.

The increases in the base price are the largest since 1974, when prices quadrupled during the Arab oil embargo.

The OPEC oil ministers will meet again in Caracas, Venezuela, in December. But delegates would not rule out the possibility of another meeting before that if market conditions changed.

through senior management" at Air Canada.

Mackasey also pointed out that a recent report of the Royal Commission on Financial Management and Accountability stressed the importance of formal links between the chairman of a Crown corporation and the federal government.

The role of a chairman is generally regarded to be to report to the owners and, in the case of a Crown corporation, such as Air Canada, to report to the government and the public. Meanwhile, the chief executive officer operates the corporation.

Mackasey added that if the federal government wished to change the role of the chairman it would have to alter the Air Canada Act, which governs the corporation.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin, announcing Pratte's resignation in open court, said the judge had made the decision several months ago.

The chief justice said that Pratte was afflicted with arthritis shortly after his appointment to the court less than two years ago.

Pratte's resignation also was announced in a written statement by Justice Minister Jacques Flynn who said Pratte wanted to resign in March because of poor health but had been persuaded to stay until the end of the court's current sitting.

"The government is grateful to Mr. Justice Pratte for having agreed to complete the current sitting despite health problems," Flynn said.

Quiet oasis in C. Saanich? Don't believe it, says chief

Chief Bob Miles says crime has increased 340% in five years in his area and he needs four more men to tackle the problem at a cost of $120,000

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

It may be growing pains or perhaps just a sign of the times, but Central Saanich is no longer the nothing-ever-happens, crime-free oasis that its inhabitants have long cherished.

Chief Bob Miles says the municipality is in the midst of a crime wave — not big as big city crime waves go but big enough for his 20-square mile, largely rural community.

Statistics tabled at today's meeting of the police board reveal just how much the problem has mushroomed.

In 1975 the then nine-member force investigated 381 Criminal Code offences. During the first five months this year the force, now 10 officers, investigated 512 crimes. By the end of the year the tally will exceed 1,200, an increase over the five-year period of more than 340 per cent.

The increase is even more striking if compared with the figure for 1969 when there were 117 offences reported. That represents a jump of more than 1,000 per cent in the past decade. Over the same period the police force has doubled.

"We're not the quiet little backwater we used to be," Miles said in an interview.

Last year the municipality had a murder, a rape, two indecent assaults and the first case ever in the Greater Victoria area of a person charged with using a dog to kill another animal.

Violence seems to have a way of cropping up in the community. Three weeks ago a policeman shot a suspected prowler, wounding him in the chest and shoulder, when the person appeared to threaten the officer with a weapon.

The incident wasn't without parallel.

In April, 1973, a man being taken into custody stabbed former police chief John Gelling in the chest. Another officer, Sgt. Ross Yuill, also was slashed before Gelling shot the prisoner in both legs.

The most troublesome areas, however, are burglaries and vandalism.

During the first five months this year there were 81 break-ins reported in the municipality. If the trend continues the total will be more than 190 by the end of the year. Compare that with last year's 51, and 1975's 46.

Miles attributed the increase to several factors. Police had success in 1977 in catching a few people responsible for a number of the break-ins and the courts, in turn, handed down fairly stiff sentences. Neighborhood Watch also was still relatively new then, but the program is now losing its impact because of complacency.

Vandalism has shot up just as much. For the five months ending June 1 the force received 160 reports of vandalism involving private property and 25 involving the public sector. Miles projects the year-end figures will be 384 and 60 respectively.

Last year there were 234 reported cases of vandalism involving the private sector and 17 in the public. In 1975 the numbers were 81 and 28 respectively.

The vandalism is likely much worse than the statistics reflect, Miles said.

"You could probably multiply those figures threefold to get the actual picture."

Miles is concerned about the number of incidents never reported. In some cases residents may feel intimidated by vandals into keeping silent, he said. Others prefer to resolve the problems themselves.

Miles knows of one farmer who caught a trio of youngsters uprooting plants and extracted 50 cents from each of them as a fine and warned them not to come on his fields again.

But the worst offenders for failing to report incidents are the schools which often hide vandalism as a maintenance cost, Miles said.

He didn't want to comment but some police officers feel the deception is deliberate.

As one observed: "No principal or teacher wants to admit a problem of vandalism in his school. That would be an admission he doesn't have control over the kids and has failed to instil in them a proper feeling of belonging or esprit de corps."

In other police areas, the statistics are less dramatic. There's been a slow but steady rise in the number of motor-vehicle accidents. To June 1 this year there were 92. By year end the forecast is 220. In 1975 there were 168.

The number of traffic tickets handed out by officers has dropped over the years. In 1976 there were 778 tickets issued; last year there were 613 and this year's total is projected to be about 560.

"The men say they are so busy investigating criminal offences they don't have time to do traffic work," the chief said.

Miles feels the answer to the growing crime problem has to be, in large measure, a greater community involvement.

For the police part that means, in a nutshell, more preventive policing.

But Miles said the present size of the force makes it impossible to maintain, let alone develop, effective crime prevention programs.

With only 10 officers, manning shifts is a constant headache. Last year there was only one officer on shift for 40 per cent of the time. Overtime costs soared to more than $40,000 of which $27,000 was taken in cash.

Miles said the growth in population has been a major factor in the crime increase. But it's a fact few people seem to want deal with, he said. Politically it is more advantageous to support no-growth policies. The reality, however, is the municipality is growing at a faster rate than the politicians are prepared to admit. In 1976 the census put the population at 7,405. The current official figure is 8,493 set by municipal planners.

But Miles disputes the figure. He noted that since 1977 there have been 331 single-family dwelling and 452 multiple living units built in the municipality. Even if one added only two persons per dwelling, a low estimate, it would still mean the population is at least 500 more than what the planners say.

Miles said the police officer's workload is fast-reaching the critical point. The average number of cases each officer will handle this year is projected to be 122. The provincial average is about 70.

Miles said he will ask for authority from the police board to hire four more officers.

This would cost the taxpayers $120,000 and bring next year's police budget to about $630,000, but Miles said that's the price the community will have to pay to bring the crime wave under control.

SKATE POWER advocate Denise Heinekey, left, says roller skating's all the rage in the U.S. and she's hoping her big bid for a local resurgence will prove successful. It's healthy exercise that anyone can enjoy. Roller-skating is also proving a great way to beat the gas shortage in the U.S., says John Hopkins, of Philadelphia, shown here zipping through the downtown traffic on a 15-block trip to work.

Wheeling and dealing

The latest way to beat the fuel shortage in the U.S. is skate power. Roller variety.

Roller skating — mostly for recreational and exercise value — has reached almost epidemic proportions in Los Angeles, San Fransciso and other West Coast cities.

And if student Denise Heinekey has anything to do about it, Victoria will join the ranks of West Coast cities hit by the roller-skating bug.

Denise, who's just back from a year of graduate studies at the University of California in Berkeley, has opened Victoria's first rent-a-roller-skate shop at 255 Menzies.

For Denise, who is spending the summer at her parents' home at 1710 Blair in Gordon Head, it's the only way to go.

"It's healthy, invigorating and it's fun," she says.

She's so convinced Victorians will get hooked that she sold her car and bought 35 pairs of skates and an assortment of knee and elbow pads.

She had to return to San Francisco to make the purchase. Skates aren't available in Canada unless you're prepared to put up with a long, long wait.

A well-known local athlete, who once representing Victoria at the Junior Olympics in Guelph, Denise says roller skating has become the latest fad to sweep California.

Persons use them to do their shopping, to visit friends and even to commute to work. One enterprising woman in Los Angeles has even started her own delivery business using skaters who dart in among the traffic.

Denise got her first taste of roller-skating last fall when she enrolled at Berkeley in a graduate course in preventive medicine. She says she was surprised at the number of students who skated to and from classes.

Anyone with a modicum of balance can pick up the skills, she says, although previous ice-skating experience is an advantage.

Pickets assigned to church project

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

Trade union officials in Victoria are upset because a Roman Catholic parish has awarded a construction project to a non-union firm.

Pickets appeared for about an hour this morning at 2065 Carrick where a $120,000 rectory is being built for St. Patrick's church by Frisia Construction Ltd.

John Schibli, secretary-treasurer of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, said today the pickets were there to let people know the organized trades are concerned.

"The last thing the church should be doing is supporting right-to-work," he said.

Church spokesmen were not available for comment this morning.

Frisia is one of a number of non-union construction firms in the area which supports the so-called right-to-work movement whose followers believe every worker should be free to join or not join a union.

Organized labor is vehemently opposed because its members feel right-to-work would weaken the employees' position and eventually lead to the collapse of unions.

. . . 'pretty upset'

Schibli said the pickets will return to St. Patrick's because the construction trades want the parishioners and the Catholic Church to know "that we are pretty upset."

He said it is not the size of the project that concerns his group, it is the moral issue involved.

Schibli said the Catholic Church in Victoria has traditionally supported organized labor and in general the church has taken a strong stand against the right-to-work movement and come out in support of a strong union movement.

"This is really bad for the church's image," Schibli said, adding that the Catholic Church should be taking a strong leadership position.

Indians may tax industry

"Our tax bill came to $18,500 — the revenue we get from our lands is $11,850."

He said the band has leased some of its reserve land in Esquimalt to businesses and industries.

"We pay for the installation and maintenance of sewers, water and other services," Albany said.

"The government hasn't one cent invested in our services.

"Non-Indians even use our roads which we pay for from band funds," he added.

The chief said the only way to offset the government taxes on leased lands is for the band in turn to tax the businesses for services.

"The band this fall will consider a proposal to act like a municipality and tax the businesses," Albany said.

Albany said most of the land leased to businesses was given on the understanding the firms would employ and train Indian people in skills.

"That is what they promise when they seek to lease some of our lands," he said.

"But once the contracts are signed, they seem to forget their promises.

"I have yet to see a company official come to the reserve looking for our people to employ."

De Roo aid asked in school dispute

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo has been asked to look into a disagreement over hiring practices at St. Joseph's Catholic Elementary School.

St. Joseph principal Roger Heaton resigned Wednesday after the board fired two teachers "out of the blue" giving them only two days notice.

Heaton said the board cannot justify its actions morally or legally and that he has asked De Roo for an investigation.

A superintendent should be hired to oversee board activities, he said.

All 10 teacher's handed the parish-elected school board a unanimous vote of no confidence Wednesday after the firings.

St. Joseph parents' association president Whelda Steeves said today parents will demand a meeting with the board and that some parents have already written to De Roo and the education ministry.

"The board seems to have assumed the supreme power," Steeves said.

She said attempts by parents and teachers to meet with trustees for an explanation have been unsuccessful.

The board should hire and fire on the recommendation of the principal, Steeves said.

Former board chairman Henny Voorsluys and several other trustees resigned over the issue and three teachers have indicated they will look for other jobs next year, Heaton said.

Morale is at an all-time low and the situation will get worse in September, he said.

Heaton said he is also considering writing to Joe Phillipson, head of the independent schools department of the educatiion ministry.

Hard feelings emerged during contract negotiations earlier this month and trustees threatened to fire four non-Catholic teachers.

Heaton said he would resign and was reassured no teachers would be fired.

They are on continuing contract and must receive at least 30 days notice.

Kite caper isn't kaput

A planned kite tow across the Juan de Fuca Strait Saturday is still on despite a mishap Tuesday night involving two of the three travellers.

Barry Heibert, a 36-year-old employee of the Executive House Hotel, said today he and two companions — Shannon McLeod and Bernard Stewart — intend to go ahead with their 60-kilometre "kite krossing" from Crescent Bay, Wash., to the Inner Harbor.

Heibert and McLeod were practising for the attempt earlier this week, in an inflatable craft pulled by kites, when one of the kite lines broke.

After a costly air and sea search lasting several hours the pair, who had no engine aboard, were picked up by a Canadian Coast Guard rescue boat.

"We have to make it now," Heibert said today. "We've got a lot of bad publicity on that but it's important we get the money that's been pledged for the United Way."

He said the accident occurred because they were experimenting with a lighter 270-pound-test line which obviously wasn't strong enough.

On Saturday the trio will use 400-pound-test line, flying six to eight kites on a trip they expect will take up to four hours.

The crossing with a start time of about 10 a.m. will be attempted unless winds exceed about 25 miles per hour.

DROPOUT FASHION of Linda Siegel caused a stir at Wimbledon tennis championships Wednesday when she fell out of her low cut dress in reaching for a shot. She was beaten by Billie Jean King 6-1, 6-3. (AP wirephoto).

Borg gets by a squeaker

LONDON (AP) — Bjorn Borg spent a few seconds contemplating what it would be like to lose the Wimbledon singles title he has won for the last three years.

"There is no way I can keep on winning," Borg said Wednesday. "I have to lose eventually. You can't win every single match in every single tournament."

Those thoughts ran through his head during his 2¾-hour win over India's Vijay Amritraj in the second round. Amritraj led two sets to one and 3-1 in the next set, and it was at that stage that Borg felt defeat was a real possibility.

"I thought I would probably lose," admitted Borg, who went on to win 2-6, 6-4, 4-6, 7-6, 6-2.

"When we got to 3-1 in the fourth, it was vital for him. But he got a little nervous when he realized how important it was. I thought that I had been down like that before, and I get more relaxed when I see a match might be slipping away from me."

Relaxed or not, Borg moved into top gear to come back and take the fourth set tie-breaker 7-2. The final set was smoother sailing.

"When I get relaxed I take a few more chances," said the 23-year-old champion. "I tried to hit winners on service return and mostly I made those shots. I feel I am a better player when I am down a break than when I am level or in front."

Borg, who says this is the toughest draw he has ever had at Wimbledon, has a day to ease a slight leg strain before he meets American Hank Pfister in the third round.

Second-seeded American John McEnroe also had a bumpy ride into the third round. The aggressive 20-year-old New Yorker dropped the first set to Britain's Buster Mottram, but went on to win 6-7, 6-2, 7-6, 6-2.

Only one seed fell in the men's singles. American John Sadri downed Spaniard Jose Higueras 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5. Sadri is ranked 35th in the United States, but the 12th-seeded Higueras, fifth of the 16 men's seeds to fall, seldom plays on grass.

In the women's singles all the top seeds advanced, but 16-year-old American Pam Shriver had to withdraw with a shoulder injury that has troubled her for two weeks.

DEFENDING men's champion, Bjorn Borg of Sweden returns shot to India's Vijay Amritraj. Borg survived tough battle in second-round match and came from behind to win 2-6, 6-4, 4-6, 7-6, 6-2. (AP wirephoto).

Infield, Nolan's bat keeps Mussels hot

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Shane Nolan was one of the pre-season question marks in camp but his bat and an obliging rival may have prolonged his stay with Victoria Mussels.

As a pitcher, Nolan's training-camp efforts were "fair" but manager Bill Bryk decided to keep Shane around because he could also play the outfield and carried "a good bat."

The good bat put Nolan to work Wednesday. He made the lineup as the designated hitter and drove across five runs, with some help from an opponent, as the Mussels pounded Walla Walla Padres 11-4 and surged back into contention for the Northern Division lead.

The victory, Victoria's fourth straight, coupled with Grays Harbor Mets' 6-2 conquest of Bellingham, enabled the Mussels to close to within one game of the Mariners.

Walla Walla second baseman Greg Thys "helped" Nolan get started. Victoria snapped a 4-4 deadlock with one run in the fifth inning and Nolan came to bat with the bases loaded and two out. He lofted a tough fly to right. Thys, one of three Walla Walla players in the chase, called for the ball but dropped it for a three-base error that cleared the lanes and broke the game wide open.

Nolan's two-run single added to the rout in the seventh.

Mussels survived because a sharp infield compensated for their pitchers' liberalism. Starter Calvin Beal gave up eight walks in four innings and fireman (and winner) John Caraher issued three more the rest of the way but Mussels' infield reeled off four double plays.

Caraher allowed only one hit in his five-inning stint.

First baseman Emil Drzayich and rightfielder Nick Kintz both slammed out two hits for Mussels, who tackle Grays Harbor tonight and Friday at Royal Athletic park.

Playoff for golf crown

A playoff will be required to decide this year's holder of the Willie Park Driver, the first time an extra round has been necessary to determine the district's Inter-Club Golf League champions.

Gorge Vale and Glen Meadows will meet in the playoff next Wednesday at a neutral course still to be determined.

Gorge Vale defeated Uplands 7½-1½ while Royal Colwood upset Glen Meadows 6-3 to force the first tie in history. Both finished with 28 points, four more than Colwood.

Only professional John Morgan, beating Rob Ferguson 4 and 2, could muster a singles victory for Uplands.

GLEN MEADOWS 3 COLWOOD 6

Don Gowans lost to Dave Mick 2 and 1; Phil Scot beat Ron Howard Jr. 1 up. Glen Meadows won best ball 1 up.

Bill Penny lost to Bob Hogarth 4 and 3; Marty Richards beat Brian Gandy 6 and 5. Colwood won best ball 3 and 2.

Bottlers in form

A balanced scoring attack made the difference Wednesday as the intermediate Goodwill Bottlers tripped Saanich E.J. Hunters of the South Island Junior "B" Lacrosse League 15-12 in a pleasing exhibition at the Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Mike Thomas, Frank Wendt and Gord Christaens each scored three goals for Bottlers while Gord Taylor and Leigh Pollock each counted two. Will Reid and Shawn Dheensaw scored one apiece with John Crowther and Jim Lightbody both drawing four assists.

Lyle Gurney scored three goals and set up two for Saanich while Len Carter scored once and picked up five assists. Gerry Bell and Lorne Cardiff both added two goals.

Jackson returns

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees returned slugger Reggie Jackson to their active roster today and placed pitcher Ed Figueroa on the 21-day disabled list, retroactive to last Monday.

Jackson has been on the disabled list since June 2 when he suffered torn muscle fibres in the lower part of his left leg. During the period he was disabled, he requested that the Yankees trade him following the return of Billy Martin as manager of the club.

The first appearance of Kevin Alexander as a bona fide Shamrock probably had a lot to do with it. Why not?

Because the fact is that in Kevin's long-heralded debut at Memorial Arena, Wednesday, the Shamrocks blew Coquitlam Adanacs right out of the place 21-8.

And Kevin, in his first game this year and his first with the Irish since being let out of the box by Nanaimo Timbermen Tuesday, scored four goals and had one assist in the Rocks' Western Lacrosse Association victory.

Alexander, as the script would have it, scored the first goal of the game the first time he got the ball.

He didn't score again until the second period when the Rocks were home free, and he topped off his debut with two sparkling goals 15 seconds apart in the third period.

But there was more, much more, and Shamrock coach Bill Munroe was more than pleased with the result.

"It's a new team more or less this year," he remarked. "It's taken a while to get things going, but tonight had to be our best effort. Now, if I could only get a full lineup into the game," he added.

Munroe was alluding to the fact that the Irish still are hurting with five regulars unable to play.

They are: Dave Thomson, bruised shoulder; Kevin Kennedy, bad knee; Gerry Cadwallader, recovering from an appendectomy; Larry Bell, broken finger; and Joe McCrea, twisted knee.

But, with or without a full lineup, the Rocks were loose Wednesday and the senior B replacements, as in past games, again proved they could play in the WLA.

Besides,

— It was the Rocks' seventh straight game without defeat;

— It was the highest goal output of the year;

— Victory moved the team into a second-place tie with New Westminster Salmonbellies, one point behind the league-leading Adanacs;

— And the Irish have three games in hand on Adanacs and two in hand over the Bellies.

Chris Hall, for the second straight home game, set another personal high, eight points on two goals and six assists (last week he had five goals).

In addition, three players — Jim Lynch, Dan Green and Bill Marechek — had hat tricks, Marechek for the second straight night. Norm Baker had five assists and Green and Dave Lowden each had three assists.

And through it all, goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer, who leads all 'keepers in the WLA, was a tower of strength as the Rocks led 7-1 after one and 14-5 after two.

He was the first of many Irish stars.

Mark Valastin, Dan Wilson and Dave Durante each scored two goals for Coquitlam with singles going to Randy Delmonico and Gord Quilty.

Alexander said he was more tired after the first period than he was in the third as he appeared to get his second wind. He said it would take him a few weeks of intensive training to get back into condition.

"They didn't check me that closely considering it was my first game back," he said.

Meanwhile, Marechek, as one of the senior B replacements — Mike Yeager, Reid and Dwayne Ferguson were the others — may have played himself onto the big club.

General manager Leon Hall said after the game that a decision would be made on Marechek before June 30, the final signing date.

As for coach Bob Salt of the Adanacs, if he was impressed by the Shamrocks' new show of power, he wasn't about to let it be known.

Taylor entry made Queen's Plate pick

TORONTO (CP) — E. P. Taylor's entry of Bold Agent and Bridle Path was made the 7-5 favorite today for Saturday's 120th running of the Queen's Plate at Woodbine Racetrack.

The 1¼-mile Plate, North America's oldest continuously run stakes race, has attracted nine Canadian-foaled three-year-olds for the $163,910 gross purse, with $106,541 going to the winner.

The Queen Mother, who last attended Woodbine for the 1974 Plate, will be on hand to present the Queen's personal gift of 50 gold sovereigns and a gold cup valued at $9,700.

Sandy Hawley, who won last year's race with Taylor's Regal Embrace, will be aboard Bold Agent and Robin Platts will ride Bridle Path, the rabbit for Windfields Farm.

The horses drawn today, in order of post positions, were: Nonparrell, 30-1; Ram Good, 30-1; Bold Agent; Linda's Laughin, 8-1; Great State, 12-1; Coupe de Chance, 5-1; Steady Growth, 9-5; Bull Regent, 10-1, and Bridle Path.

Coquitlam juniors shock Esquimalt

COQUITLAM — All of a sudden, Coquitlam Adanacs are enjoying some light in the Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League basement.

Sparked by Al Manning's five-point performance, the Adanacs improved their playoff hopes considerably Wednesday by tripping Esquimalt Legion 11-6. Coquitlam closed to within three points of the fourth-place Legionaires, who suffered their second loss in as many nights.

Manning scored three goals and set up another pair for the winners. Dan Gamble and Geordie Dean each scored twice for Adanacs, who held period leads of 3-2 and 8-3. Dave Shillington, Cory Carlisle, Mike Reelie and Dave Derpal scored one apiece.

Edwards joins Chiefs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Running back Jimmy Edwards, the Canadian Football League outstanding player of the year in 1977, will sign with the National Football League Kansas City Chiefs, the team has announced.

Edwards, 5-feet-9 and 185 pounds, played with Hamilton Tiger-Cats. He was the outstanding player in the CFL in 1977, when he rushed 250 times for 1,581 yards and six touchdowns. He also caught 39 passes for 223 yards.

He became a free agent after Hamilton put him on waivers following a dispute with Ticats coach John Payne at the start of training camp this year.

CLEARWATER TEAM BLANKED IN DOUBLE BILL

Bombers will long remember Budgets

CLEARWATER, Fla. — Umpires weren't in a benevolent mood to help Victoria pitcher Mark Smith celebrate his 20th birthday, but the Pan-American Games-bound Budget fastball team made it a pretty good day their lefthanded fireballer.

The Canadian men's champions added to their reputation Wednesday by scoring a shutout sweep over Clearwater Bombers that sent local softball followers running to the record books.

They discovered that Victoria's 1-0 and 2-0 victories Wednesday marked the first time since 1959 that Clearwater, 10 times U.S. national champions and runnersup in 1978, had been shut out in a doubleheader by any rival.

But they couldn't remember when a team has blanked the fabled Bombers for 19 successive innings. Bombers split Tuesday's exibition series by winning the first game 2-0, then bowing 3-1. The single run in the third inning marked the end of Clearwater's scoring.

Dave Ruthowsky, on a three-hitter, and Smith, with a one-hitter, kept the shutout string going Wednesday.

The Canadian team left today for Puerto Rico and the Pan-Am Games.

Smith, who lost his no-hit bid when pinch-hitter Buck Delatorre led off with a single in the bottom of the seventh, overcome several rulings that might have spoiled his birthday.

Smith struck out six but also walked seven as umpires consistently called him for not toeing the pitching rubber. Another ruling also deprived Smith of a triple. He led off with the triple in the third inning but was called out when the base ump ruled he didn't touch second base.

Flawless afield, Budgets collected five hits in each game. A walk to Carl Walker and successive singles by Dennis Eckert, John Green and Bob Holness produced the only run in the opener. Walker and Randy Benn also singled for Canada.

Green's single, a sacrifice by Holness and run-producing singles by Reggie Underwood and Alden Govenlock accounted for the two runs in the nightcap.

Holness and Smith were the others to connect off the offerings of Steve Nielsen.

"After a rather mediocre performance in Santa Rosa (last weekend)," said field manager Harvey Stevenson, "this was just what we needed to get us pumped up for the games. You don't beat a team of Clearwater's calibre, three out of four, very often."

SOFTBALL ROUNDUP

Pair of aces click again

The Senior Women's Softball League has been something of a Debbie-and-Sandy show this season, and the good pitching program continued without interuption Wednesday.

Debbie Derkson of Stocker North Americans and VI-90's Sandy Milliken, the dominant hurlers, didn't let up.

The unbeaten Derkson fashioned a three-hitter to claim her eighth straight victory as Stockers edged Dryco Breakers 2-1 and Milliken extended her won-lost record to 8-1 as VI-90 cruised by Bemister Welding 5-1 at Hyacinth Park.

Another Sandy, Ferguson, supplied the offensive power to help Derkson's cause.

Ferguson tripled to drive in Stockers' first run, then came back later to score the game-winner on Lorna Lundeen.

At Central Park, John Martin's run-scoring single in the bottom of the seventh drove in Paul Kraeling with the winner and broke up a smart pitching duel as Tally-Ho nipped K&R Sooke 2-1 in Stuffy McGinnis Men's League play.

John Barnes held Sooke to three hits, including a triple by Mike Lee that produced the lone K&R run in the fourth.

Martin scored Tally-Ho's first run in the first inning.

Athletics struck for three runs in the first and carried on for a 4-1 victory over Jack Mears Realty in Heywood Men's League play at Heywood Park. Glen Coffey, a recent transfer from the Stuffy McGinnis League, claimed the pitching victory while Dwain Robinson supplied the offensive punch with two runs, two hits and a run-batted-in.

Strathcona beat James Bay Inn 7-3 and Victoria Ambulance maltreated Esquimalt Rebels 16-2 in Macdonald Men's League play.

Hector sparks 'Caps

By The Canadian Press

Newly-acquired Italian star Piero Prati paid immediate dividends for Rochester Lancers in his first start and only his second appearance in a Lancer uniform.

Prati scored two early goals Wednesday to lead the Lancers to a 2-1 North American Soccer League victory over Seattle Sounders.

In other games, Vancouver Whitecaps beat Atlanta 3-1, Philadelphia shaded Houston 3-2, Washington blanked Edmonton Drillers 2-0, Detroit toppled Fort Lauderdale 8-2, San Diego edged Chicago 2-1, New York clipped Portland 3-1, Los Angeles took Dallas 3-2 in overtime, California beat Tampa Bay 2-1 and New England shut out San Jose 2-0.

Steve Buttle scored Seattle's lone goal.

Two goals by Kevin Hector, his 13th and 14th of the season, propelled Vancouver to its win over Atlanta. Alan Ball scored Vancouver's other goal on a penalty and also set up, along with Victoria's Bob Bolitho, Hector for his second.

Alan Green scored twice to propel Washington to its victory over Edmonton, the ninth consecutive loss for the Drillers.

Twenty golds, vault over Cuba is Canada's goal

By CHUCK SVOBODA
CP Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's 425-member Pan-American Games team departs this week for Puerto Rico hoping to win 20 gold medals and move ahead of Cuba in the total medal count.

No one expects to challenge the predominance of the United States at the Games, which open Monday but the Canadians see a chance to overtake Cuba for the runner-up spot.

Dr. Martin Bielz, a Game plan co-ordinator in Ottawa, says an analysis of the Pan-American countries during the last year indicates Canada could reach that goal.

"Canadian athletes should obtain second place behind the United States, ahead of Cuba and followed by Mexico, Brazil and Honduras," Bielz wrote in the recent issue of Champion. "Although Cuba can expect to obtain more gold medals than Canada, we should rank higher when all the medals are counted."

When all the medals were counted at the last two Pan-Am Games in Mexico in 1975 and at Cali, Colombia, in 1971, Canada was third behind Cuba and the over-all champion U.S.

Canadians won 18 gold medals at the last Pan-Ams. The Canadian Olympic Association lists only 16 golds, but they count only one for weightlifter Rus Prior for total lift. The system in effect at that time also gave him gold medals for his snatch lift and clean and jerk lift for a total of three golds.

The COA technical director, Jack Lynch, estimates the Canadians this time could collect 12 to 20 gold medals.

Swimmer Graham Smith and pentathlete Dianne Jones-Konihowski, stars of the over-all Canadian victory at last year's Commonwealth Games in Edmonton, are again among those favored to bring home gold.

Smith, who still holds the world record in the 200-metre individual medley he set at last year's world championships, is favored to win that event again and could also pick up gold in the breaststroke events.

Other gold-medal prospects on the swim team include Cheryl Gibson of Toronto and Nancy Garapick of Halifax.

Swimmers brought home only one gold medal in 1975 and they're looking to get back to their 1971 production of six.

Jones-Konihowski is the Pan-Am defending champion in the pentathlon and leads a strong track and field contingent that also looks for winning performances from the likes of discus thrower Carmen Ionesco of St. Bruno, Que.; high jumper Debbie Brill of Aldergrove, B.C.; hammer-thrower Scott Neilson of New Westminster and Phil Olsen of Nanaimo in the javelin.

Track and field athletes won four gold medals for Canada in 1975 and five in 1971.

Gold-medal prospects in other sports:

Gymnastics — Elfie Schlegel of Toronto leads a Canadian team that expects to earn some medals although team manager Olivia Chow isn't predicting gold because of the uncertainty of whom the U.S. will send. The Canadian team is without two of its top stars — Philip Delesalle of Victoria, and Karen Kelsall of Surrey, both sidelined with injuries.

Synchronized swimming — Helen Vanderburg of Calgary is the defending world champion in the solo event and is favored to win that title at San Juan, as well as the duet event with new partner Kelly Kryczka.

Diving — Janet Nutter of Toronto, gold medallist four years ago in Mexico, is back on the team along with veterans Linda Cuthbert and Scott Cranham, also of Toronto, and Ken Armstrong of Ingersoll, Ont.

Judo — Brad Farrow of Delta, B.C., is another returning 1975 gold medallist who could win again in the 65-kilogram class. Ray Takahashi of Ottawa is considered a favorite in the 60-kg event.

Wrestling — Egon Beiler of Kitchener, Ont., and Howard Stupp of Montreal are both favored to repeat their Mexico City victories.

Softball — Bob Remple, executive director of the Canadian Softball Association sees good chances for a gold medal by the men's team since Canada is represented by Victoria Budgets, the team that tied for first place, under the name of Victoria Bate, at the last world championship tournament. In the women's competition, says Remple, "we feel we have a good chance for a medal and an outside chance for the gold as well." This is the first time medals will be awarded for softball at the Pan-Am Games, although it was a demonstration sport in 1967 at Winnipeg.

Field Hockey — Team manager Victor Warren of Vancouver recounts Canada's progress this way: "In 1967 we were fourth; in 1971 we were third; in 1975 we won the silver. Obviously the only step left to us is the gold medal this time.

"We lost the final last time to Argentina 1-0 and the following year we beat Argentina in Montreal during the Olympics so we think, all things being equal, we have a pretty good chance to win this time."

Yachting — Jerry Roufs of Montreal and Charles Robitaille of Sillery, Que., and Tom Matthews and Jay Cross of Toronto are listed as gold medal possibilities in the 470 class, while Jeff Boyd and Gordo Crothers of Kingston, Ont., and Peter Jones of Toronto are favored in the Lightning class.

Shooting — Veteran international competitor Jules Sobrian of Omemee, Ont., is a leading contender in the rapid-fire pistol event, and John Primrose of Edmonton, former world trap champion, is another top prospect.

Cycling — "We're looking forward to a number of medals both on the track and on the road," said team manager George Trattner. "We're not guaranteeing golds, but I think we will be up fairly close to first." Gord Singleton of Niagara Falls, Ont., is among his top riders.

Fencing — Team manager John Apsimon of Ottawa lists his women's foil team as rating "an excellent chance of getting a gold." Louise Marie Leblanc of Ottawa and Chantal Payer of Quebec are rated tops among the foil fencers.

Weightlifting — Marc Cardinal of Ottawa and Michel Mercier of La Sarre, Que., both gold medallists at the Commonwealth Games, could reach the medals at San Juan.

Archery — Competitors such as Ron Lippert of Kitchener, Ont., and Joan McDonald of Toronto were on Canada's second-place team at the Championship of the Americas last year.

Boxing — Ian Clyde of Ottawa gets team manager Stan Smith's nod as the best prospect for a gold medal, and Smith says he hopes for a silver and three bronze medals as well.

In equestrian jumping, tennis, water polo, basketball, baseball, and volleyball, Canadians hope to be in the medals but none is predicting gold.

Soccer is the only one of the 25 sports in the Pan-Am Games in which Canada is not represented, having been eliminated in the qualifying round.

For travel, knit shirts with crests and navy woven pants

Our rowers 'lookin' good' in medal quest at Pan-Am

By JIM CRERAR
Times staff

They've come a long way in terms of sartorial elegance since the original Olympics in Greece when athletes competed au naturel in events restricted to men. Gym strip and ladies' day were to come later.

A couple of millenia have since gone by and the last thing Canadian athletes in next month's Pan-American Games have to worry about is what to wear in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

In fact, competitors will come home with enough clothing to start a rummage sale.

UVic rowing coach Al Morrow, who will guide Canada's fours without coxswain at the Pan-Ams, has a list of clothing given athletes and coaches for the trip.

The official sponsor and co-ordinator of the Canadian team's uniform and clothing requirements, Simpsons-Sears Limited will outfit some 450 athletes and 122 officials.

The wardrobes include a parade uniform made up of pants, a safari shirt, T-shirt, two pairs of socks, a belt, shoes and hat; a training uniform consisting of a training suit, two pairs of sport socks, two T-shirts, shorts, sweatbands and a bathing suit; and a travel uniform comprising pants, sport shirt and shoes.

To haul it all, competitors get luggage — a three-suiter size with wheels and a two-suiter size — when they depart from Toronto Thursday.

And in case you're wondering where they'll put all the soiled socks, that's no problem. Everybody gets a sport bag on arrival at San Juan.

Clothes may make the man or woman in fashion circles, but they don't guarantee medal victories.

Well-dressed or not, however, Morrow expects Canada will do well in rowing, which takes place July 2-8.

The U.S. and Cuba are the main competition and our best chance could rest with a couple of young Victorians in double sculls — Pat Walter and Bruce Ford.

AL MORROW
. . . coach of fours

"We've been constantly building since September," Walter explained, "and Leif has been instrumental in developing us."

Morrow agrees.

"Leif's biggest plus is that he's very well organized and as a result has created a good environment to develop rowers," he said. "Scullers are generally an independent breed and traditionally don't get as much coaching as the eights."

"But Leif spends a lot of time with us," Walter interjected. "In June of last year, for example, we had some trouble with syncronization of our blades and he made a lot of adjustments to our shell. He makes sure we're not let down by faulty equipment."

On parade in lightweight fabrics of beige and pale blue

Walter, a 20-year-old Chilliwack native entering third-year biology at UVic, and Ford, a 24-year-old UBC grad working for the fish and wildlife branch in Victoria, already hold a victory over the favored U.S. scullers, splitting a pair of races with them at a Can-Am regatta in Los Angeles last October. That was the last time the Victoria pair lost a race.

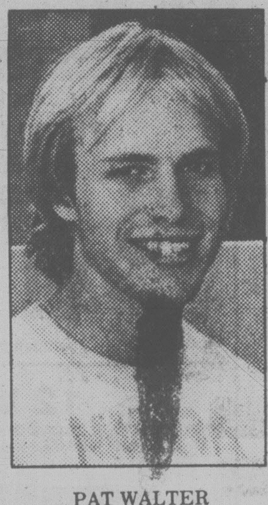
Earlier last year they won the Canadian sculls title in Montreal, in the process beating the Cubans who were there on an exchange visit.

A week later Ford and Walter won the Canadian Henley at St. Catharines, Ont.

Ironically, they missed last year's world championships because they came up flat in qualifying trials, but not this time.

"They just missed out on the time standard," Morrow said. "It was just a case of peaking at the wrong time, but this year they literally cruised through some very tough standards for the Pan-Ams."

Morrow, who coached the Vancouver Rowing Club eights before joining UVic last year, accepted an invitation to coach that club's fours without coxswain representing Canada. The crew consists of Brad Hankinson, Morris Hutchins, John Gjervan and Dave Dunnison.



PAT WALTER
. . . in double sculls

Morrow was surprised when they qualified.

"None of them have been on a national team," Morrow explained. "Two of them haven't even rowed in a national final. But they're young and impressionable and I'm looking for that as a possible plus."

In the last Pan-Ams in Mexico City in 1975, Canada won a gold (coxed four), a silver (coxed pair) and a bronze (fours without cox which included Morrow in the shell).

Canada is sending more rowers this time, entering seven of the eight events — single, double and quad sculls, pairs and fours without coxswain, coxed four and heavy eight.

How will they do?

"Our standards were so tough," Morrow replied, "that all seven Canadian qualifiers' times would put them in the first three finishers against the rowers they will face in Puerto Rico."

KELLY JACKLIN, KATIE BURKE TO ROW FOR CANADA

Two Victorians in women's world

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The odds on Canada winning a gold medal at this year's world rowing championships are up in the air with the breakup of the women's national pair-oared crew.

Susan Antoft of Halifax, who combined with Betty Craig of Brockville, Ont., for a silver medal at the 1978 world championships, will be missing from this year's squad. The 25-year-old Nova Scotian is not listed on the team scheduled to fly to Europe this week for a series of regattas prior to the Aug. 28 - Sept. 2 championships in Yugoslavia.

Antoft and Craig teamed up in 1977 and promptly won a bronze in the Amsterdam worlds. They dominated North American women's competition last summer and wound up only nine hundredths of a second off the winning East German pair at the 1978 worlds in New Zealand.

Two weeks ago, however, the two girls were fifth at the U.S. women's rowing championships in Detroit. Then they joined the rest of the national women's rowing team candidates at camp in Peterborough.

As a result, the 22-year-old Craig is to row with 26-year-old Monika Draeger of Niagara Falls in the pair. But it won't be the first time Draeger has contested this event on the international scene.

She paired with fellow University of Western Ontario student Becky Stevenson at the 1974 and 1975 worlds, then switched to the cox four at the Montreal Olympics. She was in the same boat at the 1977 worlds (finishing fourth) and was in Canada's bronze medal eight at last year's worlds.

The two will be joined by 14 other oarswomen, two from Victoria, two coxswains and two male coaches under manager Carole Eastmure of Peterborough on their 10-week European tour covering international regattas at Amsterdam, Lucerne and Essen before going into camp in Belgium to prepare for the worlds at Bled, Yugoslavia.

The squad will row an eight and a cox four with two spares also to compete in the pair through preliminary regattas.

The Victorians are Kelly Jacklin who has been named to the eight and Katie Burke who will row in the cox fours.

The eight is listed as Joy Fera of Vancouver; Chris Neuland of Toronto; Gail Cort of St. Catharines; Kathy Lichty of St. Catharines; Jacklin; Kim Gordon of Burnaby, Delores Young of Brockville, Ont.; stroke Tricia Smith of Vancouver and cox Ilona Smith of Vancouver.

The cox four is Iona Mahtab of St. Catharines, Anne Fenton of St. Catharines, Lynn Purdy of Burnaby, stroke Burke and cox Leslie Anderson of St. Catharines.

The spares are listed as Kathy Lund of London, Ont., and Heather Clark of Woodstock, Ont., with Stan Murdza of St. Catharines and Alan Roaf of Ottawa to share the coaching.

Inglis to Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Billy Inglis, who coached Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League most of the 1978-79 season, was named coach of the Sabres' Rochester farm team in the American Hockey League today.

Inglis, 36, admitted he was disappointed at not being able to land a coaching job in the NHL.

Inglis was promoted as Sabres' coach last season when the team fired Marcel Pronovost and general manager Punch Imlach.

The Sabres made it to the playoffs, but were eliminated by Pittsburgh in the first round.

After Scotty Bowman was named general manager in Buffalo, he designated himself as coach and also named an associate coach, Roger Neilson, who coached at Toronto last season.

JETS SIGN LESUK

By The Associated Press

As if things weren't bad enough for the rest of the American League East, Jim Palmer is alive and well in Baltimore once again.

"It looks like the master's back," Baltimore manager Earl Weaver crowed after his ace right-hander baffled Cleveland with a four-hitter to give the Orioles a 3-1 victory. "Jim Palmer is a master and he pitched a masterpiece."

"My arm still has a little pain," said Palmer, recently sidelined for 20 days with tendinitis in his pitching arm. "But it felt a lot better than it did the last time I pitched."

The win kept Boston from cutting into Baltimore's four-game division lead. The Red Sox beat Detroit 3-1. In other AL games, Texas and Kansas City moved into a first-place tie in the West, one percentage point ahead of California. The Rangers beat the Angels 4-2 and Kansas City bombed Oakland 10-3. Milwaukee outlasted Minnesota 9-8 and Seattle edged Chicago 4-3.

"We did everything right," said Palmer, after his five-strikeout, two-walk performance gave the Orioles their 18th win in the last 20 games. "I even got away with walking two batters in one inning."

The only thing he didn't get away with was feeding a fastball to Toby Harrah who, leading off the ninth, sent it over the fence for his ninth home run of the season. Still, Palmer, 7-3 and a 20-game winner eight of the previous nine seasons, got his first victory since May 29 and first complete game since April 19.

In the National League, Silvio Martinez pitched his third one-hitter of his two-year major league career as St. Louis Cardinals beat Montreal Expos 5-0.

It looked as though it would Martinez's first no-hitter since May 26 of last year while he was with Springfield. But with two out in the eighth, Montreal's Duffy Dyer lined a 1-2 pitch over first-baseman Keith Hernandez.

Martinez, 6-2, came into the game with a 2.38 earned-run average and one complete game, a seven-hit, 4-2 victory June 22 over New York Mets. In his first year in the majors, the 23-year-old native of the Dominican Republic pitched one-hitters against the Mets, three days after joining the Cards, and Pittsburgh.

After Lou Brock dropped a pop up to left field by Andre Dawson with two out in the first inning, Martinez retired 21 batters in a row. He faced 29 hitters, two over the minimum, and used just 117 pitches, a combination of fastballs, sliders and curves. The pitch Dyer hit was a slider, Martinez said.

"It was too much Silvio," Expos Manager Dick Williams said.

Lions drop receiver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wide receiver Thomas Geredine failed to catch a football Tuesday night in British Columbia Lions' 12-6 Canadian Football League exhibition win over Winnipeg Blue Bombers but he'll likely be soon be catching a plane.

The Lions announced Wednesday that Geredine, a 6-2, 189-pounder who was behind holdover Leon Bright on the depth chart, was the only cut after the team's third exhibition game.

The speedy Geredine had caught seven passes for 130 yards and two touchdowns in the club's previous two exhibition victories.

Ali gives up title again . . . this time for good

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali has announced his retirement a couple of times and has been written off by the press on other occasions. But this time, he says, he is finished fighting — and this time it's in writing.

"Yes, that's the truth," Ali said Tuesday when asked if he has sent a letter to Mike Mortimer, chairman of the World Boxing Association championships committee, announcing his retirement as heavyweight champion.

"I'm in a position that I can go no further in boxing," the 37-year-old Ali said.

But he had said it before.

Ali told reporters in the days leading up to his title defense against Joe Bugner in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, July 1, 1975, that it would be his last fight. Three months later he fought Joe Frazier in what was called The Thrilla in Manilla.

And two days after he won a controversial decision over Ken Norton on Sept. 28, 1976, he told reporters in Istanbul, Turkey, "As of now, I am quitting boxing and will devote all my energy to the propagation of the Moslem faith."

Ali fought four more times after that, the last on Sept. 15, 1978, when he regained the WBA share of the title from Leon Spinks.

"I have other battles to fight," Ali said. "I'm going to Russia in two weeks. I am going to talk with President Carter. There are more pleasing things to do than beat up people."

In a rambling interview from his sheltered $850,000 Italian Renaissance mansion in Los Angeles, Ali said he was "going to kick off my world organization," referring to his planned World Organizaztion for Rights, Liberty and Dignity, a non-political group Ali plans to form to foster goodwill among peoples.

He also — with typical Ali modesty — recited his contributions to boxing.

"I've brought a whole world into boxing which has never followed it, including the Communist world and black Africa. I am the first man to predict the exact round in which his opponent will fall. I am the first man to get the title three times," and I am the first man to attract so many women to boxing."

Ali first won the title as Cassius Clay when he stopped Sonny Liston in the seventh round on Feb. 25, 1964. He defended the crown nine times before losing a decision to the U.S. government.

On April 28, 1967, he refused induction into the U.S. Army at Houston on religious grounds, saying, "I ain't got no quarrel with the Viet Congs." He was convicted of draft evasion June 20, 1967, fined $10,000 and sentenced to five years in prison. But he didn't go to prison because on June 28, 1971, the U.S. Supreme Court, by an 8-0 vote overturned Ali's conviction.

"I would do the same today," he said.

On Oct. 26, 1970, Ali stopped Jerry Quarry on a cut eye in three rounds at Atlanta and on Dec. 7, he knocked down Oscar Bonavena three times and stopped him in the 15th round at New York's Madison Square Garden. That set up The Fight, a title bid against champion Joe Frazier for the unheard of purses of $2.5 million each.

Although, it ended in Ali's first pro defeat after 31 victories, it was one of Ali's greatest efforts in a career marked by the unexpected and the spectacular.

Ali was knocked down in the 15th round in losing a unaniomus decision and there were those who felt his career might be finished.

Another fight that could have wrecked Ali's career came at Inglewood, Calif., in 1973. In the Norton rematch, Ali went into the 12th and final round ahead on one official's card, behind on another and even on the third. He won the round and was on his way back to the top of the boxing world, with an important stop at the Garden Jan. 28, 1974, where he scored a unanimous decision over Frazier.

In the African dawn of Oct. 30, 1974, to a battle cry of "Ali booma-yay (Ali kill him)," Ali, who joined Floyd Patterson as the only man to win the heavyweight title twice, knocked out George Foreman in the eighth round in a shocking upset at Kinshasa, Zaire.

Of the Manila fight, he said:

"I was like death. I wanted to quit after the 10th round."

It was one of the greatest of all heavyweight fights, with Ali winning when Frazier, his eyes closed, was unable to answer the bell for the 15th round.

After losing the decision and the title to Spinks on Feb. 15, 1978, he said "I'll be back."

He was on Sept. 16. He stood in a New Orleans hotel room and said, "It's my biggest fight because I'm older and it's my last fight."

It was the 56th victory in a 59-bout career in which his purses topped $51 million.

Hawks still want Hull, but Jet talks called off

CHICAGO (AP) — President Bill Wirtz of the Chicago Black Hawks said Wednesday his National Hockey League team still wants Bobby Hull even though negotiations with Winnipeg Jets have broken off.

Wirtz told a news conference that was called to introduce new coach Eddie Johnston that he would keep trying to acquire Hull.

"We certainly want him back in Chicago, and originally reclaimed him on that basis," said Wirtz. "Bobby says he wants to finish his playing career in Chicago, and what Bobby wants, Bobby will get."

As for goalie Tony Esposito, who is still unsigned, Wirtz said, "We will do everything we can to have a satisfactory contract for him."

Esposito, who attended the session, told reporters the Hawks "are spending a lot of money to improve the team and I would like to be part of it." He indicated, however, that he and the club still were far apart on terms.

Johnston, 43, coached New Brunswick Hawks to a second-place finish in the Northern Division of the American Hockey League last season.

Johnston was a goalie for 16 seasons in the NHL and joined the Hawks 1978.

"There is no doubt that Chicago will have an entertaining team next season," Johnston said. "We have some good young talent, a top draft choice, a premier goalie (we hope) and veteran Stan Mikita. We should have four or five players who can shoot over 20 goals and possibly a couple over 30 — we should open up the game more.

"There is no question if we had Hull it would add 10 points for the season."

B of M plans major move west

CALGARY (CP) — The Bank of Montreal, in a major bid to increase its corporate strength in Western Canada, announced Wednesday it will transfer its chairman to Calgary from Montreal.

The bank, whose assets of $34 billion make it the third-largest in Canada, is aiming to become financier for some major natural resource projects.

It also announced plans to build a $150-million office and commercial building here that officials say will be the tallest building west of Toronto.

Chairman Fred McNeil, to arrive in September, told a news conference the move reflects the increasing importance of Western Canada in the country's economy.

"In our judgment, the time of the West has come and the economic growth here will continue to dramatically exceed the national average."

In an interview, McNeil said political uncertainty in Quebec has diminished the growth rate in that province. It was important to continue the bank's policy of decentralizing in order to be closer to clients in areas of high growth.

But he added it was unlikely the move would mean layoffs in Quebec.

The bank's head office will remain in Montreal, but Ross Curtis of Toronto, deputy general manager and senior vice-president for corporate banking, will join McNeil. The president and chief executive officer, W. D. Mulholland, is stationed in Montreal, while the executive vice-president and chief general manager, S. M. Davison, is based in Toronto.

McNeil said the presence of himself and Curtis in Calgary should expedite the decision-making process and should be of significant benefit to corporate clients.

Associated with the move is the strengthening of the bank's corporate banking unit, a group of specialists who deal with major corporate interests.

The bank says it is the first major Canadian bank in recent times to have a chairman or president in a city other than Toronto or Montreal.

McNeil said the potential of Calgary is so great that corporate business here might overtake that in Toronto.

"You have only got to look at the projects that are being undertaken in Alberta with the oil sands, heavy oil and coal. The financial requirements are huge. We are talking about immense sums."

McNeil sees his role as the bank's "salesman in the West." The bank is likely to grow even more in Alberta in coming years.

Curtis said the bank is acquiring property in Edmonton with a view to constructing a major building there as well.

McNeil is a native Westerner who was educated in Calgary and still owns a ranch south of here.

"In a very real sense, practical as well as sentimental, my relocation here is a homecoming," he said.

The new office building is to be built in the heart of the downtown area. Construction should start later this year and be completed within five years.

Building plans call for two towers, one 57-storeys, connecting a three-storey glass-covered banking area.

Just 4.2% take insulation aid

Only 4.2 per cent of those eligible have taken advantage of the subsidies for home insulation — part of a program to reduce the country's demand for oil by three per cent within a year.

One reason the remaining two million eligible homeowners have failed to cash in, Conservatives say, is that the grants of up to $500 are taxable.

The new Conservative government may remove tax on the grants in the October budget, Finance Minister John Crosbie said in Tokyo where he is attending the world economic summit which has dealt largely with dwindling energy supplies.

Removing the tax would make the program more generous to the average homeowner and would make energy conservation more attractive to the public, Crosbie said.

He said he hopes to come up with a number of other energy-conservation incentives to be included in the October budget, but did not say what specific plans were under consideration.

Public response to the plan was so bad last year that $110 million was chopped from this year's allocation for grants.

Northerners get top dollar

By VICTOR MACKIE
FP News Service

OTTAWA — Persons employed in the Yukon enjoyed the highest earnings in Canada during the first quarter of this year, according to Statistics Canada.

Those working in the Northwest Territories had the second highest earnings in Canada and those employed in British Columbia were in third place.

Those working in the Yukon earned an average weekly wage of $371.96 in April. In March they earned $366.74, in February $354.78 and in January, $343.30.

Employees in the Northwest Territories earned $347.52 in April, $340.31 in March, $331.41 in February and $327.66 in January.

British Columbia workers earned $317.77 in April, $315.60 in March, $310.10 in February and $309.53 in January.

Alberta workers earned an average weekly wage of $295.51 in April, $296.19 in March, $290.99 in February and $289.55 in January.

Ontario and Quebec were in fifth and sixth place respectively.

Wage curb warning as profit decline seen

OTTAWA (UPC) — Huge profits made by companies in the last quarter of 1978 will likely decline later this year and workers should reconsider their demands for higher wage settlements to avoid another round of inflation, the National Commission on Inflation has warned.

Commission Chairman Harold Renouf, in the first of a series of newsletters, said he was concerned that strong advances in corporate profits registered at the end of 1978 and earlier this year would spark another round of accelerating wage settlements.

"There are some signs of an upturn in the size of wage increases," Renouf said in the NCI newsletter.

"The Commission expects, however, that the recent level of profit advances will not be maintained. Slower growth in prices, a slowing in export markets, and faster growth in costs this year are likely to reduce the rate of profit growth."

He also warned workers of the dangers of "going too far in building large wage advances into our production costs on the basis of temporary factors."

The NCI said a number of factors contributed last year to large corporate profits.

They included only a moderate rise in labor costs, a decline in the exchange rate of the Canadian dollar price on internationally traded goods, an increase in plant expansion and the putting to work of idle equipment.

Renouf warned that "long lasting price and wage decisions may be made on the mistaken premise that current levels . . . of profits will persist.

"If this happens — if inflated costs and prices get built into the economy — then an erroneous expectation of higher inflation could turn into a self-fulfilling prophecy."

The NCI was created last year by the Liberal government and has the power of enquiry to establish reasons for excessive price increases. Renouf is the former chairman of the Anti-Inflation Board.

Historic verdict blocks takeover

By PETER HADEKEL
FP News Service

MONTREAL — A Superior Court judge has blocked the Quebec government's planned takeover of U.S.-owned Asbestos Corporation for at least 10 days.

In a precedent-setting ruling, Judge Ivan Bisaillon ruled Wednesday that the government cannot proceed with notice of expropriation of the company's Quebec assets until July 6, when a hearing on an interlocutory injunction will be held.

John Claxton, a lawyer for Asbestos Corp., told reporters the injunction is the first ever granted against the Quebec government in the history of the province.

Sources said the Parti Quebecois government may appeal the decision in the Quebec Court of Appeal.

The temporary injunction is the first shot in what will likely be a lengthy legal battle between the PQ government and General Dynamics of St. Louis, Mo., which owns 54.6 per cent of Asbestos Corp., stock.

The Quebec government has already passed legislation allowing a provincial Crown corporation, the Societe Nationale de l'Amiante, the power to assume ownership of Asbestos Corp., assets simply by serving notice.

Under terms of the expropriation law, compensation would be decided afterwards.

General Dynamics says the expropriation law is an attempt to bully the company into selling Asbestos Corp. at an unrealistic price. The government has offered $42 a share for the company while General Dynamics' price is $99.75.

Asbestos Corp., the province's second-leading producer of asbestos fibre, made profits of $16 million last year. The company's stock is trading at around $44.

In months of discussions with the Quebec government, General Dynamics has said it does not want to sell Asbestos Corp., and the opposition parties in the Quebec National Assembly have jumped to its defence.

Observers view the current legal proceedings as a stalling tactic which could delay any expropriation move until after the next provincial election when a new Liberal government would kill the move.

In its injunction petition to be heard July 6, Asbestos Corp. argues that the expropriation law, Bill 121, is unconstitutional because it was sanctioned in French only.

48-pound tumor

BELGRADE (Reuter) — Yugoslav surgeons have removed a tumor weighing 48 pounds from the abdomen of a 57-year-old woman, officials said. The tumor is believed one of the largest successfully removed, and was slightly heavier than one recently removed from a woman in a California hospital.

Owner ignored

TORONTO (CP) — John Curry was reading his morning newspaper when an item from Ottawa caught his eye.

Curry, president of St. Lawrence Resin Products Ltd. of Hamilton, learned an application to buy the American-owned half of his company had been approved by the Foreign Investment Review Agency.

Neither St. Lawrence nor Curry Products Ltd., the Canadian owner of the other half, was consulted before the agency gave the nod to Ziegler Chemical and Mineral Corp. of Great Neck, N.Y., to buy the American-held half of St. Lawrence.

Moderate quake in N.W.T.

OTTAWA (CP) — A moderate earthquake that measured five on the 10-point Richter scale rocked the Boothia Peninsula region of the Northwest Territories early Wednesday morning, said the earth physics branch of the energy, mines and resources department.

A branch spokesman said the tremor occurred at 1:50 a.m. PDT and had an epicentre 530 kilometres south of the remote community of Resolute. No damage was reported from the region's scattered settlements.

Tobacco gum cuts smoking

TORONTO (CP) — A British psychiatrist and researcher reports that a chewing gum containing nicotine has helped four out of 10 people stay off cigarettes for a year or more when combined with other therapy.

Dr. Michael Russell said Wednesday the gum, "tastes like tobacco . . . (but) isn't the same as smoking."

The senior lecturer at the Institute of Psychiatry addiction research unit at Maudsley Hospital in London, England, was addressing a symposium on smoking cessation techniques sponsored by the College of Family Physicians of Canada.

He said the gum could be compared with the drug methadone used to wean morphine or heroin addicts from their habits. It sends nicotine through the mucous of the mouth into the bloodstream and from there to the brain, but can cause nausea or soreness in the mouth.

The doctor said one advantage of the gum is that the ex-smoker absorbs only the nicotine, not other poisonous substances such as tar and cyanides found in cigarettes.

MP urges metric moratorium

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa bureau

OTTAWA — A moratorium should be imposed immediately on moving Canada into the metric system, Douglas Neil, Conservative MP for Moose Jaw, said Wednesday in a letter to Robert de Cotret, minister of economic development and trade.

De Cotret is the minister in charge of metric conversion and Neil reminded him in his letter that during the election the switch to the metric system was a major issue on the prairies.

He said the Progressive Conservative's announced policy won many votes for the party on that issue.

The Tory MP said the party's policy was that a Progressive Conservative government would impose a moratorium on metrification and only move in step with the United States, this country's major customer.

He said the Tory policy also declared that conversion to metric should be a voluntary program rather than a mandatory program.

Interviewed Wednesday, Neil said he is concerned over reports he has read in the press since the new government took office that the bureaucrats have convinced the new cabinet it is too late to slow down or reverse the change to the metric system. He said reports indicate the Americans will not be converting in many fields.

Simpsons-Bay to join

TORONTO (CP) — In a move that won't have any visible impact for the buying public, Simpsons Ltd. and Hudson's Bay Co. agreed to terms Wednesday for a merger for the two department store giants.

Simpsons will continue to operate under its own name, although for the purpose of amalgamation, it will be merged into Bayhud Inc., a newly-incorporated subsidiary of Hudson's Bay, popularly known as The Bay.

The deal, approved by the boards of both companies, must be endorsed by a July 27 meeting of Simpsons shareholders.

Trading in Simpsons shares, halted on the Toronto Stock Exchange since last Friday, resumed Tuesday and the shares were selling at the close 15 cents higher, at $3.40.

However, Hudson's Bay shares closed ⅛ down, at $28⅜, after trading was halted in the morning pending announcement of the merger.

Mock disaster but real leak

DOUGLAS POINT, Ont. (CP) — While a mock disaster was being staged at Bruce nuclear plant Wednesday, four employees were evacuated from a used fuel-storage bay because of high radiation levels.

Although an Ontario Hydro spokesman said there was no danger to the public or employees, an air sample taken shortly after the accident showed radiation levels about 30 times above the permissible level.

Grant Elliot, the Hydro spokesman, said there was no connection between the high radiation and the mock disaster.

Donald White, also a Hydro spokesman, said the four workers had been handling a plastic pipe that had been contaminated recently when a damaged fuel bundle was removed from a fuel channel at the plant.

Meanwhile, the mock nuclear disaster plan at Bruce generating station A was tested without disturbing the area residents.

Gary McCormack, a technical supervisor with Ontario Hydro, said the plan worked well and the estimated 30 men involved in the plan in this area were meeting their objective.

The clerk of the nearby town of Tiverton where a sealed headquarters has been set up reported no inquiry about the day's activity.

The mock disaster involved a three-hour leak of radioactive material from the reactor because of a loss of coolant.

Alberta MLA pushes right to die

EDMONTON (CP) — A private member's bill which would give a person declared to be in a "terminal condition" the right to ask that artificial means of perserving life be ended was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Walter Buck (SC—Clover Bar).

"The bill would basically remove the onus regarding life-support from the medical profession and place it on the individual, who should make that decision in any event," said Buck.

PLAY THE NAMEGAME

GAME No. 1 OFFICIAL ENTRY FORM BELOW!

WIN! $1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES EVERY OTHER WEEK!

WIN! GRAND PRIZE TRIP FOR TWO TO HAWAII, By WARDAIR!

The object is to match the official letters published every day with the letters in the grid which you have filled in with your name (see samples 1 and 2). When you have circled a row of letters across, vertically, or diagonally either way, send your entry in for the bi-weekly draw for cash prizes. You may submit as many entries as you wish per game, but each must be in a separate envelope.

IMPORTANT! READ RULE No. 2
LETTERS FOR TODAY,
GAME NO. 1 ONLY

V I S

THE NAME GAME
Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday and Sunday and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.
9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

Act now to provide peachy winter treats

as easy as pie

Peach pie glace is made from home-canned peaches

Take advantage of the low prices on peaches this season and plan to can a number of jars for quick and easy desserts year-round.

One simple dessert that's sure to please friends and family, particularly in those cold-weather months ahead, is peach pie glace, made from your own stock of home canned fruit.

Buy or make your favorite pie crust, and pull out one quart jar of home canned peaches. You'll need to puree some of the peaches and mix them with the canning syrup for the glaze. Slice the canned half peaches and use them to line the pastry shell. Top with glaze and chill. Served with or without whipped cream, this is an elegant, yet quick dessert from your special shelf of elegant convenience foods which you home canned.

PEACHES (COLD PACK)

2 to 3 lbs. peaches per quart
Light syrup (2 cups sugar to 1 qt. water)

Visually examine home canning jars for nicks, cracks and sharp edges on sealing surface. Wash and rinse jars, bands and lids. Keep jars in hot water or warm cycle of dishwasher until ready to fill. Place bands and lids in a small saucepan, cover with water and bring to a simmer. Do not boil. Remove from heat but leave bands and lids in hot water until needed.

Sort, wash and drain firm, ripe peaches. Carefully dip fruit into boiling water for ½ to 1 minute to loosen skin. Dip into cold water and drain. Peel, halve and pit peaches. Drop halves into salt-vinegar solution, 2 tablespoons each per gallon of cold water, or use a commercial ascorbic acid mixture. Rinse before packing.

Pack halves, cut side down into hot jars. Leave ½ inch head space. Carefully cover fruit with boiling light syrup leaving ½ inch head space. Remove air bubbles with a wooden or plastic spatula. Place lid on jar with sealing compound next to jar, and screw band down evenly and firmly. Process quarts 30 minutes in a boiling water bath.

PEACH PIE GLACE

1 qt. home canned peaches, sliced
¾ cup reserved syrup
½ cup sugar
2 tblsp. cornstarch
1 tblsp. lemon juice
1 tblsp. butter
1 tsp. grated lemon peel
¼ tsp. nutmeg
¼ tsp. almond extract
Baked 9-inch pastry shell

Drain syrup from the peaches, reserving ¾ cup syrup. Slice peaches. Puree 1 cup of peach slices in a blender or food processor. (Reserve remaining peach slices.) Combine the peach puree and the ¾ cup syrup in a saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until slightly thickened; about 4 minutes.

Mix sugar and cornstarch; add to the puree and cook over medium heat until thick and clear, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon juice, butter, lemon peel, nutmeg and almond extract.

Cool.

Arange remaining peach slices in the pastry shell. Pour the glaze over fruit and chill at least four hours.

Makes 8 servings.

Simply Scrumptious is an extraordinary 95-page recipe book that is offered free of charge by Kellogg-Salada Limited. In all, the book contains more than 150 ideas for preparing soups, salads, main courses, beverages and desserts. This wide range of suggestions makes Simply Scrumptuous one of the most complete collections of recipes available anywhere.

The recipes in this book were compiled and edited in accordance with the belief that food must look good in order to taste good. Special attention was paid to selecting the garnish and colors that would make every dish appear as enticing as possible. Judging by the photographs which accompany many of the recipes, it would seem that this careful attention to appearance has paid dividends.

You may request a free copy of Simply Scrumptuous by writing to the Home Economics Dept., Kellogg-Salada Canada Limited, 6700 Finch Ave. West, Rexdale, Ont. M9W 5P2.

Some 12,000,000 Canadians currently own life insurance policies. The average amount of life insurance owned in every Canadian household is about $32,000 — this is three times the amount owned in 1960. It would seem that more and more we Canadians are trying to guarantee financial independence for ourselves.

Free to all

Selecting a life insurance policy to suit your own particular needs can be a very trying procedure. There are four basic types of individual policies from which you can choose: term insurance, whole life, limited payment life and endowment insurance. Each variety has its advantages and disadvantages, depending on your own situation.

This Business of Life is a 64-page guide that does a fine job of acquainting Canadian consumers with life insurance. To obtain your free copy, write to The Canadian Life Insurance Association, 55 University Ave., Toronto, Ont. M5J 2K7. (Single copies only, please.)

Bananas have good points

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
Dr. Jean Mayer
Dr. Johanna Dwyer

Q. I love bananas, but do they contain anything but calories?

A: Unfortunately, bananas are best known nutritionally because of the calories they provide. And it is true that when compared to a number of other fruits, bananas are relatively high in calories. A medium banana provides roughly 100 calories, while a fresh peach or a slice of fresh pineapple contains only 40.

Yet when compared to some other fruits, a banana's reputation as the most calorically potent fruit is rather undeserved. For example, a medium apple contains 80 calories and a medium fresh pear contains the same amount as the banana.

Moreover, if you compare a medium banana to two tablespoons of sugar, which contains nothing except the same 100 calories — and which many of us consume almost without realizing it during the course of a day — substituting a banana certainly stacks up as a very good idea. A banana provides Vitamin A, some B vitamins and Vitamin C. It also contains a little iron and is a particularly good source of potassium, making it an excellent choice for individuals who are taking diuretics, a group of drugs which cause the body to lose a lot of potassium.

You might be interested to know, incidentally, that man has been eating bananas since ancient times. The armies of Alexander the Great found them growing in India in 327 B.C.

Q: Are the natural sugars in fruits harmful to a diabetic?

A: No. Diabetics often question the logic of not being allowed table sugar while being allowed fruits which contain sugar, but there are several reasons for this. Unlike sugar, fruits contain not just calories but many vitamins and minerals as well as fibre the body needs.

Many adult diabetics are overweight. Because weight loss can bring about considerable improvement in their condition, it is extremely important for diabetics to follow weight-reduction diets. On these diets there is usually little room left for the empty calories that sugar provides once the dietary essentials have been included.

We might mention that nowadays the physician's dietary approach to the management of adult-onset diabetics may vary from one patient to another, depending on the needs of the individual. There are circumstances under which some patients are allowed a limited amount of sugar or sugar-sweetened foods. This, of course, is something the doctor must decide on his evaluation of the particular patient.

Not gourmet - just plain good

the 60-minute gourmet

Taste is one of the most subjective things on earth. I have no quarrel with the man who despises caviar; at today's prices, I might even envy him. I have one very close friend, a professional in the field of food, who can't abide the smell or taste of cheese, even cream cheese.

Since childhood, I have had drilled into my skull the philosophy of Lucretius, who lived more than 2,000 years ago: "What is food to one is to others bitter poison." That has also been translated as "One man's meat is another man's poison." Which is by way of introduction to the recipe printed here for what will be, to some palates, the most mundane of all dishes — spaghetti with meatballs.

It may not be gourmet fare to some, it is not authentically Italian (and it certainly isn't French), but it is a dish that delighted my children (now grown) throughout their childhoods. As a matter of fact, at a gathering of my offspring one recent evening one of them specifically asked for the dish. In about 45 minutes we sat down to dine. I might add that it was one of the least costly meals to come off my stove in weeks, or perhaps months.

I don't know when this "recipe" came about. It is simply a blending of compatible flavors that seem logical, and, perhaps, just a touch Neapolitan.

Over the years I have been told by Italian cooks that most of their tomato sauces are long-simmered, and I knew one old lady who told me that it required three days to make her family's ancestral salsa di pomodoro alla napoletana.

As far as this recipe is concerned, the most time-consuming thing is the preparation of the meatballs, a simple blend of meat with onions cooked until translucent; bread crumbs, egg and parsley. It does take a moment or two to shape them. But once browned and with tomatoes added, that's all there is to it. While the sauce simmers there's plenty of time to make ready a simple tossed salad.

SPAGHETTI WITH MEATBALLS

1¼ pound ground chuck
1 tsp peanut, vegetable or corn oil
½ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup finely chopped parsley
½ cup fresh bread crumbs
1 egg, lightly beaten
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 tbsp olive oil
1 cup finely chopped onion
1 tsp finely minced garlic
1 can (1 pound, 12 ounces) imported tomatoes with tomato paste
¼ to ½ tsp rosemary leaves
¼ tsp marjoram
¼ tsp oregano
1 hot dried red pepper, optionall
1 pound spaghetti or spaghettini
2 tbsp butter

1. Put the meat in a mixing bowl and set aside.

2. Heat the oil and cook the onion until wilted. Let cool slightly.

3. Add one-half cup onions to the meat. Add the parsley, bread crumbs, eggs, salt and pepper. Blend well by hand.

4. Shape into approximately 16 balls.

5. Using a large skillet, heat the oil and add the meatballs. Cook, turning the balls as necessary so that they brown evenly, about five minutes.

6. Holding the lid over the skillet, drain off the fat.

7. Scatter one cup onions and garlic around and between the meatballs.

8. Crush the tomatoes and add them. Add rosemary, marjoram, oregano, dried red pepper, salt and pepper. Bring to boil. Cover, simmer 20 minutes.

9. Cook the spaghetti according to desired degree of doneness. Add butter, salt and pepper and serve with meatballs and sauce.

SALADE DE CRESSON ET ENDIVE (Endive and watercress salad)

1 large or 2 small bunches watercress
1 head Belgian endive
½ to ¾ cup thinly sliced, loosely packed cucumber slices
1 tsp lemon juice
2 tsp imported mustard
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
4 tbsp oil, preferably walnut oil

1. Cut off the tough stems of the watercress and discard.

2. Cut the endive into bite-size pieces, after discarding the end.

3. Rinse both the "greens" in cold water and drain or spin dry. Add to a salad bowl. Add the cucumber slices.

4. Add the lemon juice, mustard, salt and pepper to another small bowl. Using a wire whisk, beat in oil. Blend well and toss with salad greens.

Yield: 4 servings.

Pacific shrimp fritters

Makes about 2½ dozen

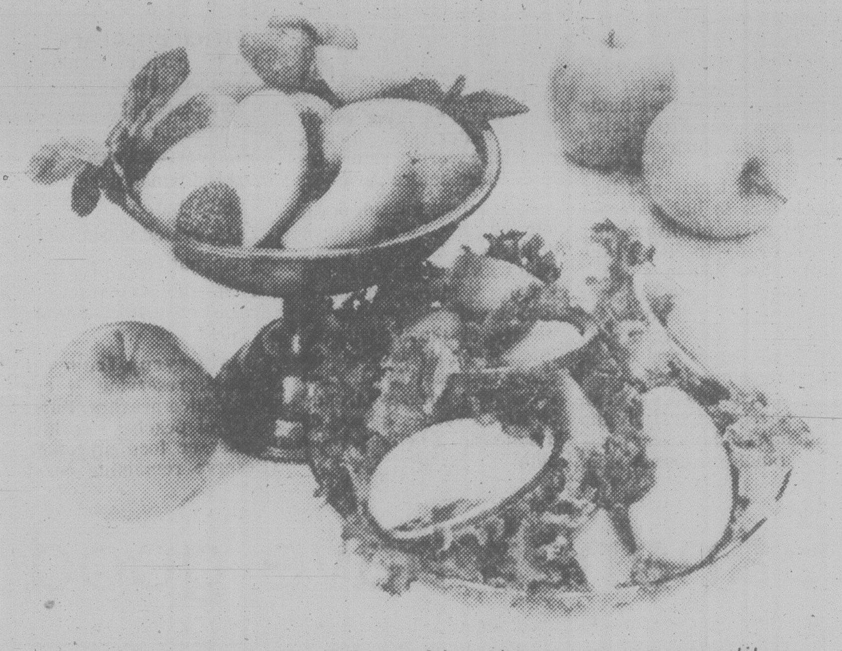
½ to ¾ pound Pacific Shrimp
2 green onions, chopped
½ teaspoon grated fresh ginger root
1½ tablespoons soy sauce
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon baking powder
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup milk

Chop shrimp and mix with green onion, ginger and soy sauce. Set aside to allow flavours to blend. Sift dry ingredients together; add beaten eggs and milk and mix until smooth. Combine with shrimp mixture and stir just until blended. Heat 1½ inches oil to 375°F in deep-fryer or skillet. Drop 3 or 4 teaspoonsful of batter at a time into hot oil. Cook, turning as necessary, until golden brown on all sides (about 2-3 minutes). Life out with slotted spoon; drain on paper towels. Keep warm until all are fried. Serve with Pineapple Dipping Sauce.

PINEAPPLE DIPPING SAUCE

2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup cold water
½ cup pineapple juice
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup soy sauce
½ teaspoon grated fresh ginger root
½ cup unsweetened, crushed pineapple, drained.

Stir together cornstarch and sugar. Slowly add liquid ingredients and ginger, stirring until blended. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Stir in crushed pineapple and heat through. Serve hot.



Cool solution to problem of lagging summer appetites

Granny Smith back

Among the freshest, juiciest apples in the world, New Zealand's Granny Smiths are now in the markets for the summer.

Our seasons are opposite, so they still have that "just picked from the trees" flavor.

Over the past few years, more and more people have been waiting for "that good green apple that comes in the summer." If you can get some recipes made before the family eats them all, here are some quick, easy and cool solutions to the problem of lagging summer appetites.

Remember that apples darken quickly when cut and exposed to the air. The best solution is to drop the slices of apple into cold water to which a couple of tablespoons of lemon juice have been added. Drain and use as desired. They will keep their nice white color.

GRANNY'S SUMMER FRUIT COMPOTE

2 Granny Smith apples
1 pint strawberries
2 peaches or 1 papaya, peeled and sliced
Mint leaves

Quarter, core and slice apples into lemon water. They're prettier unpeeled and you get all the fibre! If you use peaches, peel and slice into lemon water also. Wash and stem strawberries and cut in half. Arrange fruit in a compote or individual serving dishes. Garnish with leaves of fresh mint.

For a zippy variation, slice the apples and peaches into a light white wine for an hour or so before serving. Pour a little of the wine in each serving dish. Fruit won't darken after its wine "bath."

CRISP AND CRUNCHY SUMMER SALAD

What a way to get the fibre that everyone says we need so badly!

Color combinations like this are irresistible, too.

Crunchy apples and onions are a perfect foil for orange sections and curly lettuce, and the bright greens, orange and purple are appetite tempters.

2 Granny Smith apples
2 large oranges
1 medium size purple onion
Greens, preferrably the curly, dark types of lettuce
Light vinegar and oil or herb dressing (optional)

Quarter, core and slice apples into cold water and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Peel oranges and cut into slices, crosswise, then into halves, or section them if your prefer. Peel onion; cut into slices crosswise. Separate rings. Drain apples and combine lightly with oranges, onion and dressing; or reserve the dressing to serve on the side. Arrange on a bed of greens.

Fantasy missing from childhood?

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Fantasy and folklore can be powerful and beneficial influences during childhood, says Gertrude Herman who teaches a course in storytelling and oral literature to student teachers. "As we write more realistic stories for children about death, drugs and divorce, college students are fascinated by tales of fairies, gnomes and hobbits. Maybe they're telling us they missed something."

Summertime and the living is easy . . . and I have discovered a wonderful little booklet available from SIFTO® SALT that is going to make my Summertime entertaining so much easier. It's called Greens 'N Things and it contains all you need to know about the selection, care and preparation of salad greens and it's absolutely FREE! Simply write to: Sifto® Salt, P.O. Box 7213, Postal Station A, Montreal, Quebec H3C 2Z2. I made this delicious salad from their recipe book and my family raved about it for weeks.

Greens 'N Things

Cauliflower Salad with Chives and Capers. 1 head cauliflower; 6 pimiento stuffed olives; 4 pitted ripe olives; 3 tbsp. olive or vegetable oil; 2 tbsp. wine vinegar; 1 tbsp. capers; 1 tbsp. chopped parsley; 1 tsp. SIFTO® Salt; freshly ground black pepper; curly lettuce leaves. Wash cauliflower and cut into flowerets. Cook in 1 inch of boiling salted water 6-7 minutes or until just tender. Drain well. Place in a shallow dish. Cut olives lengthwise into fine strips and add to cauliflowerets. In small bowl mix remaining ingredients except lettuce. Spoon over cauliflowerets; cover and refrigerate several hours, basting occasionally with marinade. To serve, line a salad bowl with lettuce leaves. Fill with cauliflower. Spoon olives and dressing over flowerets. 4 Servings. SIFTO® Salt where all good food begins.

Spring and Summer bring changes in our daily routines — from weekend outings to different foods to — stomach upsets. For many years, wild strawberry extracts have been a trusted standby for the resulting miseries of intestinal cramps and diarrhea. But why did they have to taste so terrible? The folks at Dodds have formulated a new milder tasting wild strawberry extract. It still tastes like medicine but you no longer have to wonder whether the cure is worse than the complaint. Soothing, non-constipating Dodds Wild Strawberry Extract works effectively for your children too. Be prepared for the Summer . . . Get some now and have help on hand always.

Liquid diet fad risky

The liquid protein diet fad persists, despite the warnings that physicians offer to their patients.

Those who search for the easy-way to lose weight seem to be heading for trouble. Case after case is being reported of confusing illnesses, vague symptoms and almost 100 deaths in the past year. All of these have been attributed to the liquid protein diet preparations.

As yet, there are no legal restrictions on them, but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is moving rapidly to develop regulations that would require mandatory warnings on the labels of liquid protein cans.

In a survey made by the FDA it was found that these protein preparations are "mixtures of amino acids derived from collagen (the hoofs, skin, hides and other parts of cattle)."

It is believed the real danger of a liquid protein diet is that it can be compared to almost a starvation diet. No wonder it works! Those people who have died on this diet had remained on it for two to five months and lost an average of 83 pounds. They lost weight, and they lost their lives.

Apparently, with the loss of weight on the liquid protein diet, there was a general deficiency of minerals, vitamins and fat. Potassium, too, was inadequate. It was also found that "when a normal diet was resumed too abruptly, problems of salt and water retention occurred" — often, with dangerous aftermaths.

No one, but no one, should go on any such regime without being under the expert supervision of a doctor. Certainly, under the doctor's care, the liquid protein diet would only be used for a short time.

Rivers and streams all over the continent are filled with the excess vitamins that are excreted by millions of North Americans who take them in unusually large quantities. Recently, I had a patient who gave himself a Vitamin B injection twice a week, for years. He was sure that it helped him for hangovers and severe fatigue.

Fortunately, the body is able to compensate for extraordinarily large doses of certain vitamins. It can handle Vitamin C, and protect itself against overdosage. Not so with Vitamin A and Vitamin D, however, which, in large doses, can cause an enormous amount of difficulty.

There are many excellent vitamin supplements which satisfy all the daily nutritional requirements of the body. These are quite sufficient for people who are adding this to a normal, sensible nutritious diet.

Only when there is a definite diagnosis of a vitamin deficiency are larger, therapeutic doses necessary. And when these are prescribed, they are to be used only until the condition is controlled.

Guide to microwave roasting

United Press International

—Do not add liquid.

—Cover the top of the roast with waxed paper. Do not use closed cooking bags or seal in plastic wrap.

—Use low to medium power.

—Allow 11 to 13 minutes per pound on a medium setting or 19 to 21 minutes on low.

—Start the roast with the fat side down, then turn it fat side up about half way through the cooking period.

—Use a microwave thermometer or sensor probe during cooking or test with an instant reading or regular meat thermometer after removing the roast from the oven.

—Allow standing time before carving, and tent the roast with foil during that period to hold heat in.

—In planning cooking time, allow for a temperature rise after the roast comes out of the oven. The temperature increase depends to a great extent on the power used for cooking. In general, it is 15-20 degrees for roasts cooked on high, about 10 degrees on medium and five on low.

Ballet okay for son

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our only child has been ice skating since he was six. He's had lessons, has won medals, and we're very proud of him. He is now 12 and wants to take ballet lessons.

I have mixed feelings about this, Abby. I am proud to have my son excel in athletics, but I just don't feel the same way about ballet. I have the feeling that ballet is for sissies, or the gay boys, and I want our son to be all man.

Should I let him take ballet? Or do you think if he does have any effeminate tendencies it would tip the scales in favor of his going the gay route?

UPTIGHT MOM

DEAR MOM: Let him take ballet if that's what he wants, and don't worry about tipping the scales in favor of his going the gay route. If that's not his natural direction, he won't take it. Originally, ballet was danced exclusively by men, you know. And some male ballet dancers are among the world's finest athletes.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very dear friend who is getting married in a church. My husband says we should not go to the wedding or send a gift because this couple has been living in sin for a year and a half.

She is still my friend and I think we should go regardless. What is your opinion?

ROSE

DEAR ROSE: Attend the wedding, give a gift, and let your husband stay home if he wants to. If this couple is to be judged for their "sins", let the Lord do it.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that when people have trouble seeing they go to a doctor and get glasses, but if they are hard of hearing they refuse to get their hearing tested?

My mother asked us to repeat everything we said, but if we suggested that she might be slightly deaf, she angrily insisted that there was nothing wrong with her hearing. This how we solved the problem: When mother was present, we spoke in normal tones, refusing to shout or repeat anything. Consequently she was left out of all the conversations. When she complained, we reminded her in tones that she could hear that we saw no reason to repeat or yell since we believed her when she said there was nothing wrong with her hearing.

After a while, mother decided that perhaps she could have her hearing tested. We took her to an audiologist and, sure enough, she had a 40 per cent hearing loss in one ear and 60 in the other. Now she wears a hearing aid and no longer has a problem. And neither have we.

HEAR, HEAR

DEAR HEAR: Thanks for a good suggestion on handling folks who turn a deaf ear to suggestions that they get their hearing checked.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NEEDS TO LOSE WEIGHT:" No "speed" will not make you lose weight. It will only cause you to eat faster.

Soybeans super

Soybeans make super nutritious snacks, too. Use them in place of nuts, either plain, salted or spiced to your liking. The following recipe for Soybean Snacks was developed in the food laboratories of the Food Advisory Division of Agriculture Canada. They're easy to prepare, economical to serve and excellent to taste.

DEEP FRIED SOYBEANS

50 mL uncooked soybeans
375 mL oil
1 mL salt

Wash and soak beans overnight. Drain and spread to dry. Slowly heat oil to 180 degrees C. Deep fry soybeans until golden brown (about 3 min.). Drain and sprinkle with salt. Makes about 125 mL.

Red cabbage slaw

Serves 6

½ small red cabbage
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup vinegar
2 teaspoons oil
⅓ cup water
3 tablespoons sugar
dash pepper

—Shred the cabbage.

—Mix all the remaining ingredients together for the dressing.

—Pour dressing over the cabbage and let stand in the refrigerator for two days, stirring once each day.

Lloyd's offers insurance against falling Skylab peril

LONDON (AP) — For $250 a Texas firm has insured an employee for $1 million against death from the Skylab space station when it falls to earth next month, a broker with Lloyd's said Wednesday.

"His employers would get the money because they took out the policy," said Derek Lee of P. W. Kininmont Ltd., who claim to be the only British brokers offering Skylab insurance.

The cover is for death only and not injury. "If a bit of Skylab hits you, you're going to be dead," Lee added.

The broker said it is against practice to disclose the name of the insured man.

He said his company had hundreds of inquiries about its Skylab insurance "which I worked out" and which also includes a policy for property damage. He said most inquiries are from insurers in the United States, some from Canada and a few from the Cornwall area of southwestern England — the only place in Britain where officials say debris might land.

The death rate is 25 cents for $1,000 of cover, with a minimum premium of $25 — or $100,000 of insurance. The Texas firm has taken the maximum allowable.

The property damage policy runs up to $5 million or equivalent in other currencies — with a $100 minimum premium, which would provide $100,000 of insurance.

NASA pedicted Wednesday that Skylab, which is as big as a house and was put into orbit in 1973, will come down between July 10 and 18, with a 50-per-cent probability that it will be down by July 14. Debris from it is expected to fall on an area 160 kilometres wide by 6,400 kilometres (4,000 miles) long.

NASA said about 500 pieces weighing a total of 40,000 pounds are expected to survive re-entry heat and hit earth but the chances are "extremely slim" that they will cause injury or damage.

The decision on delaying or hastening the demise of the space laboratory — and thereby influencing where it will come down — will be made according to "mission rules" set down in advance, Richard Smith, director of the Skylab's re-entry, told a House of Representatives subcommittee.

As of late Wednesday, the prediction was that Skylab will return to earth between July 10 and July 18, with a 50-per-cent probability that it will be by July 15. The forecast changes almost daily as the North American Air Defence Command refines its tracking data.

Children ruled okay as pickers

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that children ages 10 and 11 may pick berries in fields sprayed with two mold-controlling chemicals, despite objections from the United States department of labor.

The ruling Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Jack Tanner was a victory for strawberry growers, who are in the middle of their harvest. Strawberry and raspberry growers in Washington and Oregon rely on 10-and 11-year-olds to harvest their crops.

In nearby Puyallup, the strawberry crop is worth $10.5 million and 35 per cent of the crop is harvested by the young pickers, said Ron Staples of the Washington employment security department.

Tanner ruled that the government hadn't demonstrated adequately that children were threatened by the chemicals captan and benlate.

The federal agency had banned the youngsters from fields where the chemicals had been sprayed, claiming both substances were toxic and potentially cancer-causing. Growers said the chemicals had been in common use for years.

Jerome McCarthy, a lawyer for growers, argued Wednesday that the department's rules would expose even younger children to the chemicals.

Boat people find an island haven

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — The Malaysian government says it has driven 14,457 Vietnamese refugees from its east coast in the last 10 days, while Indonesian officials say it appears most of them have landed on the islands of the Riau Archipelago, southwest of Singapore.

The Indonesian report indicated that many or all of the boat people denied refuge in Malaysia were finding a haven about 480 kilometres farther south. There had been fears that many of them, travelling in unseaworthy vessels, might drown.

Indonesian Defence Minister Mohammad Jusuf said Wednesday that the number of refugees on the Riau islands, off the east coast of Sumatra, increased to about 47,000 from 31,200 in the last two weeks. He said the refugees somehow managed to slip past Indonesian navy patrols.

Malaysia and Indonesia both announced stronger measures this month to prevent the arrival of more Indochina refugees, mostly ethnic Chinese from Vietnam, on their shores. They increased their navy patrols and said any who got through would be expelled.

Singapore cracked down last year, and Thailand, burdened by an influx of Cambodian refugees, has also announced it will accept no more.

The five members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations are compelled to "withdraw our helping hands" from the Indochinese refugees, Indonesian President Suharto said today as he opened an ASEAN meeting on the island of Bali.

"The flow of refugees has increased to such a proportion that we feel we are not able any more to carry the burden," he said.

Of the five ASEAN members, Thailand has about 230,000 refugees, Malaysia 76,000, Indonesia 47,000, the Philippines about 5,000 and Singapore several hundred.

U.S. slams Israeli use of F-15s in Lebanon

United Press International

The United States today protested Israel's use of U.S.-supplied F-15 jet fighters to shoot down Syrian warplanes over southern Lebanon, but Israel said it acted in legitimate self-defence.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance sent a message to Prime Minister Menachem Begin through the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv protesting the use of the planes.

A statement issued by the Israeli foreign ministry said Begin told U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis about Israel's position at a hastily arranged meeting in a Tel Aviv school where Begin's grandchild graduated from the sixth grade.

The statement said the ambassador told the prime minister that the U.S. administration was seriously concerned about the use of the super-sophisticated fighters which were given to Israel on the condition they be put into action only for self-defense.

The F-15s were among Israeli warplanes that shot down five Syrian MiG-21s in a dogfight over southern Lebanon Wednesday. It was the first time the U.S.-made jets have seen combat.

15 Moslems shot by firing squad

DAMASCUS, Syria (Reuter) — Fifteen Moslem extremists were executed early today after being convicted of crimes ranging from murder to membership in armed gangs, the official Radio Damascus reported.

It said 14 of the men were hanged and the 15th, a soldier, was put before a firing squad at a prison in the ancient Qalaa district.

The executions followed an announcement Wednesday that Syria's Supreme State Security Court had passed death sentences on 18 members of the Moslem Brotherhood, an extremist organization blamed for a number of killings and other acts of violence.

Radio Damascus said that the lives of three of the convicted men were spared because they had co-operated with security forces in helping round up members of the brotherhood. The three had their sentences commuted to life imprisonment.

The worst terrorist incident blamed on the Moslem Brotherhood was the June 16 massacre of at least 50 military cadets at the artillery school in the northern city of Aleppo.

But those executed today were found guilty of crimes preceding the Aleppo massacre, including the assassination of a senior security officer more than two years ago.

Elephant tramples trainer's body

WOODLAND, Wash. (AP) — The trampled body of renowned elephant trainer Morgan Berry was pulled away from a bull elephant Wednesday, but authorities said it may never be known whether the animal caused his trainer's death.

The elephant, Tonga, had been picking up Morgan's body and tossing it around, but he may have thought he was just playing with his owner, sheriff's deputies said.

Gary Waddell, chief criminal deputy for the Cowlitz County sheriff's office, said the 68-year-old Berry, who had a history of heart trouble, may have had a heart attack while working with the elephant. An autopsy was ordered.

The animal was chained while lying on the ground, but later got back on its feet. Authorities were using a female elephant to try to coax the reluctant male back to the farm.

The elephant was in a rural area about a kilometre from the farm, Waddell said. Residents of the area were used to the animals, he said, and the situation was not considered dangerous.

Berry's partner, Eloise Berchtold, 42, was killed by an elephant last May during a circus performance in Rock Forest, Que. The elephant had been trained by Berry andBerchtold at the farm near Woodland.

Berry, 68, moved to the 75-acre farm in 1965 from Bothell to be closer to an airport. He had been an animal trainer for 38 years.

Joe Wodaege, who lives near Berry's private animal farm in southwest Washington, said he and Kenneth Berry, the victim's son, managed to pull away the badly mangled body.

The elephant "made a lunge or two at us when we were dragging the body out," said Wodaege, adding that neither man was struck by the animal.

The elephant kept potential rescuers at bay for hours. After Berry's body was recovered, the elephant was tethered to a tree and caused no further problems, Waddell said.

A second bull elephant, Thai, which had escaped through the farm's chain link fence, was shot with a tranquilizer gun about two kilometres from the farm.

'Crucial' to end truck strike

Times New Services

WASHINGTON — U.S. Vice President Walter Mondale, warning that the independent truckers' strike is jeopardizing the economy "at a moment when we can least afford it," Wednesday urged the truckers to return to the nation's highways. He said the roads are now "open and safe."

Mondale, speaking on behalf of President Carter, who is in Japan, said the administration has adequately addressed the concerns of striking truckers this week by ensuring equal distribution of diesel fuel and raising the fuel recovery surcharge from 6 per cent to 7 per cent.

"A fast end to the strike is now crucial," he said. "In South Carolina, in Texas, in Florida, in California and other states, there are crops that must be moved. Action by some truckers is putting jobs in jeopardy and threatening food shortages and the economy in general."

Mondale's warning was seconded by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, who said at a separate news conference that if the truckers' strike continues much longer, delays in delivery of perishable farm products will have a "measurable" impact on consumer prices.

The administration's plea that the truckers return to the highways was quickly rejected by leaders of the various trucking groups involved in the 20-day protest.

"What they say is of little or no significance," said Doug Biddle, a representative of the 30,000-member Independent Truckers Association. "Every night when we look in the mirror, we tell ourselves that we should return to work. We know we're losing money, but we can't go back until all our requests are met."

Although leaders of the independent truckers movement maintained Wednesday that their strike is gaining momentum. There are indications in certain regions of the country that more truckers are in fact returning to the highways. In Virginia and Maryland, for example, major diesel fuel depots that only last weekend were doing little or no business reported Wednesday that business is now 75 percent normal.

Officials at the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has been attempting to monitor the strike, said several states in the South and Southwest also seemed to have more truck traffic Wednesday than they had in several days.

"But it's very difficult for us to assess whether the strike is actually dissipating," one ICC official noted. "It seems to calm down in one place and then pop up in another. The truckers themselves can't adequately gauge the strike because they're just a loose confederation of very independent groups. The only thing that keeps them together is that they're mad as hell."

According to federal officials, the impact of the strike was being felt most in the food industry. Some major meatpackers are reportedly operating on a day-to-day basis according to the availability of trucks.

Around the U.S. today, striking drivers vowed to stop Alabama fuel deliveries and North Carolina's governor called on the U.S. National Guard to protect fuel terminals from further blockades.

There were also renewed incidents of violence, with firebombs and sniper attacks aimed at trucks on the road.

Food stocks generally remained adequate at supermarkets in the U.S. Midwest and East, but grocers predicted higher prices and shortages within days.

Identity crisis all in the name

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — The campaign to identify Vancouver, Wash., as simply Vancouver, U.S.A., is moving from highway signs to T-shirts this week.

Some 2,400 T-shirts emblazoned with "Vancouver U.S.A." will go on sale today at fireworks stands associated with the Fourth of July Committee.

City council members helped the campaign Monday night by declaring July 1-7 as Vancouver, U.S.A., week. To add personal support to their official action, council members left the council meeting briefly and returned wearing the new T-shirts.

The campaign, sponsored by a chamber of commerce committee, was started last year when five 'Entering Vancouver, U.S.A.' signs were erected on state highways.

"We just want to try to grab a little bit of extra identity for Vancouver (Washington) as opposed to Vancouver, British Columbia," said Bob Moser, committee chairman.

"Instead of a legal effort to try to change the name, this is a light-hearted effort for some and serious for others to distinguish ourselves from Vancouver, British Columbia."

Previous attempts at the polls to change the name of the city to avoid confusion with Vancouver, B.C. have been unsuccessful.

Consumers strike urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers are being urged to go on strike for one day this fall to protest the U.S. government's failure to dampen inflation, now at an annual rate of 13.4 per cent.

"Unless consumers stand up in an organized manner . . . they will never be able to deal with the deterioriating" economy, consumer advocate Ralph Nader told a coalition of 70 consumer, labor, religious and senior citizen groups Wednesday.

The coalition — Consumers Opposed to Inflation in the Necessities — launched what its leaders hope will be a number of teach-ins reminiscent of the grassroots protest against U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

The group, calling itself COIN, disclosed a 100-page anti-inflation program, highlighted by immediate calls to reimpose oil price controls, place a clamp on health care costs, subsidize consumers' food bills and lower mortgage rates.

All but the health-care proposal came under strong criticism from Alfred Kahn, the Carter administration's chief inflation fighter, who participated in one of the many sessions Wednesday.

While applauding many of the coalition's long-term proposals — including efforts to expand and diversify the U.S. energy supply and to deregulate the trucking industry — Kahn said controlling oil prices is "pretending" about the real cost.

A move back to energy price controls would discourage conservation and increase demand for the fast-diminishing product, something he said would only feed inflation. Kahn criticized subsidies for food and lower mortgage rates for the same reason.

COIN is focusing its campaign on the acute impact inflation has on necessities — energy, food, housing and health care.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT . . .

Opening lead — ace of clubs.

The impetuous player who plays first and thinks later must occasionally pay for his exuberance. Bridge is not the kind of game where you can afford to play spontaneously and expect to get the best results. There are simply too many variations of hands you may hold and situations you may encounter to rely entirely on past experience to guide you unerringly to the right bid or play.

Take this deal, where almost anyone might go wrong. Let's say you're East and that your favorite partner leads the ace and another club, which you win with the king.

It is not difficult to recognize that West led from the doubleton ace of clubs and that you can give him a ruff. But if your thinking stops right there and you impulsively return a club, declarer makes the contract. He loses two club tricks, a club ruff, a spade and a diamond.

Furthermore, you can tell from seeing dummy that this result is inevitable if you return a club. At the same time, you can also see that there's a chance of stopping the contract if you play the ace and another diamond, instead of leading a club at trick three.

If you do this, you beat the contract. South can do no better than lead a trump at trick five, which you take with the ace. Now, belatedly, you give your partner a club ruff, and he reciprocates by giving you a diamond ruff. This last ruff puts declarer down one.

You can then apologize to your partner for having failed to give him a club ruff earlier. He gave you such a scornful look when you led the ace and another diamond, instead of a third club, that it might be better to try to placate him by apologizing for your seeming stupidity.

Tomorrow: Test your dummy play.

Taking a break at the summit, heads of state stroll in the gardens of the Akasaka Palace in Tokyo

Fire started in summit hotel

TOKYO (AP) — Police said an incendiary device connected to a timer started a fire today in a vacant room on the 18th floor of the 40-storey Tokyo hotel where five world leaders, including Canadian Prime Minister Joe Clark, are staying during the summit of industrialized countries.

A man who identified himself as a member of the radical Kakurokyo group said in a telephone call his group was responsible for the fire, the Japanese news service Kyodo reported.

Police said the fire was quickly extinguished and that the hotel was constructed so that it would have been unlikely that the blaze would have reached the 37th floor where the five leaders are staying during the two-day summit which opened today.

Police set up a special force to investigate the incident.

A police spokesman said police started a search for a woman who stayed in the 18th floor room Saturday and has disappeared. "She could have taken the room key with her," he said.

Clark commits Canada to take more refugees

By JIM ROBB
FP News Service

TOKYO — Prime Minister Joe Clark today committed Canada to provide more financial aid for southeast Asian refugees and to accept more into the country.

Along with the leaders of other western industrial nations and Japan at the economic summit, Clark approved a statement that calls the plight of refugees from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia — the boat people — "a humanitarian problem of historic proportions which constitutes a threat to the peace and stability of southeast Asia."

The statement calls on Vietnam and the other countries of Indochina to take measures to eliminate "human hardship and suffering."

It also calls for "the immediate cessation of the disorderly outflow of refugees without prejudice to the principles of free emigration and family reunification."

But they included an escape hatch for themselves.

The statement says the aid and admittance of more refugees should take "into account the existing social and economic circumstances in each of their countries."

The seven leaders also called on the United Nations to hold an emergency conference as soon as possible on the refugee crisis.

A spokesman for Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira said the idea of the statement came up at a meeting some days ago between Ohira and President Jimmy Carter of the United States.

It was examined by the foreign ministers of the seven nations during lunch at the economic summit Thursday and was adopted by the national leaders in the afternoon.

The total was increased from 7,000 to 8,000, with another 4,000 possibly coming in under private programs.

The United States will admit 14,000 refugees a month, double the current level at an estimatcost of $150 million above the estimated $250 million it already expects to spend on the program.

The summit delegates also called on other nations to join them in solving the refugee problem.

Joe's 'gaffe' upsets envoys

TOKYO (CP) — Officials at the Canadian embassy say Prime Minister Joe Clark's reference to Gen. Douglas MacArthur today in conversation with Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira would be welcomed by most Japanese.

However, they are upset by published reports calling Clark's comment a diplomatic gaffe.

The prime minister told Ohira before a breakfast for the seven leaders taking part in the economic summit: "I didn't realize that the United States embassy was used by Gen. MacArthur when he was here."

MacArthur used the embassy as his headquarters during the U.S. military occupation of Japan following the Japanese defeat in the Second World War. It was also his command centre for the Korean war.

Canadian diplomats say the occupation was considered neither humiliating nor unhappy by the Japanese. They were pleased to see their country in the hands of a firm and fair ruler and considered it the beginning of the rebuilding process which has allowed Japan to achieve its present state of prosperity.

Japanese journalists and officials organizing events associated with the summit exhibited a wide range of reactions when asked about Clark's remark.

Most said that MacArthur himself is held in high regard in Japan, but that it is painful to be reminded of their humiliating defeat.

Some of the older people, they said, revere MacArthur as the savior of their country. To others, he represents North American imperialism and brings back unhappy wartime memories.

Most younger Japanese probably do not care one way or the other, they said.

Foreign journalists were more critical of the Canadian prime minister. One called his MacArthur remark a "terrible gaffe".

A second said the comment would likely not do great harm in Ohira's estimation, but he considered the Canadian leader to be walking on thin ice in even referring to such a sensitive episode of Japanese history.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The artistic director of a modern dance company in Toronto won the 1979 Jean A. Chalmers award in choreography Wednesday.

She was born in London and went to Toronto in 1969. Since 1974, she has choreographed 14 works.

Peggy Smith, performance chairman for the conference, said 11 works will be presented during each of the five days of the conference.

The conference also will include workshops, forums and lectures.

Alan Ladd stepping down

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Alan Ladd Jr., unhappy at the amount of administrative work, will step down as president of 20th Century-Fox when his contract expires in 18 months, the studio says.

Ladd, 41, the man responsible for producing Star Wars, the most successful movie ever made, has not announced his future plans. He is also resigning from the Fox board of directors.

Dennis Stanfill, the studio's chairman of the board, said Ladd's successor has not yet been chosen.

Ladd, son of the late actor Alan Ladd, joined Fox in 1973 and was promoted to president of the features division in 1975. Ladd earned $1.9 million last year in salary and incentive payments.

Soviets over limit in N-test?

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Soviet Union Saturday detonated an underground nuclear test that U.S. scientists believe exceeded the 150-kiloton limit for such tests agreed to by both countries in 1974. Wednesday the United States formally questioned the Soviet Union about the test.

U.S. officials who disclosed information about the test Wednesday said a preliminary intelligence estimate put its size at about 200 kilotons, but later information and analysis could change that figure. The test was certainly in a range of 100 to 400 kilotons, these officials said.

Other sources said U.S. seismologists now feel there was an 80 per cent probability that the test exceeded 150 kilotons.

The 150-kiloton limit was contained in the Threshold Test Ban Treaty signed in Moscow in 1974. However, the treaty has never come legally into force.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have declared their intention to respect the 150-kiloton limit during these negotiations, though they are not legally bound to do so.

Sources inside the Carter administration speculated Wednesday that if the Soviets did indeed exceed the 150-kiloton limit in Saturday's test, they may have done so to demonstrate to the United States that they will not indefinitely adhere to agreements that are not converted into legally binding treaties.

Other interpretations were that the Soviets simply decided to cheat, made a mistake in calculating the explosive force of a device they tested, or in fact didn't violate the limit at all.

This last possibility remains real, according to official sources, because the seismologists who make these estimates, using data from listening stations around the world, practice "an art as much as a science," as one official put it.

The range of potential error is large, many sources agreed, although evidence of a test bigger than 150 kilotons is strong.

Moreover, the two countries agreed as part of the Threshold Test Ban Treaty that because technical difficulties in controlling blast sizes and measuring them would be unavoidable, "one or two slight, unintended breaches per year would not be considered a violation."

Nevertheless, administration officials conceded that this latest Soviet test could cause difficulties, particularly during the Senate debate on SALT II, which will include the issue of whether the Soviets can be trusted.

Senate must debate SALT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd travels to Moscow today to tell Soviet leaders they will have to expect the Senate to put its stamp on the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

And Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker says he will actively oppose the SALT II agreement unless the White House and the Soviet Union signal a willingness to consider "reasonable amendments."

Before leaving for Moscow today, Byrd pleaded with senators not to rush judgment on SALT II and to avoid taking hard positions until the conclusion of hearings now set to begin July 9.

Many supporters of the treaty expressed regret at Baker's conclusion that the pact is fatally flawed in its present form because it provides the Soviet Union with what he called "a substantial strategic superiority."

But supporters as well as opponents joined in denouncing demands by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko that the Senate make no changes in the treaty whatsoever.

At a news conference Wednesday, Baker said he is not willing to work to improve and ratify the treaty "under Soviet threats of grave consequences if the Senate and the American people don't knuckle under."

Byrd said that while in Moscow he will attempt to impress on the Kremlin the constitutional role of the Senate in the consideration of treaties. One SALT supporter, who asked not to be identified, said Gromyko's remarks are widely resented and are proving counterproductive.

Meanwhile, Senator John Culver (Dem. Iowa) took exception to Baker's assertion that SALT II allows the Soviet Union 308 heavy SS-18 missiles while the U.S. has none.

DC-10 ban lift still up in air

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The manufacturer of the embattled DC-10 jetliner says it has answered the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration's questions about the aircraft and expects the plane to be back in service soon.

But an FAA official said the agency is no longer predicting when its investigation will conclude. "All we can do is hope," Alex Garvis said Wednesday.

McDonnell Douglas Corp. issued a statement saying it has given the FAA all documents requested. "We believe we have now answered all questions raised by the FAA in its investigation," John Hennelly, a lawyer, said in the statement.

"It is our hope and expectation that this will promptly result in a lifting of the DC-10 type certificate suspension and a return of the airplanes to service," he said.

The FAA suspended the DC-10's design certificate about two weeks after one of the wide-body jets crashed in Chicago on May 25, killing 273 persons in the worst air disaster in U.S. history.

The company appealed the grounding order to a federal administrative law judge, who postponed until Monday a hearing on the appeal at the request of the FAA.

Monster project delayed

HULL, Mass. (AP) — An attempt to photograph Scotland's legendary Loch Ness monster — with dolphins manning the cameras — has been delayed by the death of one of the three animals being trained for the mission.

The dolphin died last week at the former Atlantic Aquarium, where two of the three animals were being trained. Its death was announced Wednesday.

"We were only planning on using two (of the dolphins) on the expedition itself. The third was a backup," said Robert Borossky, a business consultant of Dover, Mass., whose idea it was to use dolphins.

"Plans for continuation of the project have been postponed but at this time have not been cancelled," said Howard Curtis, executive vice-president of the Academy of Applied Science, which was training the dolphins.

WHERE DOES YOUR ADVERTISING DOLLAR GO?
We have found the big advantage of downtown retail space to be the built-in advertising of the location. A one way street ensures a lot of traffic looking at your sign — check out our space. Just off Douglas St. on Johnson towards Blanshard — between 2700 and 5400 square feet available with extremely reasonable terms.

256 WATERFRONT PROPERTIES

COME TO OUR Waterfront Condos
AVE.

We have prepared for you to enjoy the CRUNCH: LIKE THE ENERGY CRUNCH: a and b:

a. WE SUPPLY HEAT, AND HOT WATER (and as members of the G.V.A.O. assoc. — oil is cheaper)

b. "SEAFORTH WOODS" "CONDOS" ARE APPROX. 1 MILE FROM VICTORIA CITY HALL, so if GAS GETS too EXPENSIVE — you can USE THE VERY FREQUENT BUS SERVICE.

ALSO THERE IS THE HOUSING CRUNCH — WHERE INFLATION AND STRIKES COULD EASILY DOUBLE THE PRICE OF HOUSING.
AND THERE IS THE TAX CRUNCH:
For more on that, and for future retirement, see our ad under Condominium Classification No. 258.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

GARDENING
Jack Beastall

If you're moving, lift those bulbs

Two weeks ago was the time to lift the spring flowering bulbs, mainly the daffodils, tulips, hyacinths and the bulbous Dutch iris.

The daffodils need not be lifted every year. They can be left alone until the clumps produce more leaves than flowers. Then it is time to lift, clean, divide, grade for size and store for replanting.

I would strongly advise gardeners who are moving to a new property later this year, and wish to take some bulbs with them, to lift the bulbs now, prepare them properly for storage, and have them ready for moving day. This is the right time for lifting whereas later they may have started root growth which will be damaged if lifted from the soil.

The bulbs lifted two weeks ago were placed in a single layer on trays, in shallow boxes, or cut-down cartons, to allow the soil remaining on the bulbs to dry, the foliage to ripen and the roots to shrivel. The next step is to clean the bulbs for storage.

The cleaning process is more or less the same for all bulbs. When ready for cleaning the foliage will be crisp and part easily from the bulb with a very slight pull, the soil will be dry and the roots crisp enough to rub off.

Until the bulbs are in this condition they must continue drying. To pull off the foliage, or roots that are not dry, will damage the bulbs.

The removal of soil and roots is done by gently rubbing with the thumb and fingers. Any roots which do not come away freely should be left on the bulbs.

Some of the skin, or jacket, of daffodils may flake off, but the main covering should not be removed. Tulips must be cleaned before the jacket's dry enough to split. Dutch iris have skins similar to daffodils and should not be removed.

Roots should never be deliberately pulled or cut. On the bottom of every bulb is a basal plate, looking like a piece of leather. If this plate is damaged the bulb will not make a complete root system and will be unable to form top quality flowers. Any bulbs having soft or missing basal plates should be discarded as well as bulbs of daffodils soft to the touch which is usually caused by the grub of the Narcissus bulb fly. These are burned in a hot incinerator fire to destroy the grubs.

When the bulbs have been cleaned and checked, the next step is to grade them into two or three sizes. It is best to use three grades, the largest or flowering size for replanting in the display beds this coming fall, the medium size for planting in the vegetable garden or a spare corner of the burder, to grow on to flowering size, and the small ones for discard or for naturalizing under grass.

Throughout these operations, be sure to keep the different varieties separate and the name labels on each group, if you have the names, or a descriptive note if names are unknown, so as to get outstanding effects from grouping each kind instead of having a hodgepodge mixture.

For storage the bulbs are put into shallow trays one layer deep, preferably trays with a flyscreen bottom to permit free circulation of air through the bulbs. These can be stacked wth pieces of 2-by-4 spacers. When only small quantities of each bulb or variety are to be stored, old nylon stockings or open-weave nut bags are suitable. Brown paper bags are the last resort, although far from ideal. Plenty of holes must be punched in the bags, and not too many bulbs included because of heat being generated in the centre as the bulbs breathe.

Store the containers in a dry, cool, place out of strong daylight or sunlight, and where there is a good circulation of air. The care you give your bulbs now will be repaid in full measure — good or bad — next spring.

Improve airport now: Chamber

Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce Wednesday urged federal Transport Minister Don Mazankowski to give immediate consideration to expanding Victoria airport.

There is a pressing time factor because if expansion is not included in the next budget the region might have to put up with the present facilities until 1984, vice-president Bob Wheaton told a chamber directors meeting at the Strathcona Hotel.

Enlargement of the terminal building is required now, he said. If the federal treasury board gives approval this summer, the funds could come early next year in the first Tory budget and contruction could be completed in 1982.

The Liberal government had plans to expand the terminal although no details had been finalized.

Wheaton said a letter has gone to Mazankowski outlining six factors:

—The airport's departure area is extremely congested during check-in for a stretched DC8 or if more than one DC9 or 737 operation is being handled simultaneously, especially for the 7:45 a.m. flight to Vancouver.

—It is confusing when boarding planes because all loadings leave from one departure room, creating the possibility of getting on the wrong plane by mistake.

—Customs facilities are too small. Any plane larger than a 737 has to make a special stop in Vancouver for customs clearance.

—The coffee shop and gift shop are totally inadequate.

Wheaton said both Air Canada and Pacific Western Airlines have an urgent need for expanded facilities at the Victoria airport.

Copies of the letter have been sent to federal Defence Minister Allan McKinnon and to Don Munro (Esquimalt-Saanich).

Harbor and waterways director Arne Lane expressed concern that Victoria may lose its fishermen's wharf to Sooke because of a proposal to construct new facilities in the Sooke area.

John King of Vancouver Island Helicopters said his company was concerned to learn that there is no official licence to declare the Johnson St. helistop as an official copter landing pad and city council has not attempted to obtain a licence, apparently because the area is earmarked for residential development. He said an alternative helicopter landing site would have to be found quickly if the Johnson St. site is to be phased out.

Industrial development commissioner Barry Mayhew told the meeting the proposed marine technical centre in Sidney, beside the oceanographic institute, is close to a reality.

Land will be leased to the B.C. Development Corporation and about eight firms are interested in locating there in a specialized industrial park. Seven of the firms are from B.C. and the eighth is from Alberta.

Pension pressure urged

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber said Wednesday retired British citizens living in B.C. are the victims of frozen pensions.

Barber called on the provincial government to put pressure on the Canadian and British governments to ensure British citizens get the same benefits here as they would in the United Kingdom.

He said in a news release the pensions would be protected against inflation if Canada and Great Britain had a reciprocal social security agreement but without such an agreement "the government of the U.K. will not pay additional pension benefits to their citizens living in Canada."

Heritage plan to continue despite ruling

Victoria has not given up on plans to compensate the owners of commercial heritage buildings despite a recent B.C. Supreme Court ruling, Ald. Bob Wright said today.

Earlier this week the courts ruled against a city program that saw tax assessments frozen when a commercial buildings were given heritage status.

The tax freeze was meant as an incentive to owners because it allowed them to improve their buildings without paying higher taxes.

The courts ruled against the procedure, however, because it interfered with the jurisdiction of the B.C. Assessment Authority.

"It's a temporary setback," said Wright of the Supreme Court ruling.

"It certainly doesn't wipe out our program or anything like that."

He added that "if there had to be a challenge (to this program) it couldn't have come at a better time because we're just getting it off the ground."

Wright said that the court decision has no financial implications because no property owners have had any benefits from the program as yet.

Wright said the city would ask the provincial government to introduce legislation that would allow Victoria to compensate heritage owners by putting a lid on tax assessments.

Saanich plan close to final adoption

The adoption of an official community plan for Saanich is only one minor step away after more than three years of controversy and heated debate.

Saanich council Wednesday night gave the bylaw its first three readings, following a brief, sparsely-attended public hearing which produced a few queries and comments but no real opposition.

The attendance of fewer than 20 residents looked incogruous in the large auditorium of the Garth Homer Achievement Centre, which had been booked because the nearby municipal hall was considered inadequate.

Expressing disappointment at the poor turnout, Ald. Howard Sturrock said he was unsure whether it indicated general satisfaction with the document or a lack of awareness that the meeting was being held.

Sturrock wondered whether the public hearing should be adjourned to another occasion.

But Mayor Mel Couvelier and other council members said they didn't consider that necessary.

"I have no difficulty accepting this (the attendance) as indicative of acceptance by the community at large," Couvelier said.

Eric Robinson, president of the Cordova Bay Association, noted that the plan in its present form is the product of months of discussion involving the planning committee, community groups and members of the public. "As a first crack we think it's worth getting behind and we would like to see it made an official community plan," Robinson added.

A spokesman for the newly-formed Tolmie-Tattersall Residents' Association suggested that the proposed population densities for neighborhoods be reduced on the plan to reflect the substantially revised population projections for Saanich by the year 1996.

"It is the quality of life as well as the quantity of people which should be the key issue for the 1990s," he said.

"Ultimate population densities should rely on such items as neighborhood esthetics and environmental concerns rather than sewage capacity and street upgrading."

The group's brief also claimed that the present system of processing rezoning applications through the Advisory Planning Commission is "an ineffectual vehicle for determining the concerns of local residents over local problems."

After the hearing Couvelier told reporters he would probably seek the municipal solicitor's advice before deciding whether to present the community plan bylaw for final adoption at council's next meeting Tuesday.

He said two changes may first have to be made to the official regional plan, recognizing the recent Saanich decisions to go ahead with a scaled-down industrial park at Royal Oak and to include the 60-acre Grant property at Cordova Bay within the urban containment boundary.

The regional board has already indicated the regional plan would be changed accordingly, he said, but the actual amendments have yet to be made.

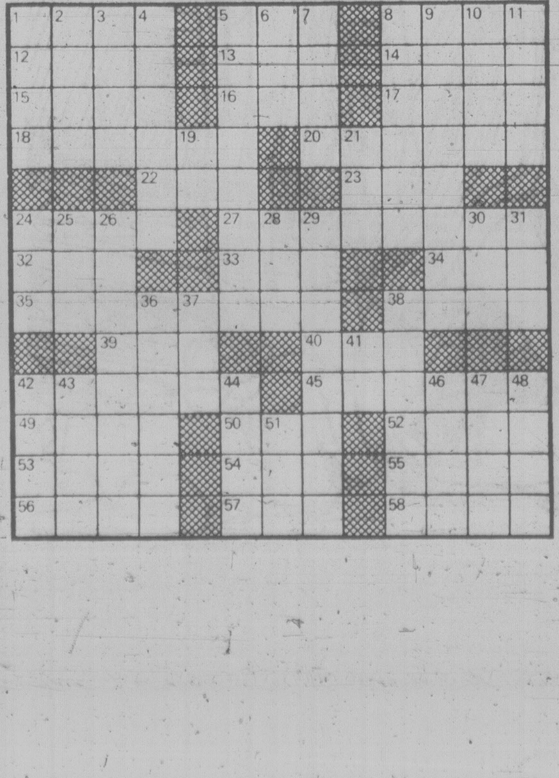
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



School officials on arson guard

LANGLEY (CP) — Local school officials are installing smoke detectors and fire alarms in their homes as RCMP continue to investigate arson attacks last week on the homes of five officials in this sprawling municipality.

However, Langley Mayor George Driediger stressed Wednesday that there has been no panic since one home was set on fire June 20 and four others were hit early last Friday.

Rewards totalling $11,000 have been posted for the arrest of those responsible. Half was put up by the Langley school board and the remainder by the Langley Teachers Association and the B.C. Teachers Federation.

RCMP have brought in more men to assist in the investigation, but refused to comment on its progress.

However, Sergeant Doug Clyde said it is believed the person or persons responsible are "fairly intimate with the education system." He said investigators from the RCMP serious crime unit in Vancouver and the provincial fire marshall's office were helping with the investigation.

The homes of Wayne Wiebe, principal of County Line elementary, and Vic Hewitt, vice-principal of Shortreed elementary, were extensively damaged.

Also targets of the arsonist were Ron Sawatsky, principal of Shortreed, Keith Clothier, prinicipal of Central Fundamental, and Earl Dancey, director of elementary education.

Driediger said statements Tuesday by Brian Westwood, Langley school board chairman, that some school officials were keeping loaded guns in their homes were irresponsible.

"I was shocked that a man in a responsible position would even suggest teachers are arming themselves," Driediger said.

However, Westwood said Wednesday the 108 principals and administrators in the district were taking normal precautions, and some probably were loading guns they normally kept unloaded.

"If the dog barks they go and look, instead of ignoring it," he said.

Westwood said that immediately after the arson attacks some people panicked, but they now are settling down.

Neither Westwood nor Driediger would comment on speculation that the attacks relate to a continuing conflict between proponents of traditional schools, which emphasize basic skills taught in a structured, disciplined atmosphere, and advocates of more open teaching methods, which 26 of the district's 28 schools now use.

Westwood said that since 1974, the Langley school board has been comprised of traditionalists.

Campbell slams bureaucrats

Capital Regional District politicians are being frustrated by an "anonymous bunch of bureaucrats," Outer Gulf Islands director Jim Campbell charged Wednesday.

He told the CRD's local planning and zoning committee the officials must be told to limit their function to giving professional advice and leave the decisions to elected officials.

Campbell was outraged when recommendations from the technical planning agency, made up of provincial department representatives and professional planners, were received.

He said it is not the agency's function to make recommendations on whether rezoning applications should be approved without giving reasons. He said the agency's sole role is to advise on the probable results of any action, leaving the politicians to make up their own minds.

He said the duties of the technical people are spelled out in a municipal affairs brochure.

Planner Jim Masterton said agency members had discussed the brochure but disagreed with it.

"It's not their goddamn business to agree or disagree," Campbell retorted. "It's not their role to tell us that a document written by the minister of municipal affairs to help them is not what they like."

He said he had estimated it cost $500 to have all the technical people in one room for a day.

"What they are doing is treating politicians as if they don't know what they are doing — which may be true, but that isn't the point. They are just supposed to give any reasons for objections and forecast possible consequences so that we can make the judgments," Campbell said.

The agency will be advised that recommendations without reasons are worthless.

CRD decision set for July 11 on legal action against Saanich

Capital Regional District directors will decide July 11 whether to take Saanich to court to block the controversial Tillicum shopping centre which some directors contend conflicts with the regional plan.

The board Wednesday instructed its solicitor to serve notice of its intention.

Executive director Dennis Young told the board the district has 60 days after the passing of Saanich's bylaw (June 4) to take the matter to court.

Nine pages of legal advice on the regional plan were received from the solicitor on Wednesday, and copies were given to each director. The finance and personnel committee will study the report Tuesday morning and make its recommendations to the full board on whether the matter should be taken to court.

Esquimalt mayor Art Young said it is important to find out whether the regional district has any "clout" to enable it to enforce the regional plan.

While Esquimalt would probably like to have such a plum as the proposed Tillicum shopping centre, he said it was "imperative that the regional board have some clout over Esquimalt, Saanich . . . what we're here for is the good of the region."

Young said directors should put the regional district first but instead they put their communities first when it came to such controversial issues as the shopping centre, oil tank farms and septic tank disposal stations.

Saanich mayor Mel Couvelier told the meeting the municipality needed the shopping centre because it would focus on redevelopment of the Gorge area, give Saanicb a major portion of Colquitz Creek, the developers would contribute $363,000 toward servicing costs, it would improve traffic patterns in that area, provide a park and ride area, increase parking capacity for the George Pearkes Arena and produce between $300,000 and $350,000 in revenue for Saanich taxpayers.

Couvelier said the whole "gut-wrenching" debate could have been avoided if the board agreed to instruct the planning staff to redraft the regional plan to accommodate the centre.

Former board chairman Jim Campbell noted that Saanich had succeeded in having the plan changed in the past when it wanted land taken out of the Agricultural Land Reserve and rezoned for an industrial park.

Young said it would have been better if Saanich had set out reasons why it wanted the regional plan amended, as in the Royal Oak situation, rather than "looking for loopholes to beat the intent and purpose of the regional plan."

Sears no full-liner, Couvelier insists

He told the Capital Regional District's board Wednesday there should be no objection to the proposed shopping centre at Tillicum because there was no full-line store proposed for the controversial centre.

Later he said the vice-president of Simpson-Sears was expected to issue a press release in Vancouver announcing the store's intention to build at Tillicum.

"My interpretation is that Sears is a full-line department store," Ald. Bob Wright of Victoria said.

$1 million per second

The rate of spending was about $1 million a second Wednesday when the Capital Regional District Hospital Board adopted a bylaw allowing for borrowing up to $44,659,000.

The introduction and final adoption of the bylaw went without comment. Outside the board room regional board chairman Murray Glazier, Saanich mayor Mel Couvelier and Saanich alderman Howard Sturrock chatted while remaining board members authorized the borrowing for work on the new Helmcken Road hospital.

The swift passage was a stark contrast to a committee meeting earlier in the day during which 45 minutes was spent on whether $5,000 should be spent to study the costs and implications of planned development in Colwood and Langford.

It was finally decided to refer the matter to another committee.

At issue was a request that a consultant be hired to work out the cost of services needed by a growing population and the stage at which such services as increased fire and police protection and underground sewer systems would be needed.

Jim Campbell, Outer Gulf Islands director, contended the decision had been made to direct development into the western community, away from the Saanich Peninsula. He said there should be considerations other than the strict financial costs of services.

He said it was cheaper to develop agricultural land and any study would show that. Other regional considerations should enter into growth cost studies, he added.

Executive director Dennis Young agreed there is no way for different areas to share develoment costs and it was necessary to understand the cash implications of western community development.

The matter will be referred to the regional plan management committee.

Tories probing Air Canada

Airline's ex-boss Pratte quits Supreme Court

PRATTE

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Mr. Justice Yves Pratte today announced his resignation from the Supreme Court of Canada, effective at the end of June. He gave ill health as the reason.

The resignation of the 54-year-old judge who headed Air Canada for a stormy seven years comes on the heels of a request by Transport Minister Don Mazankowski for a report from Air Canada on the pension given Pratte when he resigned as chairman of the publicly-owned corporation in 1975.

Published reports have said Pratte received an Air Canada pension based on 20 years of service when he served only seven. The reports also said Pratte received $200,000 when he left the airline.

Manzanowski Wednesday also said the position of chairman of Air Canada, held by former Liberal cabinet minister Bryce Mackasey, should be done away with.

This brought a rejoinder from Mackasey that he considers his job important to the airline and any move to scrap it or make it a part-time position runs counter to the findings of two federal inquiries.

The appointment of Mackasey to a seven-year term last year drew harsh criticism from the Tories. He is reportedly being paid $90,000 a year.

Pratte resigned as chairman of Air Canada in the wake of an inquiry into an unusual $100,000 payment by Air Canada to Montreal travel agent R.Y. McGregor.

He said in his resignation letter that the government seemed to have lost confidence in him.

The inquiry headed by Chief Justice Willard Estey of the Ontario Supreme Court found there was incompetency but not dishonesty in top management of the 21,000 employee government-owned airline. He named no names.

Pratte was a prominent Quebec lawyer with the prestigious law firm of St. Laurent, Taschereau, Noel and Pratte when he first came to national attention in 1965 as special legal counsel for Quebec premiers Jean Lesage and Daniel Johnson and was then appointed to the Royal Commission on Security created by the federal government to look into the Munsinger affair — the relationship between Gerda Munsinger and members of the Diefenbaker cabinet in 1966.

Pratte had no experience with airline management when he was appointed by the Liberal government in 1968 and he complained publicly many times in his seven turbulent years as chairman that he received no support or direction from a succession of transport ministers, including Don Jamieson, Jean Marchand and Otto Lang.

At Air Canada headquarters in Montreal Wednesday, Mackasey said it was "hard to comment" on Mazankowski's statement on such short notice.

But he noted that the Estey Report indicated that combining the positions of chairman and chief executive officer "must contribute to executive congestion and lack of communications

OPEC oil prices raised 24%, plus surcharge

GENEVA (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries announced its biggest price increase in five years today, raising crude oil prices to between $18 and $23.50 U.S. a barrel.

The 13 OPEC countries agreed on a multi-level pricing system, raising the base price to $18 from $14.55 a barrel — an increase of 24 per cent. Members of the cartel also can add surcharges of as much as $2 a barrel as market conditions permit.

The maximum price was set at $23.50 a barrel, allowing for the usual differentials for higher-quality oil. The highest price currently is $21.31 for high-grade Libyan oil.

The benchmark price of $18 is for the type of oil known as Arabian ligh crude. The new prices take effect July 1 and are to last until the end of the year.

Saudi Arabia, which had held out for a low price, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates will be the only countries actually charging $18 a barrel, Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told a news conference.

Yamani, who described it as a "a slightly confusing system," said most other OPEC countries will charge between $21 and $22 a barrel. Observers said countries such as Nigeria, Algeria and Libya, which produce OPEC's best oil, will probably set their price at the $23.50 ceiling.

How long the $23.50 ceiling lasts will depend on whether the industrialized countries cut consumption, Yamani said.

The United States imports about half the oil it uses with 70 per cent of that coming from OPEC countries.

U.S. economists say the higher OPEC prices will worsen U.S. inflation, heighten the possibility of a serious recession and, in the words of one, make recent increases in fuel oil, utility and gasoline prices "seem quite modest" in comparison.

By JIM ROBB
FP News Service

TOKYO — Leaders of the seven industrial nations at the Economic summit ended their first day of discussions divided on how to conserve oil and restrain imports.

In a statement to the press following the meetings Wednesday (Thursday Tokyo time), Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira of Japan said officials from the seven nations were trying to work out a satisfactory compromise.

On one side of the energy conflict are the Europeans — France, West Germany, Great Britain and Italy — who would like a group target set to restrain oil imports from OPEC nations.

On the other side, with varying positions, are Canada, Japan and the United States, who lean to country-by-country restraint.

Canada is going to have to import more oil for the next five years than it has up to now, because conventional sources of domestic oil will not be producing as much as they have.

Japan is totally dependent on oil and fears that if it is forced to restrain imports too much its growth rate will decline unacceptably.

The United States is faced with gasoline shortages which have become a major political problem for president Jimmy Carter.

Ohira termed the new energy crisis "even more serious" than the first in 1973, used by the Arab oil embargo.

The new crisis has been caused by constant oil price increases now being discussed by the OPEC countries.

Bottle blast brings suit

TORONTO (CP) — The parents of a three-year-old boy who lost his left eye when a soft-drink bottle exploded are suing Pepsi-Cola Canada Ltd. and Domglas Inc., a Canadian bottle manufacturer, their lawyer said today.

John McNair and his wife, Ellen, are bitter about the accident six months ago that took one of son Matthew's eyes when the eye was cut out by a chunk of flying glass from an exploding 1.5-litre bottle.

Major supermarkets in some Canadian cities have taken 1.5-litre, soft-drink bottles from the shelves.

"There is no gratification in seeing the bottles come off the shelves now," McNair said.

The McNairs have spent more than $2,000 in expenses not covered by the Ontario Health Insurance Plan.

Their lawyer, Joseph O'Brien, said writs have been served on both companies involved.

Meanwhile, a federal government spokesman said Wednesday that a government report recommends three ways to deal with the problem, including forcing manufacturers to redesign soft drink bottles.

R.D. Bennett of the consumer and corporate affairs department said Wednesday the report also gives manufacturers the choice of destroying, then remanufacturing the bottles when they are returned or of using plastic containers.

Bennett said the report has been presented to Allan Lawrence, consumer and corporate affairs minister, but has not been made public.

Ferries profit with loss

B.C. Ferries had a loss of $30.6 million on operations last year, collecting $69.6 million in revenues and spending $100.2 million.

However, thanks to a taxpayer subsidy of $46.6 million, the Crown corporation ended up its fiscal year March 31 with a book profit of $9.3 million.

The corporation's annual report was tabled in the legislature Wednesday.

General Manager Charles Gallagher said in the report he is concerned about rising fuel costs but said projected operating results indicate a general fare increase will not be needed in 1979.

He said, however, that increased demand for capacity and services will require heavy capital expenditures and increased operating costs.

The corporation also has commited itself to spending $75 million for two large ships, lengthening of three small vessels and upgrading of the Queen of Surrey for the Prince Rupert run.

Offer to IWA 'richest ever'

A contract described as the richest ever offered the International Woodworkers of America could be put to the union's 28,000 coastal and southern Interior members by the weekend.

Jack Munro, the union's western region president, said Wednesday following a meeting with negotiators representing 128 forest companies that that the offer meets most of the union's demands.

Munro said the two-year package proposed by the Forest Industrial Relations Association provides an increase in wages and benefits of about $3 an hour, as well as revisions in job categories.

Base rate was $8.16 in the contract which expired June 15. The union originally asked for a $1.50-an-hour increase in a one-year agreement.

Munro said the forest industry also removed all restrictions from the pension plan in its contract offer. The offer represents a 90-cent-an-hour wage increase in the first year and a 9.5-per-cent increase in the second year.

Approval would mean a memorandum of agreement which Munro says could be voted on by the membership within 10 days of signing.

Earlier Wednesday, about 1,800 woodworkers in the Lake Cowichan area decided to remove their picket lines and go back to work.

However, about 1,300 IWA members walked off the job in the Port Alberni area at four MacMillan Bloedel logging divisions to protest what they said was the slow pace of negotiations.

The union member had intended to picket a nearby mill.

Forty longshoremen walked off the job to support the picket, leaving three ships which they had been loading with lumber.

Wharf spokesman Cliff Mayhew said one Japanese-bound ship has a charter rate of $5,000 a day, while the others cost $15,000 a day.

Bennett 'coward' over Viet pledge

A spokesman for organizations trying to spring $2 million from the provincial government to aid children in Vietnam called Premier Bill Bennett a coward Wednesday.

Rhoda Kaellis of the Canada-Vietnam Friendship Society said Bennett's refusal to act on a long-standing promise to staff and equip a clinic for children in the war-ravaged country "is a cowardly way to behave."

She said it is a dishonest attitude to say and do nothing, hoping the problem will go away.

Kaelis, along with representatives from the Council of Churches, Voice of Women, Victoria International Year of the Child and Phil Esmonde, a Vietnam veteran, tried to present a 1,000-name petition to Bennett, but were only able to meet with his executive director Tony Tozer.

They told Tozer they won't allow the campaign to die.

Later they told reporters they will keep knocking at Bennett's door until he lives up to his commitment.

Vietnam has been waiting for six years for B.C. to live up to its promise.

In 1973, a Liberal-sponsored motion to spend $2.25 million to build, staff and maintain a medical clinic for children in Vietnam was passed unanimously by the house.

A committee was formed to ensure any monies spent would go to children and not to war materials or to political ends.

That committee found several responsible groups to handle the funds including the Red Cross, UNICEF and the Unitarian Services Committee.

But time passed, the money was never budgeted and the government changed.

The issue was raised from time to time in the house and in February, 1977, Bennett said the "obligation remains with all of us. Nobody denies that."

He added that the people of B.C. have made a commitment.

Later a second committee was formed but it faded out.

Bennett then changed his tune and said: "To date I have not received a report from that committee with any recommendations to the government to provide a vote in the budget for these funds."

Asked about it again Wednesday, he said: "What money? The committee never reported. What do you want me to do?"

He was the Liberal who first proposed the spending in 1973.

Asked Wednesday if he stands by his original motion, Williams said he doesn't think it is still possible to achieve it.

There is no longer any way to guarantee the funds will go to a children's hospital, he said.

Liquid diet fad risky

The liquid protein diet fad persists, despite the warnings that physicians offer to their patients.

Those who search for the easy-way to lose weight seem to be heading for trouble. Case after case is being reported of confusing illnesses, vague symptoms and almost 100 deaths in the past year. All of these have been attributed to the liquid protein diet preparations.

As yet, there are no legal restrictions on them, but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is moving rapidly to develop regulations that would require mandatory warnings on the labels of liquid protein cans.

In a survey made by the FDA it was found that these protein preparations are "mixtures of amino acids derived from collagen (the hoofs, skin, hides and other parts of cattle)."

It is believed the real danger of a liquid protein diet is that it can be compared to almost a starvation diet. No wonder it works! Those people who have died on this diet had remained on it for two to five months and lost an average of 83 pounds. They lost weight, and they lost their lives.

Apparently, with the loss of weight on the liquid protein diet, there was a general deficiency of minerals, vitamins and fat. Potassium, too, was inadequate. It was also found that "when a normal diet was resumed too abruptly, problems of salt and water retention occurred" — often, with dangerous aftermaths.

No one, but no one, should go on any such regime without being under the expert supervision of a doctor. Certainly, under the doctor's care, the liquid protein diet would only be used for a short time.

Rivers and streams all over the continent are filled with the excess vitamins that are excreted by millions of North Americans who take them in unusually large quantities. Recently, I had a patient who gave himself a Vitamin B injection twice a week, for years. He was sure that it helped him for hangovers and severe fatigue.

Fortunately, the body is able to compensate for extraordinarily large doses of certain vitamins. It can handle Vitamin C, and protect itself against overdosage. Not so with Vitamin A and Vitamin D, however, which, in large doses, can cause an enormous amount of difficulty.

There are many excellent vitamin supplements which satisfy all the daily nutritional requirements of the body. These are quite sufficient for people who are adding this to a normal, sensible nutritious diet.

Only when there is a definite diagnosis of a vitamin deficiency are larger, therapeutic doses necessary. And when these are prescribed, they are to be used only until the condition is controlled.

Guide to microvave roasting

United Press International

—Do not add liquid.

—Cover the top of the roast with waxed paper. Do not use closed cooking bags or seal in plastic wrap.

—Use low to medium power.

—Allow 11 to 13 minutes per pound on a medium setting or 19 to 21 minutes on low.

—Start the roast with the fat side down, then turn it fat side up about half way through the cooking period.

—Use a microwave thermometer or sensor probe during cooking or test with an instant reading or regular meat thermometer after removing the roast from the oven.

—Allow standing time before carving, and tent the roast with foil during that period to hold heat in.

—In planning cooking time, allow for a temperature rise after the roast comes out of the oven. The temperature increase depends to a great extent on the power used for cooking. In general, it is 15-20 degrees for roasts cooked on high, about 10 degrees on medium and five on low.

Ballet okay for son

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our only child has been ice skating since he was six. He's had lessons, has won medals, and we're very proud of him. He is now 12 and wants to take ballet lessons.

I have mixed feelings about this, Abby. I am proud to have my son excel in athletics, but I just don't feel the same way about ballet. I have the feeling that ballet is for sissies, or the gay boys, and I want our son to be all man.

Should I let him take ballet? Or do you think if he does have any effeminate tendencies it would tip the scales in favor of his going the gay route?

UPTIGHT MOM

DEAR MOM: Let him take ballet if that's what he wants, and don't worry about tipping the scales in favor of his going the gay route. If that's not his natural direction, he won't take it. Originally, ballet was danced exclusively by men, you know. And some male ballet dancers are among the world's finest athletes.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very dear friend who is getting married in a church. My husband says we should not go to the wedding or send a gift because this couple has been living in sin for a year and a half.

She is still my friend and I think we should go regardless. What is your opinion?

ROSE

DEAR ROSE: Attend the wedding, give a gift, and let your husband stay home if he wants to. If this couple is to be judged for their "sins", let the Lord do it.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that when people have trouble seeing they go to a doctor and get glasses, but if they are hard of hearing they refuse to get their hearing tested?

My mother asked us to repeat everything we said, but if we suggested that she might be slightly deaf, she angrily insisted that there was nothing wrong with her hearing. This how we solved the problem: When mother was present, we spoke in normal tones, refusing to shout or repeat anything. Consequently she was left out of all the conversations. When she complained, we reminded her in tones that she could hear that we saw no reason to repeat or yell since we believed her when she said there was nothing wrong with her hearing.

After a while, mother decided that perhaps she could have her hearing tested. We took her to an audiologist and, sure enough, she had a 40 per cent hearing loss in one ear and 60 in the other. Now she wears a hearing aid and no longer has a problem. And neither have we.

HEAR, HEAR

DEAR HEAR: Thanks for a good suggestion on handling folks who turn a deaf ear to suggestions that they get their hearing checked.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NEEDS TO LOSE WEIGHT:" No "speed" will not make you lose weight. It will only cause you to eat faster.

Soybeans super

Soybeans make super nutritious snacks, too. Use them in place of nuts, either plain, salted or spiced to your liking. The following recipe for Soybean Snacks was developed in the food laboratories of the Food Advisory Division of Agriculture Canada. They're easy to prepare, economical to serve and excellent to taste.

DEEP FRIED SOYBEANS

50 mL uncooked soybeans
375 mL oil
1 mL salt

Wash and soak beans overnight. Drain and spread to dry. Slowly heat oil to 180 degrees C. Deep fry soybeans until golden brown (about 3 min.). Drain and sprinkle with salt. Makes about 125 mL.

Red cabbage slaw

Serves 6

½ small red cabbage
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup vinegar
2 teaspoons oil
⅓ cup water
3 tablespoons sugar
dash pepper

—Shred the cabbage.

—Pour dressing over the cabbage and let stand in the refrigerator for two days, stirring once each day.

Today's Markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market rose sharply in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Trading in shares of Dundee Palliser Resources Ltd. was halted at about 11 a.m. at the company's request pending an announcement. The stock last traded at 50 cents.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said class A shares of Goldale Investments Ltd. will be posted for trading for the first time July 4 in the industrial category.

Among industrials, Husky Oil gained 2½ to $59½, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas 2¼ to $75¼, Canadian Pacific Investments 1⅜ to $33, Ivaco A 1 to $19¾ and Shell Canada ⅞ to $25⅝.

Aquitaine of Canada lost ¾ to $37¾, Sterisystems Ltd. 10 cents to $2.65, Maislin Industries ¼ to $5¼, Celanese Canada ¼ to $6 and Bell Canada ⅛ to $21⅝.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Energy issues paced a broad stock-market advance Thursday in the first trading since the oil-exporting countries set their new pricing plans.

Analysts said there was some relief among investors that the forces of moderation within OPEC, led by Saudi Arabia, held firm against pressure from more militant members for even larger increases.

But they also noted a bit of disappointment that the Saudis made no decision to increase production. Stepped up production would tend to ease the current tightness in world oil markets.

Energy issues on the active list included Occidental Petroleum, up ⅜ to $24⅛; Exxon, up 1 to $53¼; Gulf Oil, ahead ⅜ to $27⅜; Texaco, up ⅝ to $27¼, and Louisiana Land and Exploration, up 2⅛ to $37.

Montreal

London

Industrials and oils firmed, banks were unchanged and mines eased.

Canadian shares were mixed.
